July 29 about 500 members of the Maryland State Horticultural Society, from all over the state, with visitors from New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania, made a pilgrimage to the Mt. Olivet Orchards, at New Windsor, Md. The Mt. Olivet Orchards are located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains and contain 197 acres of as fertile land as one could wish to see. The visitors had the pleasure of seeing eighty acres of 17-year-old trees and the rest of the 197 acres in trees 9 years old of as fine apples as any man ever looked upon. Professor Shaw, of the Maryland State Agricultural College, pointed out that the splendid condition of this orchard was due entirely to constant spraying. He cited an instance of where careful records were kept, and the trees sprayed from one to six times during the season. The tree that was sprayed once while it was still dormant produced fruit that brought $5.25, and the one that received six sprayings $25. Trees were grown in the same block and under the same conditions, as an experiment, and some were sprayed once, some twice, etc., up to six times. The figures demonstrated that each spraying was worth about $5 per tree in the yield. At the Mt. Olivet Orchards the trees were breaking down with fruit and not a windfall was to be seen on the ground.

In this part of the apple belt of the state there is a large colony of Dunkards. They are all agriculturists, the majority of them orchardists, and a more thrifty class of people I have never

Double Snapdragon June Hefko

A perfectly double Snapdragon of the same size, color and habit of growth as Nelrose, which averages about three feet in height, except that it is perfectly double and absolutely seedless. It is practically everblooming and, as for keeping quality, it outlasts any flower I know of. It is an excellent shipper, as the flowers hold fast to the stalk and do not drop off in the shipping box, as has been the case with single Snapdragon. The flowers are so full and double that there is very little chance for them to get bruised in transit. We ship all plants well established in pots or well rooted cuttings, free from rust.

Prices:

Rooted Cuttings, $15.00 per 100
2½-inch Plants, 17.00 per 100

POEHLMANN BROTHERS CO., Morton Grove, Ill.

seen. From the orchards the visitors went to the packing houses; these are situated on the Western Maryland R. R., at New Windsor. Here the sizing is all done by machinery, and as high as four carloads a day are sorted and packed, but as the picking season had not begun, they had just a few barrels of apples to show how it was done.

After inspection of the orchards everyone was hungry; so they were invited to the campus of the Blue Ridge College, which is the property of the Dunkards, where the ladies had prepared a luncheon such as can be had only in Carroll county. After lunch the midsummer meeting of the horticultural society was held in the gymnasium of the college. The president of the society, A. P. Snader, who is also president of the college and of the Mt. Olivet Orchard Co., called the meeting to order, and the theme of the entire meeting was how best to interest the boy in the farm. These wise people seem to have realized the importance of this problem, and what is more, have solved it, for a more interested class of young people I have never seen. In this community it is not necessary to send the young folks away for an education; they have their own college right at home. Richard Vincent, of White Marsh, represented the florists; Orlando Harrison, of Berlin, Md., the nurserymen, and D. M. Wertz, of Waynesboro, Pa., the peach growers. Dr. Symons, of the Agricultural College, was in his glory. It was a day to be remembered. Tate.

HENRY F. MICHELL CO. 516-518 Market St. Philadelphia

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

During last week the chief work was for funerals and weddings. There were several busy days. Outdoor flowers are the main part of the stock, with sweet peas predominating. Roses are plentiful and are good stock. Carnations are practically off the market. Orchids are scarce, while valley is a little better.

Various Notes.

The Duluth Floral Co. had the bouquets for the Bagley wedding. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. Six bridesmaids carried shower bouquets of lavender sweet peas. The maid of honor carried a shower bouquet of pink sweet peas and the matron of honor also carried a shower bouquet of pink sweet peas. St. Paul's church was decorated with evergreens, Easter lilies and cathedral candles. The house was decorated with roses, lilies and ferns. John Nilof, of Minneapolis, was in charge of the decorating.

J. E. S.

MOBILE, ALA.

The Market.

The usual summer dullness is prevailing, although all the florists are reporting better business at present than during previous years. The demand is mostly for funeral work and sick people. The usual cut flower trade is off and there are not many weddings.

The supply of flowers is small. The new roses are arriving with short stems. There are not any good roses to be had. Gladioli are about the best flowers offered, although there is a good supply of flowers for funeral work. The roses and mum plants are looking fine. In a short time good roses from new plants will be on the market.

Various Notes.

A. F. Eilers, of the H. F. Michell Co.; Howard Royer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., and Robert Shoch, of the M. Rice Co., all of Philadelphia, were recent visitors.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

FROM COAL TO OIL.

I have 20,000 square feet of glass and I am having a good deal of trouble in getting coal. The coal dealer informed me that he would not be able to deliver enough coal to my greenhouses to last through the winter. Would it be possible to rebuild my furnace for crude oil, if I could get enough of it to replace 100 tons of Pocahontas soft coal? How much would it cost?

M. J.—O.

Of course, if coal cannot be secured and if fuel oil can be obtained at a reasonable price, it would be advisable to make the change. I am not able to furnish an estimate of the cost of installing the necessary apparatus and suggest that the figures be secured from some firms in the business.

HEATING SMALL HOUSE.

I intend to heat with hot water a greenhouse 23x65 feet, twelve feet to the ridge and with three feet of wood in the ends and sides and eighteen inches of glass. I wish to maintain a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees; the thermometer here rarely goes below 10 degrees above zero. I intend to run two 2½-inch flows on the purlin posts seven feet above grade and to connect each flow to three 2-inch returns under the side benches about eighteen inches above grade. Then I plan to sink the boiler four feet deep in the pit, the top of the boiler being about level with grade. Do you think that will work all right? I expect to run all pipes about level.

What amount of radiation, in square feet, does this house require? I have an opportunity to buy a new round boiler rated at 850 square feet. Will this be large enough? R. A. H.—Va.

As an outside estimate, not more than 500 square feet of radiation will be required to heat the greenhouse described, on which basis the heater mentioned would have ample capacity.

While it would be possible to heat the house to 60 degrees with two 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns, the circulation will be improved if three 2½-inch flow pipes are used and it would be preferable to use eight or even nine 2-inch returns. However, if the house is well built and with an average exposure to the prevailing cold winds, there should be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature of 60 degrees with two 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns with a little extra attention to firing when the outside temperature is 10 degrees above zero or colder.

The fall of the pipes need be only one

Cast Iron Cannot Be Compared With Kroeschell.

We bought a No. 2 Boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2,000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell Boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water.

—— ——, Canada.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years.

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7,000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

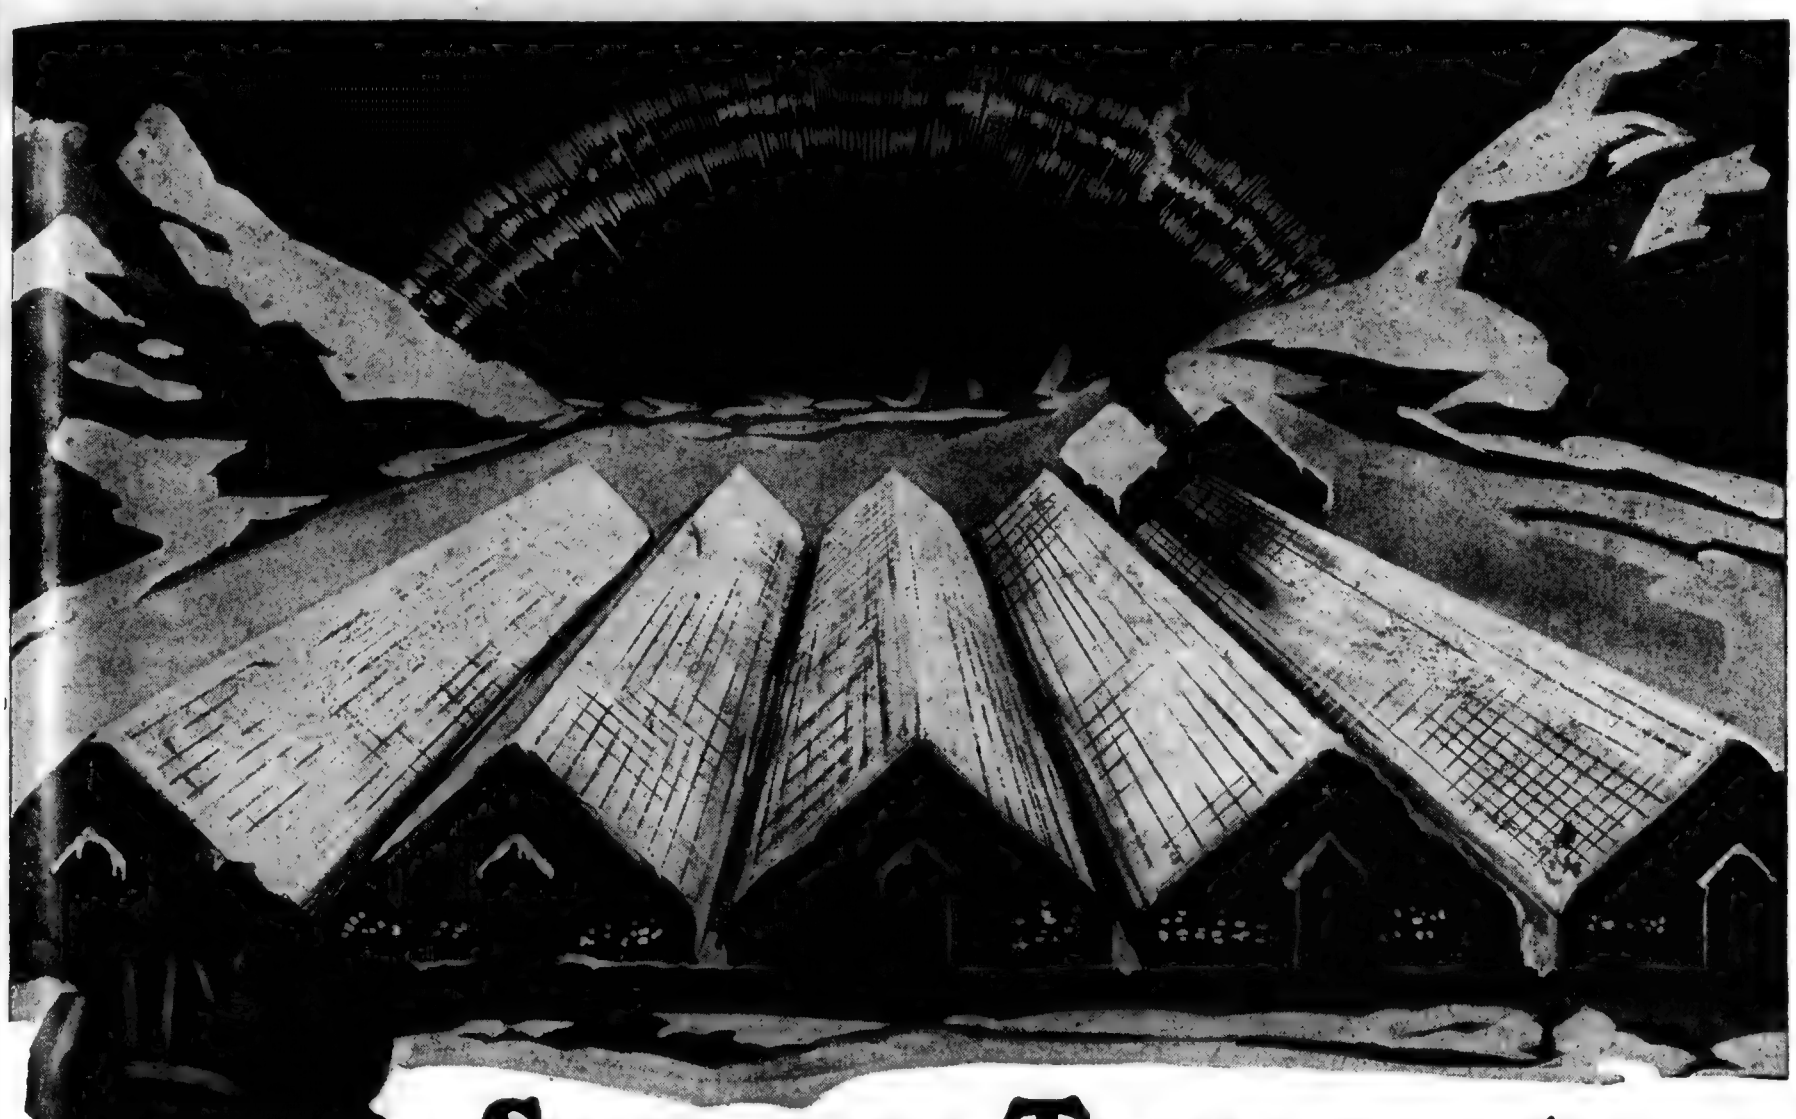
I first had a new cast iron boiler, which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment ever made.

You can refer anyone to us.

—— ——, Ohio.

Kroeschell Versus Cast Iron.



The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 sq. ft. of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 sq. ft. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50° in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

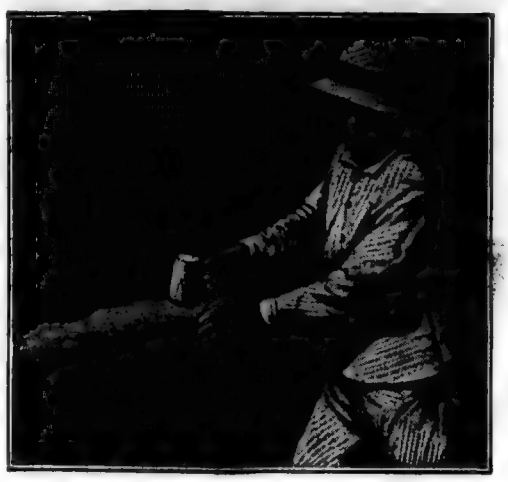
Summer Temperature in Winter Time!

Now is the time to improve and perfect your heating system—to make sure that none of your high priced fuel is wasted—that the temperature is uniform throughout your greenhouses during the coming winter months.

The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System solves the problem by keeping steam heating lines clear of condensation so that every inch of heating surface is doing its full work.

The Morehead System takes the condensation back to the boilers as pure hot feed water. The steam is allowed to circulate freely—you get all the heat that is generated in the boilers.



With the Morehead System on the job you always get a definite action—a direct response to every additional pound of steam in the boilers.

You also save fuel—frequently as much as 20 to 50 per cent—since the heat of the steam is utilized over and over again, as the condensation reaches the boilers in the form of hot feed water.

We will gladly tell you more about the Morehead System—what it is doing for other growers—what it will do for you.

The Market.

Business during the last two weeks has been slow, with occasional improvement. For summer trade, business may be considered good. The supply of flowers is all that could be desired. Fine asters and gladioli are being received in considerable quantity. There was a good supply of roses last week, but the changeable weather may make a shortage next week.

Various Notes.

H. Waters has added a new truck. The slogan is prominently displayed on it.

S. Tidy & Son are putting another truck into service. It will be the same as the other trucks in design and finish. E. Lye and Bert Payne, of this firm, are on their vacations. S. A. McFadden, the manager, will join his family at Otter Lake shortly.

L. Waters is attending the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland.

Frank Smith, the new Hamilton florist, has joined the F. T. D.

H. Arnold, of the Bedford Park Floral Co., states that the new house is planted with roses and that several new houses will be erected in the near future.

PEORIA, ILL.

It is scarcely more than five years since Otto Von Siebenthal and John A. Nelson succeeded the Rue Floral Co. Their progress has been steady and seems to be gaining rapidity, as they have just added the Pierson establishment to their interests. Heretofore the retail store on Main street has been conducted, first as a partnership and later as Siebenthal & Nelson, Inc. Mr. Siebenthal was in charge. The greenhouse establishment, conducted by Mr. Nelson, was a separate enterprise. Now that the Pierson establishment has been acquired, all the interests have been merged into the corporation. The Pierson store has been closed and the fixtures and trade transferred to the Siebenthal & Nelson store. With two greenhouse ranges at the back of this establishment, it is expected to increase the business materially in the season soon to open.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder

The Master Machine Florists Need to Save Coal

Place above water line of your boiler. Equalize the chambers with boiler pressure. The water must flow into your boiler with no energy and with a steady, even flow. Uses about 90% less steam than a boiler feed pump.

The Greatest Coal Saver Ever Offered the Steam Plant

This Farnsworth Duplex (Automatic) Boiler Feeder is the acme of simplicity. It is easy to understand, as there are no complicated parts. It will displace your piston type or centrifugal pump and save fuel, as it feeds boilers 330 deg. Fahr. or better. It is the master machine of the Farnsworth Closed System.

We solicit your inquiries and will be pleased to report on the success of our systems in plants of all kinds using steam.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder made better drying in paper mills possible, as well as increasing production in big mills in the United States, Canada and foreign countries.

The writer visited Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Fischer, of San Gabriel, after their fire and greatly admired the philosophic and cheerful way in which they have met their disaster. The freesia novelties were gems of the first water and Mrs. Fischer had most of them as safe as a mother holds her babe.

Paul Miller, of the California Floral Co., says that, in spite of the hot weather, they have lost little stock this year, careful buying and quick handling leading to this satisfactory result.

W. Armacost is looking forward to his annual vacation in the mountains. Mr. Armacost believes in getting away from the haunts of men, telephones and other evidences of civilization for a thorough rest and change.

FOLEY GREENHOUSES

Built for J. W. Bettendorf, Bettendorf, Iowa

WITHOUT doubt this is one of the finest greenhouses in the West, and its setting on the top of the river-bank bluff is ideal.

The house is divided into three compartments, the middle one of which, forty feet square, is used for palms. Miscellaneous stock is grown in the end compartments.

Rising majestically from the top of the bluff, this house, with its vitrified red brick foundation and service building, makes a fitting crown to the wonderfully attractive estate.

The Market.

The market conditions are about normal, with prices showing a slight decrease, while business for the month of July was substantially above that of a year ago. Asters have taken the place of carnations and are arriving in good quantity and quality, bringing $2 to $4 per hundred. Gladioli are in good supply at $3 to $8 per hundred. Roses are in excess of demand and have a wide range at $1 to $20 per hundred.

Horticultural Society.

Under the guidance of Superintendent of Parks Fred C. Greece, members of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, August 9, made an extensive trip through the nurseries and gardens of Roger Williams park, after which the society met in a short business session and elected twenty-five new members.

The party of sixty members and guests was conducted through the evergreen exhibits and the Arnold Arboretum, a collection of herbaceous plants imported from China by the well-known collector, E. H. Wilson. The excursion through the park was especially interesting to the horticulturists, since there are many exhibits there which may not be seen in any other park in the country.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Transient trade is now at a low mark. Many of those who are usually the best purchasers are on their vacations and those remaining in the city have flowers in their own gardens or purchase them only on rare occasions. There has been a good amount of funeral work for this season of the year and it has formed the bulk of the trade. The dull spell will probably continue for another month, when fall activities will begin to open up.

Various Notes.

No definite plans have been made as yet for an outing of the florists of the county this year, although for a number of years one has been held in the early part of August. It has been found difficult to find a satisfactory place to hold it this year and other things have interfered. While it is still possible that arrangements will be perfected for an outing in September, it is probable that the event will be omitted this year.

McLaughlin & Murphy, 181 Clinton avenue, report that there is a good deal of funeral work at the present time, but that there is little trade outside of that.

R. B. M.

BAY CITY, MICH.

The members of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society took a day's rest from their more or less arduous toil in and around the greenhouses and held their annual outing at the Winona beach, August 10.

The outing was worthy of its traditions and was a success in every way. Over 100 persons were present. There was a basket luncheon under the trees in view of the Saginaw bay. In the afternoon there were all sorts of entertainments, among which figured a snappy baseball game, which the Bay City team won, 5 to 1. Swimming was enjoyed by the young people, followed by games, in which many participated. There were children's, ladies' and young men's races, all of which Bay City won. To Saginaw's credit fell the balloon race. In the tug of war, after plowing up a considerable piece of lawn, the Bay Cityans pulled the Saginaw mum growers over to their side.

Everyone had a great time, except Martin Keit, who caught only the tail end of the outing on account of having sprays to make.

Better Than Putty
—and Why?

Federal Greenhouse Cements are proving so wonderfully efficient because they possess to a superlative degree just those essentials which provide the greatest service to the greenhouse owner.

A greenhouse cement, first of all, must be absolutely watertight and airtight; it must work readily with glass and metal or wood, adhering tenaciously under all weather conditions; it must possess enough elasticity to take up all strains, due to windstorms, etc., as well as the normal contraction and expansion of the glass, wood or metal; it must possess resistance against sudden blows, such as hailstones; it must, above all, possess endurance, that quality which makes it last over a period of years without deterioration.

Federal Greenhouse Cements perform these functions, as well as many others, better than any materials you have ever used; if you once try them you will never be satisfied with any other brand.

We recommend the black as most efficient and, by the way, 90% of the greenhouse owners use our Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 2, which is the black in a consistency suitable for use in the putty bulb.

The reason we recommend the black is because it is possible for us to use it as the primary base to certain pitches and gums, which possess marked elasticity and waterproofing qualities. Combining these gums and pitches, as we do, with suitable oils and reducing agents, and with high-grade asbestos fiber, produces cements which have an inherent strength absolutely defying weather and other conditions.

In making colored and white cements, which are more expensive than the blacks, it is necessary to use as pigments such materials as white lead, zinc, lithopone, barytes and similar materials. These pigments in themselves possess no waterproofing or other value except as metal and wood protectives. Cements made from them depend for their efficiency as greenhouse cements solely on the oils and other materials combined with them. Now, the oils which we use, together with asbestos fiber, which is a part of every one of our cements, enable us to make white and colored cements which are far better than the putties and other materials which you have hitherto used, and a good many of the greenhouse owners use them in preference to the black cement. We, however, urge you to use the black.

For repairing broken lights, no matter how badly they may be broken, we recommend our black paste Federal Elastic Cement. For roofing work and for covering the brick work of boiler settings we also recommend the paste consistency. In fact, the paste consistency is most advisable except where a thinner material is required in order to do work quickly and effectively.

Federal Greenhouse Cements are sold at very reasonable prices. Their great success has brought numerous imitations on the market.

Now is the time to start using Federal Greenhouse Cements. Glass is high and every other essential has risen to a degree making economies and conservation not only desirable but necessary. The use of Federal Greenhouse Cements will prove a step in the right direction and in a short time you will express your approval, as so many hundreds of others have done.

The Market.

The severe drought has hit outdoor flowers hard, except where water could be applied. The florists are feeling the effect of this in slightly greater calls for stock. Gladioli, asters and other garden stock are plentiful on the market.

Sales are slow, as is usual at this time of the year. Benching of carnations and other winter stock is going on rapidly.

Various Notes.

E. Meyer, for many years with the Minneapolis park board, leaves in the first part of September for Florida, to engage in nursery work.

F. F. Farar, W. C. Ruff and Mr. Hooker, of White Bear, are cutting some fine gladioli for the market in spite of the dry weather.

The Market.

Business was fair last week in some sections of the city, in spite of the tramway situation. As there were fewer people on the streets, those depending on their windows for trade suffered, whereas the larger uptown stores report a good business. There has been some funeral work. Good roses and carnations are still somewhat scarce. Gladioli are still good and the price is holding up well. Some good dahlias and centaureas are coming in now.

Various Notes.

A visit to the various growers indicates that fewer mums were planted this year. It has been a constant fight to keep down the webworm and at many places plants have been badly damaged. Among the roses Francis Scott Key is coming into favor again. Several of the larger establishments have planted this variety heavily this year. Key has especially shown its worth as a summer rose here.

George Brinker reports that his new light pink carnation, Denver, is making a fine showing this year.

S. Lundy, of the Boldt-Lundy Floral Co., is motoring to Yellowstone park.

Mr. Ahlas, representing the Ove Gnatt Co., of Laporte, Ind., was a visitor last week.

Frank Zenz has returned from Salt Lake City because of his wife's health.

C. Lengenfelder is now cutting from his new roses, Butterfly and Dunlop.

Mr. Warner, from Lamar, Colo., was here last week looking for a location.

R. E. H.

WATERBURY, CONN.

Business has been particularly quiet during the last two weeks.

Ryan & Powers have enlarged their store, put in new fixtures and painted it throughout in white enamel. Frank Rosa, the chauffeur of this firm's delivery car, met with an accident August 7; the car skidded onto the sidewalk, throwing him out and breaking his arm, hitting a small boy and damaging the car somewhat. The boy who was struck is recovering fast.

A new store has been opened on Center street under the name of Dean & Bario. Miss Dean worked for Dallas the Florist for a number of years. Miss Bario has been working in a local bank.

WOOD LICE IN HOUSES.

I should like to know how to combat a little gray bug that is on our carnation beds and also all over the walks and ground in our houses. When the bug is touched, it doubles itself into a ball. Our houses are damp; could that have any tendency to draw them?

B. G.—O.

The insect complained of is the common wood louse, often called sow bug and shot bug on account of its habit of rolling itself into a ball when disturbed. It is a scavenger and is found commonly where there is decayed wood or other vegetation. Once they infest a territory they will feed on the living tissue of plants and sometimes do great damage. Many different remedies have been used to exterminate them, all more or less successful. One of the most commonly used is a mixture of sugar and Paris green. We have also found Slug Shot helpful in destroying them. We have known a pair of ducks to clean them out of a house in short order. This is practical only in case raised benches are used. A. F. J. B.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Greensburg, Pa., is being represented at the S. A. F. Convention, at Cleveland, by Joseph Thomas, accompanied by members of his family, which includes six sons and six daughters, who are active assistants in what cannot fail to be, under such conditions, a flourishing firm. Additions to the range in the form of a garage with modern equipment, a rose pit 12x220 feet and a storage house for hydrangeas to be arranged on a deck principle, are in progress. The stock consists chiefly of cyclamens for Christmas, roses and hydrangeas for Easter and chrysanthemums for fall. Much of the sixty-five acres is devoted to outdoor stock for the Pittsburgh market, in addition to supplying the home store, which is an ornament to Greensburg.

• • • •

Edward Leitzman, of Latrobe, Pa., dropped business to go to Cleveland for a few days. Business has kept up well.

• • • •

McKeesport, Pa., is being represented by J. M. Johnston, proprietor of four stores in different towns, each trying to exceed the other in sales at the end of the business year.

• • • •

C. H. Treffenger, Van Wert, O., has gone to be with the crowd at Cleveland. Following a busy season, he feels that the time spent at the convention will be profitable. The Scharff brothers are also there.

• • • •

The Alpha Floral Co., of Uniontown, Pa., keeps up an attractive window display. The store faces the railroad station and attracts the eye of almost all the people who pass by.

• • • •

"Patience," observed Edward Hennon, of J. Hennon & Sons, Newcastle, Pa., "is indispensable in the retail florists' business. For example, only recently we booked an order for floral designs for a funeral that ran up into three figures and included a harp with seven strings, three of which were broken, illustrating the condition of the family connected with the deceased, and agates ajar with a streamer upon which were 109 letters by actual count. There is a big advantage," added Mr. Hennon, "in handling this class of trade; it is good money and allows great latitude in the choice of material and variety of coloring."

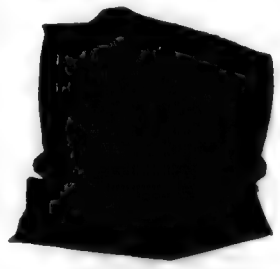
• • • •

W. J. Beck, Newcastle, Pa., observed that the name given their new begonia, Pride of Newcastle, apparently was most appropriate, for the sale of plants has exceeded the ability to keep pace with orders received.

• • • •

"Once we get out of the beaten path, we are careful to keep out," observed William Butz, Jr., of Butz Bros., Newcastle, Pa., referring more particularly to their method of keeping florists within convenient distance posted as to the condition of the orchid supply at the greenhouses. As a consequence, they have created a demand for what was a rarity in towns like Youngstown, for instance, one of the wealthiest for its size in the Union and really hungry for the service they are giving.

• • • •



John Orth, of McKeesport, Pa., a pioneer in the trade, went to mingle with the convention crowds at Cleveland.

Black Glazing Cement

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary —simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load same—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

Not Affected by Extreme Heat or Cold

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

FREE OFFER

To facilitate the application of our product we furnish the following apparatus free of charge:

With Each Barrel
2 Bulbers
1 Gun for filling bulbers

With Each Half-Barrel
1 Bulber
1 Gun for filling bulber

Lower Cost than White Putty

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

Greenhouse Builders

This is the open mortise joint used on most sash. It is called open; because it is open. It's always open to the weather.

Our Sash that last are made with blind mortise throughout. The bars are supported through the center with a strong iron rod. Not wood, but iron.

This shows you our blind mortise joint with its double shoulder and tight-lock face. No part of the tenon is exposed to the weather. No weather can get at its end wood. The double shoulder doubles its tight sticking features. The tight-lock face tightens all the tighter when the sash frame is twisted. The joint is tight at the start, and stays tight.

Some Sash Sense

End wood rots quicker than side wood when the weather gets a hack at it. Everybody knows that.

It is exactly why sash with open mortise joints open up their joints so soon, and go to the dogs.

Fire burns, and water is wet, and no amount of argument can prove it otherwise.

If a sash made a certain way, lasts; and one made an uncertain way doesn't; then no amount of arguing can prove the one that doesn't last, is as good as the one that does last.

In the old Peter Henderson houses at Jersey City, are some of our blind mortice frames, 3x6 feet sash, that are close to 40 years old.

On an estate at Stamford, Ct., are cold frame sash of ours still in use, that are 38 years old.

Hundreds of florists have sash of ours that are 20 years old, and still going strong.

We make our sash to last.

That reason and no other reason, is the reason why they last.

Read what it says under the pictures, and come to your own conclusions.

Send for prices.

A round rod (not wood) not only strengthens and supports the bars, but ties the sides of the sash together. The under edges of the bars and side are beveled to reduce shade to its limit.

Some sash have a cut-in wood center brace like this. Others use a round wood rod. One soon starts rotting around the cut-ins. The other isn't strong enough. In fact, neither one is.

Don't try this with other makes of sash, unless you want to see the joints open up.

It's a mighty good way to prove to yourself that ours stay tight.

This is the open mortise joint used on most sash. It is called open; because it is open. It's always open to the weather.

Our Sash that last are made with blind mortise throughout. The bars are supported through the center with a strong iron rod. Not wood, but iron.

This shows you our blind mortise joint with its double shoulder and tight-lock face. No part of the tenon is exposed to the weather. No weather can get at its end wood. The double shoulder doubles its tight sticking features. The tight-lock face tightens all the tighter when the sash frame is twisted. The joint is tight at the start, and stays tight.

Some Sash Sense

Fire burns, and water is wet, and no amount of argument can prove it otherwise.

If a sash made a certain way, lasts; and one made an uncertain way doesn't; then no amount of arguing can prove the one that doesn't last, is as good as the one that does last.

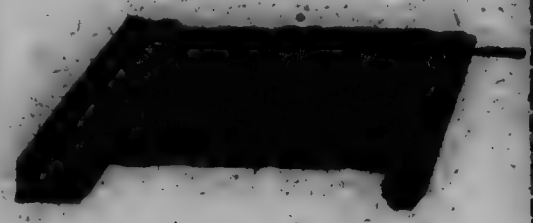
In the old Peter Henderson houses at Jersey City, are some of our blind mortice frames, 3x6 feet sash, that are close to 40 years old.

On an estate at Stamford, Ct., are cold frame sash of ours still in use, that are 68 years old.

Hundreds of florists have sash of ours that are 20 years old, and still going strong.

We make our sash to last.

That reason and no other reason, is the reason why they last.



Read what it says under the pictures, and come to your own conclusions.

Send for prices.

End wood rots quicker than side wood when the weather gets a hack at it. Everybody knows that.

It is exactly why sash with open mortise joints open up their joints so soon, and go to the dogs.

A round rod (not wood) not only strengthens and supports the bars, but ties the sides of the sash together. The under edges of the bars and side are beveled to reduce shade to its limit.

Some sash have a cut-in wood center brace like this. Others use a round wood rod. One soon starts rotting around the cut-ins. The other isn't strong enough. In fact, neither one is.

Don't try this with other makes of sash, unless you want to see the joints open up.

It's a mighty good way to prove to yourself that ours stay tight.

WIRE
Manufacture

By the installation of special machinery, which has been designed and built for us during the past year, we have revolutionized the manufacture of Florists' wire frames. Heretofore the making of wire designs has been practically all hand work—slow and expensive. By means of the special machines, build to our order for this work, we are now able to perform practically every operation by machinery at greatly increased speed—and machine-made frames are better made than hand-made frames, perfect in shape and size.

Still another great improvement is dipping each frame

Better Quality—Better Deliveries

We have reduced the labor cost to a minimum, but we are not yet able to wholly control prices—they now depend with us on the cost of wire. The wire we are using cost us considerably less than the present market, but still higher prices for wire are predicted in the fall and winter—so it would be wise to buy now, while our prices are at the lowest in years. We have in a solution of tin. The tin solders every joint—every place is sealed where two wires join or cross. It adds tremendously to the strength of the frames and at the same time makes every frame look as though nickeled. Tinning prevents rust.

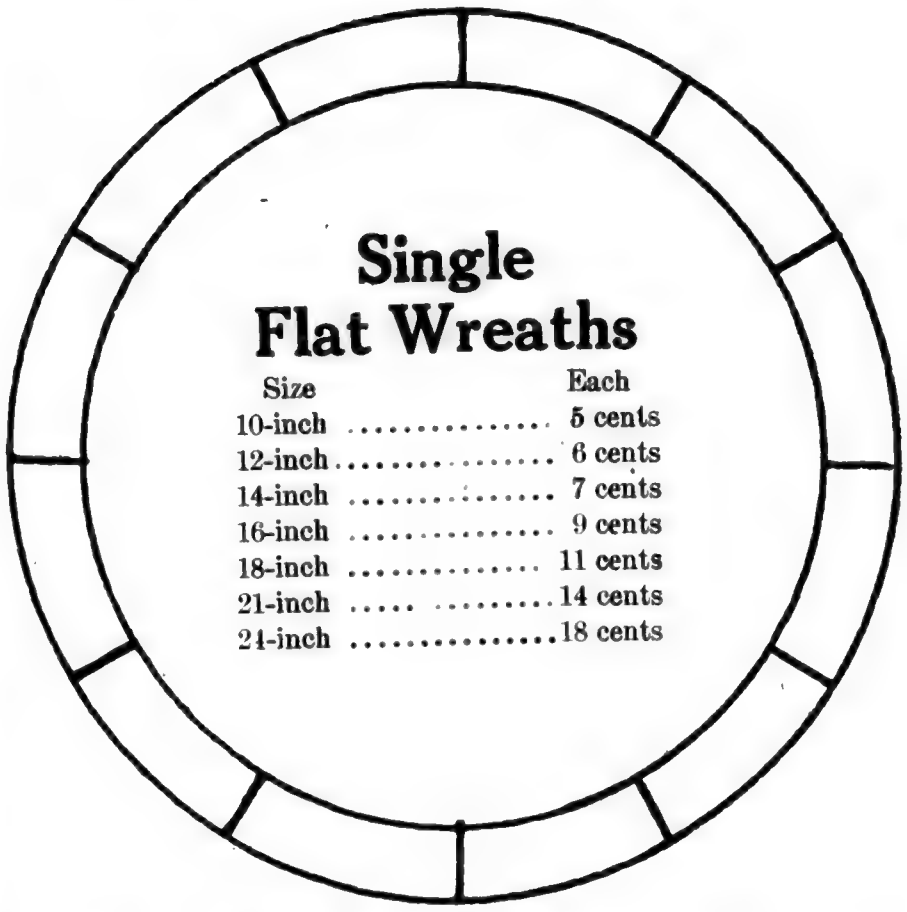
Our great improvements in the methods of manufacture enable us to offer the trade three important advantages:



—Better Prices

reduced manufacturing costs to the lowest point ever known and our raw material won't be cheaper —so present prices are rock bottom. Order a season's supply today. It will save money. You'll be glad later on, if you take this advice.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

GROWERS' BODY BEGINS GROWTH

No occurrence at a florists' convention has been greeted so spiritedly as was the decision to organize the National Flower Growers' Association at Cleveland last week. The organization was launched on a definite basis and will become a powerful factor in this trade when its machinery is running.

CONCEIVED at the meeting of the American Carnation Society at Chicago last January, the National Flower Growers' Association had its birth last week at Cleveland at 4:15, August 19. It is a robust child, of lusty character and with promise of rapid growth. There was a good deal of travail, but the outcome was quite favorable. Indeed, it never appeared for a moment to be anything else.

The ballroom of the Hotel Hollenden was filled with growers Thursday afternoon, August 19, when F. C. W. Brown, temporary president of the organization, opened the meeting with a statement of the purpose of the gathering. After J. F. Ammann delivered the secretary's report, supplementing that printed in last week's Review with a stirring appeal, roll was called of growers representing locals in different cities of the country, list of whom was given last week. Representatives of these local bodies gave the views in their various communities regarding the proposed organization. W. J. Keimel and Joseph Kohout spoke for Chicago; W. J. Pilcher for St. Louis, E. A. Harvey and James Heacock for Philadelphia, James Cole for Springfield, Ill., Carl Hagenburger for Cleveland; Robert Simpson, Wallace R. Pierson, A. M. Henshaw and A. L. Miller for New York; H. B. Brookins for Buffalo; A. F. J. Baur, Anders Rasmussen and Earl Mann for Indiana, and W. A. Clarke for Pittsburgh.

After these speeches there was considerable discussion as to the aims and objects of the association and its form of organization. Secretary Ammann frequently assisted with suggestions and explanations. E. A. Harvey, Philip Breitmeyer, F. R. Pierson, J. A. Manda, George Asmus, Thomas Roland, W. R. Pierson, Walter Amling and A. M. Henshaw participated. As the discussion progressed, the ideas of all were clarified. The small fear some voiced that the new organization might be construed as one in opposition to wholesalers and retailers was quelled by Thomas Roland's statement that all three were in the same boat and none could rock it without periling himself as well as the others, and by A. M. Henshaw's assertion that the wholesalers felt no alarm at the growers' organization.

The motion before the house, that a national body be formed, was at length called for and by a chorus of ayes that shook the ceiling was carried at 4:15 p. m. Cheers and continued strong applause greeted this initial step toward perfecting the growers' association.

Then occurred some discussion as to the next step. It was felt the body was not quite in shape to take definite form, but a need of real action was in all minds. Instead of continuing the organization committee, it was decided finally to adopt the constitution prepared, with the omission of the paragraphs referring to dues—article 8, section 1, and article 10, section 3—which are to be reconsidered by the new executive board, and proceed with the election of officers.

The press of business compelled Wallace R. Pierson to decline Joseph Kohout's nomination. So William J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill., was unanimously chosen as president, and E. Allan Peirce, of Waltham, Mass., as vice-president. The secretary-treasurer is selected by the board of directors. The position is now filled by J. F. Ammann.

The board of directors includes the president and vice-president and thirteen directors. These were nominated by the various local bodies of growers represented each naming a man. Those selected are: Otto Amling, Maywood, Ill.; W. J. Pilcher, St. Louis; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Chas. H. Plumb, Detroit; James W. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.; Walter Amling, Pana, Ill.; Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo; Earl H. Mann, Richmond, Ind.; Joseph Merritt, Baltimore; W. A. Kennedy, Milwaukee; J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.

To provide the sinews of war, thirty-one growers responded to the proposal of Wallace R. Pierson to lend the treasury of the organization $100 each until it should receive income through the means of collection planned. These were: Thomas Roland, A. M. Henshaw, Carl Hagenburger, H. B. Brookins, Earl H. Mann, C. E. De Wever, Joseph H. Hill, W. A. Rowe, E. Allan Peirce, Robert Simpson, Philip Breitmeyer, J. J. Hess, J. S. Wilson, Guy Bate, Herbert Bate, David J. Scott, Adolph Poehlmann, S. J. Goddard, W. J. Palmer, Paul Amling, G. R. Scheimel, Louis J. Daut, Hembreiker & Cole, Walter Amling, A. L. Miller, Walter Reimels, F. C. W. Brown and J. F. Ammann.

The final act of the meeting was a rising vote of thanks to J. F. Ammann for his arduous work in perfecting the organization in the last six months.

CONVENTION CLOSING

S. A. F. TO PUSH PUBLICITY.

Low Funds Not Deterrent.

In a session that approached in its enthusiasm the meetings of the famous Billy Sunday, the S. A. F. on the afternoon of August 18 determined to stick to its national publicity campaign and by sheer persistence find a way to carry it on.

To stir the audience in the ballroom of the Hotel Hollenden to such warmth, a speaker admirably suited to the occasion headed the program. S. R. Latshaw, advertising director of the Butterick Publications, New York, sought to stop again and again when he felt he had exceeded the time allotted him, but was urged by his hearers to continue. He pointed out the achievements of cooperative publicity in other fields, enumerating about twenty products so advertised on a national scale. He indicated the problems which they faced and which, in fact, the S. A. F. faces, and showed the vast opportunities ahead if those problems could be solved. At the conclusion of his address Mr. Latshaw was warmly cheered when the members of the society rose to give him a vote of thanks.

Though Major P. F. O'Keefe declared Mr. Latshaw had so thoroughly stolen his thunder that there was little left of his prepared remarks to be given, he proceeded to explain a good many points in a way that held the close interest of all. He outlined a way to raise funds, which was given in his address published in The Review last week.

The Society's Status.

These addresses and the report of Henry Penn placed the situation before the society. The members had been introduced to it the day before, when H. P. Knoble, as chairman of the finance committee, had made his report. At that time, speaking extemporaneously, he explained that he would merely state the facts. These were that the society, because of the appropriations of $5,000 each in the last two years to the national publicity campaign and the inclusion of the national flower show fund in the general fund, now faced a deficit covering the years from 1916 to the present. This fact, he said, did not impair the society's financial status. The condition was due to the inability of the society to hold the St. Louis national flower show, which would naturally have added $5,000 to $7,000 to the society's exchequer, and to the large accretion of life members in 1919, which added greatly to the permanent fund, but reduced the income by dues to the general fund, since all life membership dues go to the former, while annual membership dues go to the latter. The permanent fund jumped to about $53,000 in the last year, when over 1,000 life members were added at the old rate of $25.

In view of these facts no action was taken to approve the executive board's recommendation that $7,500 be appropriated for the national publicity fund in 1920.

What to Do.

Just what was to be done was not clear to anyone. George Asmus, however, in a stirring speech that aroused everyone present, asserted that, though the committee was at the end of its resources, florists could rest assured that it would not quit. The campaign, he declared, would be carried on. The new growers' organization offered a ray of hope ahead and in the meantime those who had carried on the campaign would not stop working. He did not believe that those who had thus far contributed to the fund should be asked for any more money. He thought florists who had not adequately supported the campaign should be called on and the $13,000 due in unpaid subscriptions should be paid by those who pledged it.

How strong was the feeling for the campaign was shown by the warm support voiced in the speeches which followed, by Robert C. Kerr, Max Schling, J. F. Ammann, Philip Breitmeyer, W. F. Gude and Charles H. Grakelow.

Attention was brought to the fact that of the 500 billboards contracted for by the S. A. F., between 300 and 400 remain unsold. It was urged that owners of greenhouses everywhere in the country put up one of these signs. The price, $50, is so low that no florist need hesitate in the belief that he is getting a bargain.

The plan, insofar as definite measures were forecast, to be followed by the committee is to carry out the present orders for advertising, but to suspend during the late fall if funds are not forthcoming. In the meantime every effort will be made to secure subscriptions from new contributors and to obtain payment of the $13,000 unpaid pledges.

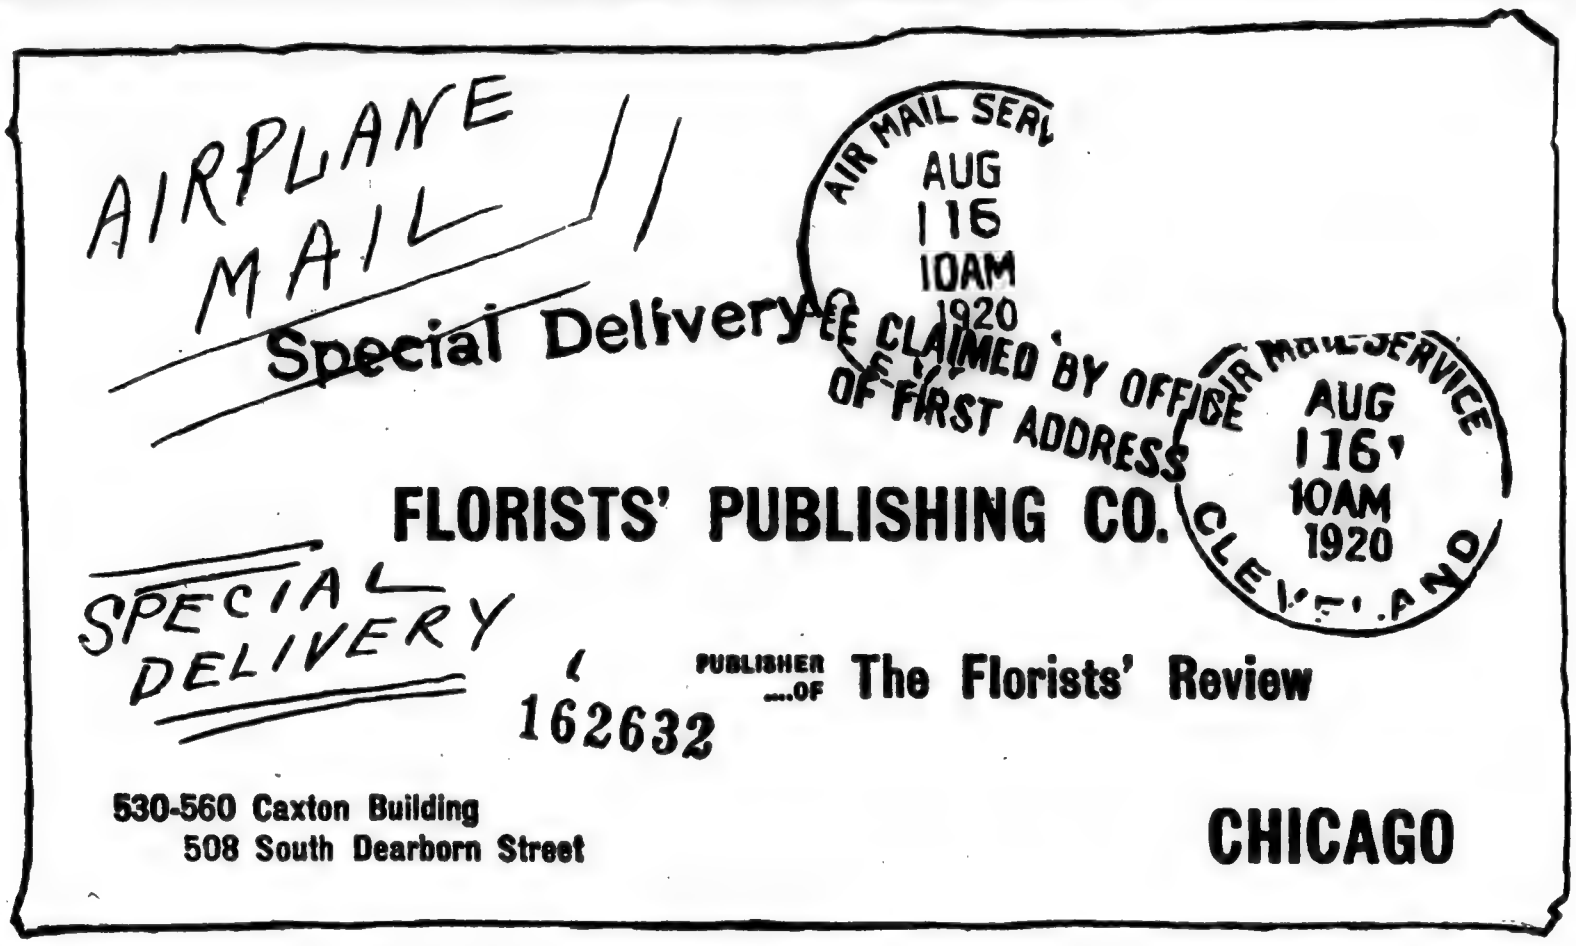
Experts Talk on Coal.

For the closing session on the society's own program, Thursday morning, August 19, two experts held the attention of the members with talks that were of great interest. John W. Love, of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, gave an outline of the coal situation, revealing the confusion that exists at present and makes predictions impossible.

He was followed by an even more interesting talk by John R. Herron, the head of a firm of heating engineers in Cleveland. He stated in opening that the usual waste in heating plants is about thirty per cent and occasionally as much as sixty per cent. They can, however, be made sixty to eighty per cent efficient, instead of the forty to seventy per cent represented by those figures.

The causes of poor heating efficiency, he stated, were six: Poor coal, poor water, poor firing, leaky settings, dirty tubes and waste of returns. Florists are familiar with the varying grades of coal and require no enlightenment on that point. Poor water is caused by varying degrees of hardness, which can be treated by several methods with more or less success. The difference between good firing and poor firing and their effects is also clear to florists. By remedying leaky settings, Mr. Herron stated, efficiency may be raised as much as twenty-five per cent. By hand cleaning, or, better, by mechanical cleaners, dirty tubes may be eliminated and efficiency thereby increased five per cent. The returning of steam to the boilers aids in raising boiler efficiency also, as much as from two to twelve per cent.

Reports Presented.



John G. Esler said that 318 ballots had been cast at the polls. The officers were, of course, unanimously elected. The ballot on directors was as follows: Thomas Joy, 201; H. G. Berning, 151; Carl Hagenburger, 156; Harry Papworth, 124. So Thomas Joy and Carl Hagenburger were declared elected.

Thereupon Thomas Roland, elected next year's president, made a speech of thanks that was much applauded.

George Asmus delivered his report on the national flower show as it appeared in last week's issue of The Review.

The delayed report of the committee on the development of American products was presented by F. R. Pierson, the chairman. He called attention to the opportunity and obligation placed before the trade by Quarantine No. 37 and asked that suggestions be sent the committee as to what had been and what could be grown in various parts of this country, so that investigation might be made.

In supplementing Mr. Pierson's report, E. G. Hill talked interestingly, but abbreviated his remarks because the hour was late. Charles L. Baum told of the azaleas and rhododendrons that grow wild in the Appalachian mountains and stated that he was sure all bulbs could be grown in Tennessee, just as he had already produced some of them.

Want Change in Quarantine.

Mr. Pierson then presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

That restrictions regarding the importation of new plants and plants imported for the purpose of propagation only be altered to permit examination at the port of entry, so that plants may be received alive by the importer in order that American horticulture may be kept abreast of other nations. Since the importer signs a bond guaranteeing his compliance with any regulations the Federal Horticultural Board may suggest, it would only be fair that in the case of soft-wooded and delicate plants a reasonable amount of soil be permitted around the roots, as otherwise it is of no use attempting to keep America up to date, and many rare and valuable plants must be lost to American horticulture.

We further suggest that extreme care be taken regarding fumigation in the case of soft-wooded plants, so that their life may not be endangered.

We further suggest that entry should be made at the ports of New York, Boston, Seattle and San Francisco, so that east and west may be equally provided for.

Ask Government's Aid.

An appeal was voted to be made to the Secretary of Agriculture for help in solving greenhouse problems by the adoption of the following resolution addressed to that official, presented by W. J. Pilcher:

In view of the great extent of the greenhouse business, which amounted to over $34,000,000 for the growers alone in 1910 and which undoubtedly amounts to over $70,000,000 a year now, exclusive of the business done by wholesalers and retailers; and

In view of the perishable character of the crops, the artificial conditions under which they are grown, the care required to maintain those conditions and the chances of great loss if any detail is neglected; and

In view of the fact that practically no reports of investigation of the fundamental principles involved in greenhouse management are available,

We, the members of the Society of American Florists, respectfully urge you to take up at once the study of some of our important problems in the hope of finding an early solution that will benefit the trade in all parts of the country. There are problems in connection with the construction and heating of greenhouses, preparation of soils, as well as cultural methods, which if studied to the end that definite information were available, would be likely in many cases to revolutionize current practices by showing better or more economical methods.

Closing the convention, the committee on final resolutions, composed of J. F. Ammann, A. T. De La Mare, R. Vincent, Jr., J. S. Wilson and J. G. Gammage, expressed thanks to the Cleveland florists for their hard work and excellent entertainment and to the officials of Cleveland for their hospitality.

PLEASURE WITH BUSINESS.

The President's Reception.

The ballroom of the Hotel Hollenden was an excellent place for the president's reception Tuesday evening, August 17. When the orchestra struck up at about 8:30 a large line was waiting to meet the guests in the receiving line. Frank Ritzenthaler and Carl Hagenburger did the work of introduction. In the line were President and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Merrick. After the long line had filed past, dancing commenced and, despite the warm evening, the floor was filled till the closing hour.

Other Entertainment.

In addition to the president's reception Tuesday evening, with which Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy's reception, as president of the Ladies' S. A. F., was included, a get-together party for the ladies was held in the new lounge room at the Hollenden Wednesday evening at 8:30 p. m. There were refreshments, harpist numbers and other entertainment features.

On Wednesday afternoon fifty automobiles were provided for the ladies for a trip through the parks and the residential districts, with a stop at the Shaker Heights Club for luncheon. The entire trip took about four hours and was quite enjoyable.

The Cleveland entertainment committee was composed of Frank J. Ritzenthaler, chairman; Mrs. Chas. J. Graham, Miss Ruth Mercer, Mrs. Anna Friedley, Mrs. H. P. Knoble, Miss Emily Dunn, Mrs. Walter Priest, Mrs. Charles Russell, Mrs. Fred Steinbrenner.

At the exhibition hall a bureau was maintained to provide visitors with automobiles gratis for trips about the city to stores and greenhouses, a service for which visitors were highly grateful to the Cleveland florists. The committee in charge was composed of H. P. Merrick, Albert B. Barber, Charles J. Graham, S. N. Pentecost and L. F. Darnell.

S. A. F. REPORT BY AIRPLANE.

The first use of the new airplane mail service in speeding reports to a florists' publication occurred last week, when news from the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland was sent to the office of The Review at Chicago by this route. By this means the time of the mail's journey between the two cities was cut from nine hours by train to about three hours by airplane, or one-third of the former.

This service has been in existence only a few months. The mail is carried by flyers from New York to Chicago and the reverse every day. Recently similar connection between Chicago and Omaha and between Chicago and Minneapolis has been established. The longest journey, however, is made by the airplanes between New York and Chicago, which stop at Cleveland. The flyers leave at 6:30 a. m. and arrive at their destination in mid-afternoon, 2:30 p. m. in New York and 3:30 in Chicago. The last leg of the western flight is from Cleveland to Chicago and occupies about three hours.

Since the flying fields are on the outskirts of the city, the mail is delayed until after business hours unless it bears a special delivery stamp. At present the service is in an experimental stage and its usefulness for business purposes will depend upon the schedule, if one can be maintained, at night.

A special cancellation stamp is used to mark airplane mail, as can be seen from the envelope reproduced on page 19. If you get a letter by airplane mail, you will know it by the cancellation stamp. The postage is the same as on ordinary mail. The stamps on the envelope that carried S. A. F. convention news to The Review are removed, since United States statute forbids the reproduction of our country's postage stamps.

TRADE EXHIBITS.

Largest on Record.

When all was said and done, Secretary Young stated that whereas 17,000 square feet of exhibition space had been the largest total sold hitherto, at Chicago in 1912, this year the figure exceeded 17,500. It is to be remembered, also, that the rate is fifty per cent larger this year than in 1912. The number of exhibitors was close to 100 on the convention floor.

Those who staged exhibits after the report was sent for last week's Review were as follows:

J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind.

Some fine-looking cyclamens in 3-inch to 5-inch pots graced the tables of the J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind. A large photograph and a water color sketch of the range, Davis Gardens, showed where they grew.

Domoto Bros., San Francisco, Cal.

After eight days in an express car without refrigerator service, the blooms of chrysanthemums, asters, hydrangeas, rubrum lilies and strawflowers that arrived from Domoto Bros., San Francisco, the last day of the convention were in remarkably fine condition. The mums were Early Frost and Chrysolora. The hydrangeas were a new variety of the firm's own, called Domotoni. There were potted Japanese dwarf cedars, no more than twelve to eighteen inches high, though said to be many years old.

Florists' Publicity Service Bureau, Chicago.

Adjoining the official S. A. F. sanctum, meaning Secretary Young's desk, was the headquarters of the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau, Chicago. The large S. A. F. billboard was the background and on the desk was a slogan sign with electric light flashing apparatus, a new device for the retailer's window.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, Detroit.

Near Secretary John Young's official quarters the F. T. D. had its quarters, for the reception of possible members and the transaction of the association's increasing activities.

Roman J. Irwin, New York.

Literature and price lists regarding his offerings furnished the sole decorations of Roman J. Irwin's space.

Lindley Box & Paper Co., Marion, Ind.

The regular line of the Lindley Box & Paper Co., Marion, Ind., was shown by a number of sample boxes, on which appeared the names of florists whose well known names furnished ample evidence of the excellent trade enjoyed by this company. Gray, green and white boxes were exhibited and the page advertisement in The Review served as price list.

Newton Floral Co., Newton, Kan.

Photographs of the new seedling geranium, Kansas, were shown by the Newton Floral Co., Newton, Kan. This pink dwarf double geranium grows, it is stated, as many as eleven blooms in a 5-inch pot. It is reported to be especially good for pot culture. Plants will be on sale in the fall of 1921 and the following spring.

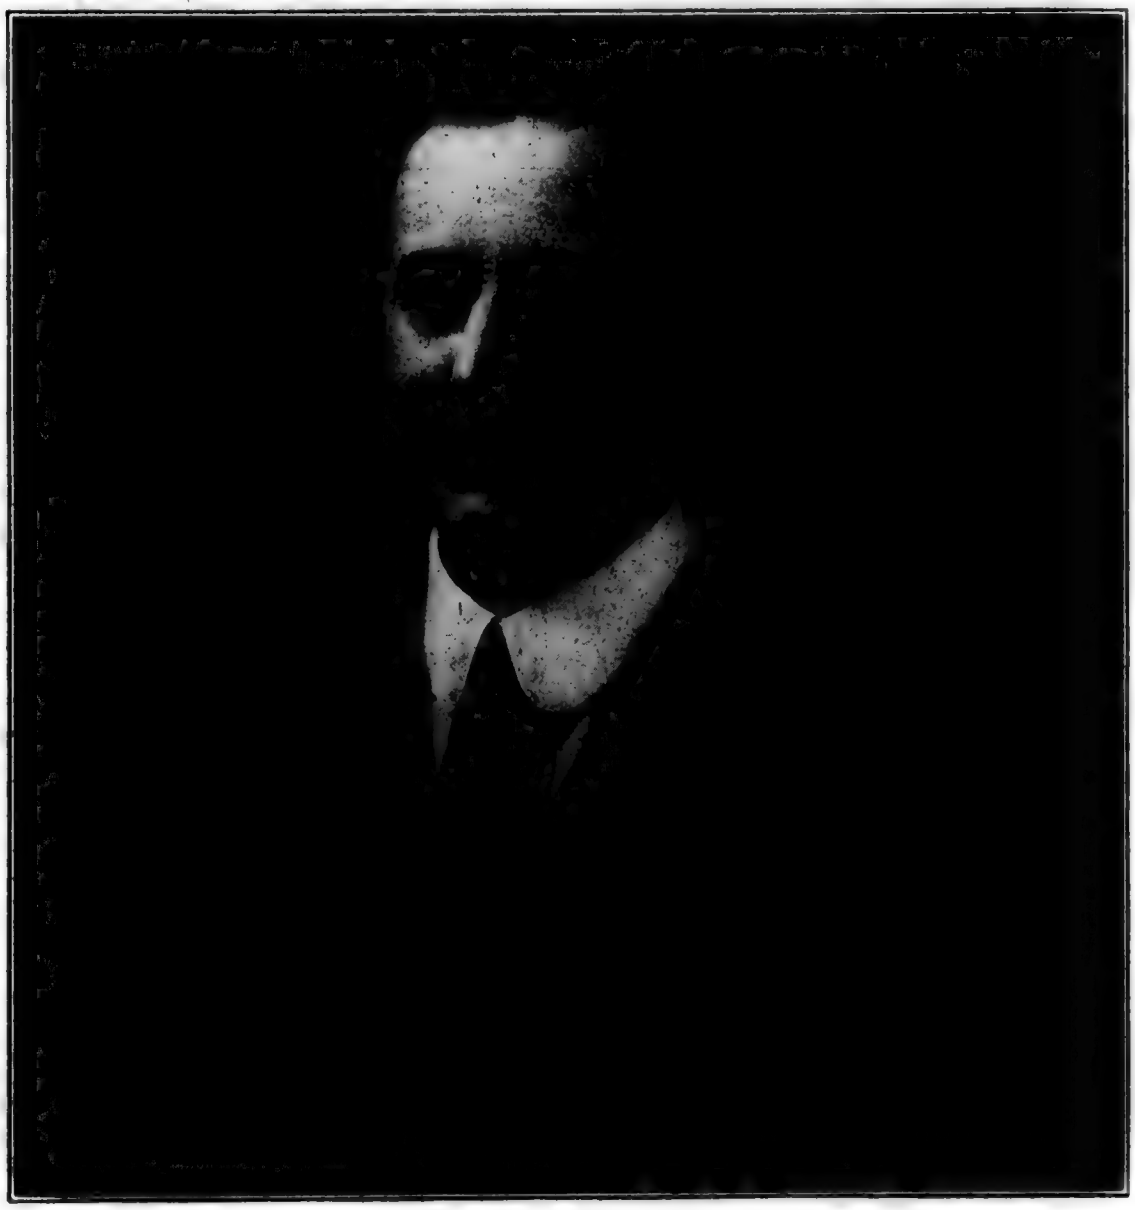
W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y.

On the F. T. D. table was a vase of the new summer and winter violet, St. Paulina's, which is to be sent out next spring by W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y., and J. Gammage & Sons, London, Ont. It is a pleasing color and reported to be a real acquisition.

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Railroad delay prevented the arrival till the last day of F. R. Pierson's exhibit, from Tarrytown, N. Y. This comprised some excellent specimens of ferns in various sizes, among them Victory, compacta and elegantissima.

Quality Brands Co., Cleveland.



How the glazing compound, Vitaplastic, makes glass stick was shown at the exhibit of the Quality Brands Co., Cleveland, not only by literature and photographs, but also by a section of sash. The gun for applying it and the new machine to fill the guns were there for inspection also. Roofing material and greenhouse paint are others of the firm's products.

Frank A. Volz, Cincinnati, O.

Colored photographs showed the form and qualities of Frank A. Volz's double cinerarias, which he thinks will be an acquisition for the trade's Easter sales.

White Bros., Medina, N. Y.

AWARDS TO TRADE EXHIBITS.

Judges Have Hard Task.

The judges of the trade exhibits had a big job to cover in most sections, though not in all. In sections A, B and F, including plants, cut flowers, bulbs, seeds and garden requisites, the judges were Irwin Bertermann, George Bate and Thomas Joy. In sections E and G, including florists' supplies and miscellaneous exhibits, E. A. Fetters, Robert C. Kerr and Charles E. Russell were the judges. In sections C and D, comprising boilers and heating apparatus and greenhouse structures, Joseph H. Hill, E. Allan Peirce and Robert Simpson officiated.

In the plant section, honorable mention was awarded to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia; Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa.; W. A. Manda, Inc., South Orange, N. J., and Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O. A certificate of merit was awarded the Robert Craig Co. on Dracæna Longii. The Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., and Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., were highly commended on the production of forcing shrubbery.

The committee recommended that a bronze medal be given the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., on the new cattleya hybrid, Memoria Roehrs Lowe, a cross between Cattleya hybrida Prince Edward and C. Dowiana, which was flowered and exhibited for the first time. It is a pure yellow petaled and sepaled hybrid cattleya. This recommendation must be passed upon by the executive board before the medal can be awarded.

Cut Flower Section.

In the cut flower section honorable mention was awarded the W. E. Kirchhoff Co., Pembroke, N. Y., on some exceptionally fine blooms of Gladiolus Golden Measure, Glory of Pembroke and Mrs. Dr. Norton.

Honorable mention was given the Wayside Gardens Co., Mentor, O., on their production of primulinus hybrids, and to Ralph E. Huntington, Painesville, O., on seedling No. 457, which the judges named The President, and on some specimen blooms of Purple Glory and Orange Glory.

"Creditable exhibits of gladiolus blooms," stated the judges, "were shown by the National Bulb Farms, Benton Harbor, Mich.; American Bulb Co., Chicago; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, and the United Bulb Co., Mount Clemens, Mich."

"Baum's, Knoxville, Tenn.," read the report, "had some blooms of their new seedling, Wilhelmina Gude, also an instructive exhibit of rubrum and candidum lily and gladiolus bulbs, which were grown on their Tennessee farm. This gives an idea of what can be done with these items in this country."

Other Awards.

For their exhibits of bulbs and garden requisites, the American Bulb Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, A. Henderson & Co. and the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, and the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, were highly commended.

Of the supplies exhibits the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, received a certificate of merit on the "very artistic display of their merchandise." The same award was given the Bergmann-Koropp Co., Chicago. Honorable mention went to the S. S. Pennock Co., A. L. Randall Co., Joseph E. Neidinger Co., Alabama Evergreen Co., Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Ove Gnatt Co. and George B. Hart.

A certificate of merit was awarded the Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O., and the White Co., Cleveland. The following were highly commended: Shaw monolithic back arch, manufactured by the Cyclone Grate-Bar Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; the Cyclone soil shredder, of H. Weber & Sons Co., Oakland, Md., and the Hulson Grate Co., Keokuk, Ia. Honorable mention was given the soil grinder of Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, and the greenhouse of the Lord & Burnham Co.

NEW PRESIDENT OF S. A. F.

The newly elected president of the Society of American Florists, Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., was born in 1863 in Cheshire, England. There he served as gardener on private estates and in nurseries in various parts of the country. He came to this country in 1884. The first seven years he spent in working on both private and commercial places. In 1891 he began business for himself at Wenham, Mass., where he now has twenty-one houses, in which are grown pot plants of the highest quality. At Revere, Mass., he has 10,000 square feet of glass devoted to cut flowers. Mr. Roland's exhibits of acacias at eastern shows have won him particular fame.

Davenport, Ia.—A special prize of $10 for the amateur who exhibited the best plant or flower was offered by the Tri-City Florists' Association in addition to the regular prizes offered for amateur exhibits at the Mississippi valley fair and exposition August 16 to 21. R. W. C. Rohlfs acted as superintendent of the floricultural section at the fair.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

LAST week were given in The Review the names of those who registered during the earlier part of the convention. The separation of the meeting and exhibition places made the work of compiling a complete list less easy, particularly on an occasion when the attendance was so large. On the final day of the convention the number of florists who came in for a brief visit was exceptionally large, due, perhaps, to the great number of towns within a short automobile ride of Cleveland. Though they were scattered and formed no tremendous crowds in exhibition or meeting hall, the visitors were in all probability more numerous than at any preceding convention.

HEADS GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

W. J. Keimel, elected president of the National Flower Growers' Association last week at Cleveland, was born at Stettin, Germany, September 7, 1872. He began as an apprentice with F. Geusen, at Gartz, Germany, October 11, 1886. He arrived in the United States June 2, 1888, first working for Smeeton & Coleman, at Little Rock, Ark., and then for W. L. Smith, at Aurora, Ill., in 1890. In 1893 he entered the employ of Bassett & Washburn and in 1896 went east, where he worked for L. A. Noe, at Madison, N. J., and Dean & Co., at Little Silver, N. J. Then he worked back to the west, by way of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, and Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill. In 1908 he formed Wendland & Keimel, Inc., of which he became treasurer and general manager in 1913. He was married in 1902 and has four children.

Mr. Keimel is a member of all Masonic orders. He is a past president of the Chicago Florists' Club and of the Illinois State Florists' Association. He is a life member and has served as a director of the S. A. F.

SCHOOL GARDENS

SCHOOL GARDENS REPORT.

[The report of Benjamin Hammond, chairman of the school gardens committee, presented at the Cleveland convention August 17.]

The city of Cleveland stands as one of the first cities in the developing of school gardening, training the growing child in the way of practical usefulness and beauty. In this work there has been a great development in recent years all over our country and the florists' business has been one which has aided in extending the efforts of school work in plant growing for beauty and neatness.

The vegetable garden affords practical food supply of no small amount and the use of small parcels of ground has added an estimated value amounting to millions of dollars to the food supply of the nation.

To encourage this work, your committee has sent the society's pledge of its members. The S. A. F. has realized for thirty years past the importance of this work and as far as means would permit has tried to place itself on record to the effect that its members in every community would assist the school workers to develop the local work. To each commissioner of education of every state or territory we have sent notice to this effect, also to each local school and board of trustees in every town where a member of this society lived. This embraced a national field, from Quebec to San Diego.

St. Louis is one city of the first class which has done practical work that is in evidence by its results in every section of the city where an observer goes.

The window boxes in the great city of New York, where population is crowded into the most congested space from Harlem to Franklin square, are in evidence at this time with the blooming colors of a few plants, showing that humanity under adverse conditions appreciates the flowers. In a ride from Boston to the Hudson river by daylight through villages and small cities, small gardens and nicely kept front yards were in evidence all along the line.

At Beacon, on the Hudson, in New York state, over 600 scholars in the four public schools took home garden cards, which carried certain prizes for flowers, vegetables, roses and well kept grass plots. To judge these is a big job. The men who gave help were florists. The effect of this work is seen in little spots and bits of ground as well as in the larger yards.

The Department of Agriculture, at Washington, has taken this garden work up and is issuing considerable illustrated literature with practical advice therein.

Quebec, Toronto and other Canadian cities are working hard in this line, with good results of practical utility.

Its Place in National Life.

The character of any nation depends upon the training of its children and this garden work has far-reaching effects in building up good taste, neatness and industrious habits. In a great many places local societies are important factors, but certainly there is no trade or business which can do more to encourage this useful and beneficial service than can that of the professional florist. Go where you may and if you find a florists' establishment, with its fine sample of well kept flower beds, it leaves a feeling that you would like one similar.

This is a business which brings to the homes of the community pleasure and beauty. It is an important factor for civilized well-being and what is done to encourage the growing child in this direction is practical wisdom and money well spent.

The S. A. F. is a growing factor for improving the well-being of the people.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

AT THE S. A. F. CONVENTION.

A group of salesmen, the advance guard of the profession attending the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland, were observed by the police officer on guard to be wearing gems computed by him to be worth many thousands. The explanation by one of the fortunate wearers was that attractiveness, whether in human or magazine form, was essential to the welfare of the business. Said one of the most successful of the craft, "While our prospective victim's optics are riveted upon our sparklers, our minds, apparently subconscious owing to the fact of the constant wearing of the gems, are really actively studying the receptiveness of the intended customer." Whether exactly so or not, the sequel proved that, taken on the whole, sales were satisfactory. Criticism there always is, and this exhibition was no exception to the rule, evidently with abundant cause.

Among the familiar faces reminding one of bygone days was S. O. Butterfield, of Oklahoma City, formerly a leader in floricultural journalism, now a leader in the legislature, who has struck oil. Which reminds one that Dana R. Herron, of Olean, N. Y., was endeavoring to have some of the craft share with him in some oil stocks he had for disposal and with the sale of which he hopes to benefit the several interested parties, who, for the nonce, placed coal as of secondary importance.

W. E. Cahill, representing Roman J. Irwin, New York, gladdened the hearts of the boys by his presence, having almost entirely recovered from the effects of a collision, which, being a rear-end one, "Billy" failed to see in time to avoid being almost knocked out.

Herman Bartsch, of the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., arrived in time to give his impressions of the way Hall & Robinson, Montreal, are growing cyclamens. Something unusual may be the outcome of his visit, of which more may be heard later on.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, Mass., viewing the fine specimens of cyclamens and other plants at the exhibition, observed that the building bee was buzzing louder than ever in his head.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, observed that it was not the possibility that the railroad company might confiscate the boiler, owing to scarcity of rolling stock, but rather the uncertainty of transportation for a positive date that kept the usual boiler at home.

Joseph Traudt, of Canajoharie, N. Y., in the course of conversation, mentioned the visit of the Albany Florists' Club to his place August 7. About sixty-five, including ladies, were present. It goes without saying all had an enjoyable time.

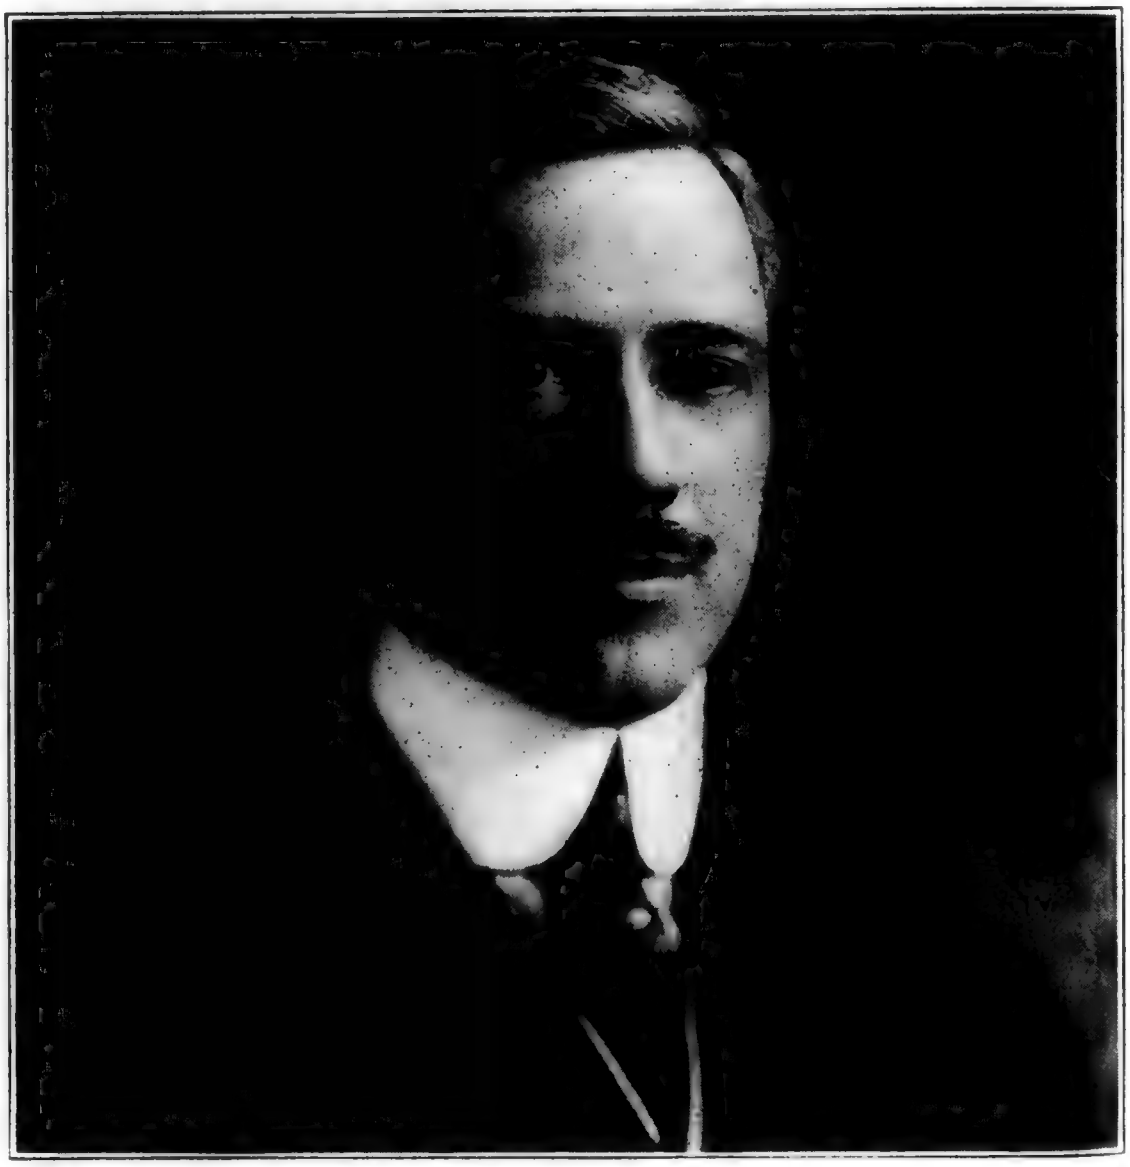
Sherman Offerle, of Warren, Pa., was able to be with the crowd at the convention, having just left the Lakeside hospital, Cleveland, where he spent several weeks, an unwilling patient.

"Is the artificial displacing the natural product?" asked Proprietor Cannon, of the Quality Flower Shop, Stamford, Conn., as he glanced over the exhibition on entering the hall.

Among the natural attractions were the Lilium formosum exhibited by the American Bulb Co., Chicago, and jealously guarded by I. Rosnosky, and the Holland bulbs of exhibition size imported and rushed through by the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, exciting the curiosity of the many and the cupidity of some. H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, showed some miniature Dutch hyacinth bulbs, on which John Bochmann observed, as he handed a possibly prospective purchaser a Michell knife, "There will be no cutting of prices this season by any house, owing to shortage of stocks and carefulness in buying." Joseph Marks, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, shared honors with his coworker, T. Dennison, when the total sales were compared. Mr. Henderson left the field early. Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, showed a full line. "Here are we, from A to Z," observed Mr. Moen, who had his usual competent staff of assistants.

A grand specimen of Cocos australis shipped from New Orleans by Harry Papworth was the cause of remark from James Heacock, of the Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., that palms of any size above a 6-inch pot were so scarce that it will take several years at the present rate to produce what is needed.

Thomas Knight, of the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., commenting upon the smaller number and increased amount of his palm sales, said his firm intended to keep boosting.



John Elzinga, of the National Bulb Farms, Inc., Benton Harbor, Mich., speaking of the 160 acres of gladioli under cultivation, to which will be added narcissi, mentioned the fact that the firm's publicity and consequent successful trade established was solely through the medium of The Review.

H. E. Humiston, of the Proto-Feed & Guano Co., Chicago, mentioned that he had been prospecting for sheep manure and found 100,000 tons in southern Montana lying six feet deep. With the erection of drying plants by next spring, the gold mine, as he well describes it, will be worked and the product distributed.

J. A. Peterson, of J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, incidentally mentioned the receipt of a letter from the curator of Kew Gardens acknowledging the receipt of and admiration for some plants of Begonia Peerless that reached London in excellent shape. W. M.

Reading, Mass.—Frank H. Jury has started in business, having bought the greenhouses of Mr. Casey.

Des Moines, Ia.—J. S. Wilson, Jr., of the Alpha Floral Co., is preparing to open a branch store, Wm. Trillow having concentrated his business at the greenhouses. Mr. Wilson has taken the lease on the location of the Trillow store and is fitting it up in the same fashion as his main store. With a city population of 150,000 to draw from, Mr. Wilson believes each store will do a good business.

(President of the Cleveland Florists' Club.)

Nearly all the exhibitors report splendid business. If the orders did not average so large as last year, they were more numerous. Many of the exhibitors, however, especially among those supplying the retailers, noted that there is a disposition to buy more conservatively this season than last.

H. P. Knoble's friends wanted to nominate him for the presidency of the society. "Not in my own home town," said Mr. Knoble, and he asked the privilege of nominating the man who thus received the unanimous vote of the convention.

Why so many polling places with so few candidates?

Ninth Garage, in spite of forebodings, proved to be admirably adapted to the needs of the exhibition. Although the building is unfinished, the second floor, used for the trade's display, was in thoroughly habitable condition, largely through the efforts of Secretary Young. The society paid for the temporary closing of the sides and for lighting installation. It may interest some of the exhibitors to know the society paid $5 per lamp for the installation.

Thursday evening, after the convention closed, President Miller entertained a number of friends, ladies and gentlemen, in a parlor of the Hollenden. Although the official term does not end until December 30, the evening marked the close of the most active period of an administration which has made S. A. F. history.

No meeting of the board of directors was held during the Cleveland convention. The management of affairs rests with the officers until the mid-Lenten meeting in Washington next year, unless a special meeting is called.

The management of so large an affair as the trade's display this year was no child's play. There are few men who could have handled the manifold details to greater general satisfaction than did Secretary Young and certainly no member of the society could have done better. It was Mr. Young's ninth experience, his first having been at the famous Chicago convention in 1912.

On the platform at the opening session were eleven past presidents: Adam Graham, J. C. Vaughan, W. F. Gude, R. C. Kerr, Philip Breitmeyer, F. R. Pierson, R. Vincent, Jr., George Asmus, J. F. Ammann, E. G. Hill and F. H. Traendly.

The members of the committee which considered the presidential address were George Asmus, S. S. Pennock, Thomas Roland, Adolph Gude and Charles Graham.

Pennsylvanians won all the prizes offered by the A. L. Randall Co. Miss Kelly, of the J. W. Glennon Co., Kittanning, Pa., received the fountain, C. D. Kennedy, manager of the Oakwood Rose Gardens, Oil City, Pa., the set of wicker furniture and Frank J. Zak, Pittsburgh, the lamp.

The Cleveland decorators did splendid work in the meeting hall with the fine gladiolus blooms supplied by J. J. Grullemans, from the Wayside Gardens, at Mentor, O.

Praise was heard on all sides in regard to the excellent handling of the hotel accommodations by James McLaughlin. Never was the hard job so ably handled.

A British and an American flag hung side by side in the meeting hall and at the opening session "God Save the King" followed "The Star-Spangled Banner," indicating how thin is the border-line to the north.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Miller were presented with a beautiful silver service set at the close of the growers' session August 19. J. F. Ammann warmed to the occasion and stirred Mr. Miller to a similar response.

John G. Esler filled his usual post as judge of election at the polls on Thursday. The tellers were Irwin Bertermann, August Hummert, Chas. P. Mueller, Harry S. Mueller, Otto Lang, J. D. Fulmer, S. J. Goddard, S. A. Kost, Albert M. Herr, W. C. Gloeckner, S. Salzberg, A. J. Sykes, W. A. Kennedy, J. S. Wilson and Joseph Streit.

Much space was given the convention in the local newspapers. The Plain Dealer had photographs of the exhibition, the News printed an editorial of welcome, and the other papers all had news stories of conspicuous size.

Since the registration books were all at the exhibition hall and none at the meeting place, by no means all of those present took the trouble to register. Yet the list in last week's and this week's Review is larger than ever before.

Z. D. Blackistone, vice-president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, addressed to the convention a warm invitation to visit the national capital for that society's show, November 10 to 14.

There was a feather in the cap of many a visitor, supplied by the A. B. C. In many bright colors, each carried the trade slogan and the name of the distributor. They were carried by thousands all over Cleveland and proved to be a most effective advertising novelty.

The opening session of the convention drew the largest attendance in some years. The exhibition floor was deserted at the time. After the opening ceremonies, however, this was not so true.

Large numbers of florists took the trolley to Akron, where the tires come from.

The trade's display surely has become the tail that wags the dog. It is the backbone of the convention, both financially and from the standpoint of interest.

The exhibitors would like to meet more men like Otto Lang, the Texan. Mr. Lang came up from Dallas with typewritten lists of everything, from A to Z, needed for a big winter's business. He went the rounds, looked at the samples and wrote down the prices, but did not buy anything the first day. After he had sized things up he made a second round and the orders he handed out were not only the largest aggregate placed by any visitor, but they were intelligently done; it was big but close buying.

At the suggestion of President Miller, the S. A. F. voted to "Say It with Flowers" by sending a basket to President Wilson.

The F. T. D. News made its initial appearance at the convention, a 64-page monthly. It is, as the name implies, by the F. T. D., for the F. T. D. and of the F. T. D.

Modesty made E. G. Hill curtail the account of his remarkable reception in Europe, whence he had just returned, in his response to Dr. E. B. Mills' speech presenting him with the Hubbard memorial medal of the American Rose Society. This medal is given once in five years for the best rose produced in America. Columbia won it for Mr. Hill this time. In France he received the Merite Agricole, and in England the eagerness of ardent rosarians to meet the noted E. G. Hill and to tell of the excellent records of his productions in that country brought a warmer sort of honor to the famous Indianian.

F. T. D. IN FAMILY GATHERING.

The meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, held at the close of the S. A. F. session Wednesday afternoon, was not for business purposes, but merely to bring its members together in a family gathering to chat about their own affairs. President Breitmeyer opened the remarks in his warm and cheering way, setting the key for the genial talks that followed. Secretary Pochelon issued only one of his fiery warnings; the rest of his remarks were of his jolliest sort. His warm utterances were regarding the variance of percentages allowed on orders and what would happen to those who deviated from the customary twenty per cent.

Vice-president Irwin Bertermann greeted the F. T. D.'s journalistic child and expressed the usual hopes regarding new-born infants. Emery B. Hamilton, as president of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association (formerly the C. H. A.), opined that the border line between Canada and the United States was extremely thin, floriculturally speaking. Remarks followed from W. S. Wells, of Ann Arbor, Mich., Charles H. Grakelow, the silver-tongued Philadelphian, and many others present. At the conclusion everybody stood up and introduced himself or herself to everybody else, in F. T. D. style, to further promote the ties of familiarity.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The dark, rainy weather which prevailed during last week has not helped things in the least, and, consequently, business was slower than it has been during the entire summer, with the exception of funeral work. The demand for Easter lilies fell off slightly and all other varieties of stock moved slowly. Stock for working up funeral pieces was the chief demand of the week. Asters were more plentiful and averaged from $1.50 to $4 per hundred, roses ran from $2 to $8 per hundred, Shasta daisies $1.50 and $2 per hundred and dahlias brought 2 and 3 cents. There was some fine Sprengeri on the market last week. The supply of plumosus is good.

Various Notes.

O. A. C. Oehmler has returned from his vacation. Mr. Oehmler and his family spent several weeks at Colonial Beach and even Baby Oehmler had the time of his life. G. V. S.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Much Discussed at Cleveland.

The publicity campaign was an important topic at the Cleveland convention of the S. A. F. An enthusiastic gathering at the session devoted to it endorsed the work that had been done, and there were many outspoken in their praise of the campaign. Owing to the apathy of a large majority of the florists of the country, which of late has been marked, it was a question in the minds of some whether the campaign might not be abandoned. There was, however, a general expression of opinion that any abandonment would be an appalling calamity in view of the tremendous amount of good accomplished for the florists' industry. As a result, the campaign is to be pushed more vigorously than ever.

One feature of the proceedings was the reading of a letter from a large florists' concern in England, Bees, Ltd., of Liverpool, enclosing check for $50 as a subscription to the campaign. The letter contained a request for permission to use the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," in connection with a publicity campaign about to be started in England. It goes without saying that the permission was granted. The slogan in time ought to have world-wide use.

The fact was deplored that a number of florists had not yet met the obligations of their subscription guarantees. This has, no doubt, been due to carelessness. It is hoped that they will now feel the importance of making a remittance and send in their checks without further delay.

The committee is pleased to continue its work, but it is up to the florists to give the necessary financial assistance. As has often been said in this column, if every florist would give only $5 toward the campaign, it would be fully financed. Several have individually given 100 times this amount, but that is no reason why ninety-nine other florists in each case should evade a subscription to the fund which is creating so much benefit for them.

At the convention hundreds of incidents were related in proof of the business-bringing power of our slogan and its actual promotion of business. All of this was interesting to those who have thus far subscribed and especially to those enthusiasts who have doubled or trebled their subscriptions. Now you, Mr. Florist, who have not yet subscribed; don't you think it is about time we heard from you? You have, doubtless, always been proud to pay your own way and you are assured that in making a subscription to our fund you relieve yourself of any thought that you are benefiting from the generosity of others. You are not really giving anything; you are merely investing a small amount, which most surely will bring good returns. This has been proved time and again.

You can also help in another way. Perhaps your establishment furnishes an opportunity for the display of one of our big billboard signs, "Say It with Flowers." If so, you would help the campaign if you would get one and install it. They are cheap—about the cost of the material and labor; they are ornamental and quite desirable. Let us hear from you. John Young, Sec'y.

WE NEED THESE LISTS

THE nomenclature committee has been in frequent correspondence during the year with the chairman and secretary of the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature concerning the adoption of some standard list or code of plant names, both scientific and common, for commercial use. The American Joint Committee represents the American Association of Nurserymen, Ornamental Growers' Association, American Society of Landscape Architects, American Pharmaceutical Association, American Association of Park Superintendents, American Seed Trade Association, the Society of American Florists and the American Pomological Society.

The following extract is taken from a recent statement of the chairman, J. Horace McFarland:

The recognition long ago of the importance of some standard list or code of plant names, both scientific and common, for commercial use, led the constituent organizations named in this prospectus, as the matter was from time to time presented to them, to appoint suitable committees, out of which was formed, through proper representation, the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature. The basis on which the commercial organizations supporting this effort have acted in authorizing that support, was that such action would tend to "make buying easier."

The publication, in March, 1917, of the sixth and final volume of Bailey's Cyclopedia of Horticulture, which included a "Finding List" covering practically all plants in American commerce, or likely soon to get into American commerce, furnished a basis for immediate action, inasmuch as one of the constituent organizations, the American Association of Nurserymen, had definitely adopted the nomenclature of Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia.

The acceptance and adoption of this Official Code has been both surprising and gratifying.

The preparation of this code of scientific names was realized to be only preliminary to the eventual Official Catalogue of Plant Names, which should include the important common or vernacular names as well as the accepted scientific names. A subcommittee proceeded to prepare an official catalogue. The catalogue is in a forward state.

The prospectus prepared by the committee indicates both the completeness and the convenience of this catalogue, which it is hoped will be adopted and used generally for a term of not less than ten years, during which time the work of revising and extending it should go forward without intermission.

It is important that those considering this work should note the following definite matters related to its completion:

1. FORM. The form adopted, differing materially from that enforced upon the 1917 Official Code of Standardized Plant Names, has been chosen so that suitably bound copies of it may be found available for field and pocket use.

2. FRUIT NOMENCLATURE. The standard code of the American Pomological Society is adopted by the American Joint Committee. Whether or not it shall be included in this volume has not yet been determined.

3. SEED NAMES. Many of the items sold by seedsmen are already covered in the Official Catalogue of Plant Names, but no consideration has been undertaken of vegetable varieties, in which, as has been recently observed by an acute seedsman, "perhaps one thousand distinct varieties have been honored with about ten thousand names." Coöperation is now being sought with the American Seed Trade Association, under which it is hoped that that organization, in harmony with the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, may supply a check-list of accepted standardized vegetable names for insertion in this colume.

4. SPECIAL NAME-LISTS. It is recognized that horticultural commerce is intimately concerned with subjects like the rose, the iris, the peony, the sweet pea, the dahlia, the chrysanthemum, etc., each of which is represented by numerous named varieties, confusion in which is a source of loss and bother. It has therefore been concluded to introduce into this volume check-lists supplied by the societies governing the subjects presented. Thus, the American Rose Society will propose a check-list of roses in American commerce, which may be accepted as accurate so far as the names and sources are concerned. The American Iris Society will provide a similar check-list of irises, and so on with various important plant items.

It is hoped to be able to provide one copy of the Official Catalogue for each member of the constituent organizations who makes written application for it, and to make it available to others and to libraries at a proper price.

In addition to the foregoing, Harlan P. Kelsey, the secretary of the committee, makes the following recommendation:

There should be established immediately a national plant registration bureau which should pass on all new plant names and whose decisions should be final. This bureau should be equipped to identify any plant material submitted to it and to register new names. How are you going to know although the name is correct that you get the plant that goes with it? Plant identification is absolutely necessary. You must not only have the standard name, but you must know that that name is actually attached to the right plant. For the present Dr. Colville, botanist of the United States Department of Agriculture, is willing to take samples of plants growing in your nursery rows and tell you if you have them labeled correctly. Send specimen illustration, your description and the entire plant where it is possible, otherwise the flower and fruit pressed between paper.

All those who wish them and will send their names to me will get proof sheets of the new edition, but we shall expect in return that you sit down and spend some real time going over the common name list particularly, and offer your suggestions and criticisms. You can be of immense help to the committee, but the time we

ADVERTISERS PLEASE NOTE

The steadily increasing size of The Review, both in number of pages and in circulation, makes it imperative that advertising copy be obtained farther in advance of publication date. In order that forms may be held open as late as possible, advertisers are urged to send instructions (to start or change) to reach Chicago Thursday, Friday or Saturday, whenever possible. Monday is the last day on which instructions regarding display advertisements can be received for the issue of that week.

be limited, for we must get out this new edition in time for spring catalogue work.

The receipts of the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature, from 1916 to date, have been $2,316.58, of which the S. A. F. contributed $300 in 1917. It is recommended that a similar sum be contributed in 1920. Expenditures have been $1,407.36, leaving only $957.22 with which to carry on the work.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

Demand for stock at the various wholesale markets last week was weak in all lines. While there is plenty of stock in seasonable flowers to be had, the retailers buy sparingly during the summer months, since much of the time it is only funeral work that keeps them at all busy.

The weather has been hot and the few good rains last week greatly revived outdoor stock.

Rose shipments have greatly increased and all last week roses in all varieties were plentiful. Prices have been low in all grades; in big lots of 1,000 or more, roses were sacrificed at extremely low prices.

Asters are becoming more plentiful each week; last week they were offered as low as $20 per thousand for extra fine quality and mixed colors.

Prices on first-quality stock in gladioli went up a few dollars per hundred the latter part of the week. Good America, Schwaben and King demanded $6 per hundred, while common mixed varieties sold as low as $20 per thousand.

The demand for Easter lilies was good and was equaled by the supply daily. Some splendid valley was seen during the week. Single-flowering tuberoses are coming more plentifully each day and are fine in quality.

Plumosus, Sprengeri and ferns had their usual daily demand, with plenty for all calls.

Various Notes.

The members of the trade should not forget the seventh annual picnic of the St. Louis County Growers' Association September 2, to be held at Upper Creve Coeur lake. Martin Ude, president, and Joseph Deutschmann, secretary, say that everyone in the trade is invited to attend, as arrangements have been made to entertain the largest number of people ever at a picnic given by the association.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Treasurer Smith August 31. All the old, as well as the new, officers will attend this meeting, when an interesting program will be made up for the club's September meeting. At this club meeting the newly elected officers will be installed.

Souvenir post cards were received from members of the St. Louis party at Cleveland last week by many in the trade, telling them what a great convention it was and speaking of all the good things they missed by not attending.

The marriage of Frank A. Windler, president of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., to Miss Frances Kaletta took place August 24 and the happy couple left the same evening for an extended eastern honeymoon trip. They expect to be at home to friends after September 15.

Oscar Ruff, of the Bergstermann Floral Co., speaking of his recent fishing trip with Jules Bourdet, says that he never saw so many fish before and their catch was a heavy one.

The annual Shaw banquet for florists, gardeners and nurserymen will take place this year during the week of the convention of the National Association of Gardeners and will be held in the big palm house at Missouri Botanical Garden. All delegates attending the convention will be invited to attend.

J. Pluvius was quite generous last week and the county growers are thankful for the few good rains he gave them. These rains will greatly benefit all outdoor stock and were badly needed.

The delegates of the St. Louis County Growers' Association to the meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association at Cleveland last week will give a lengthy report of the meeting at the local association's meeting September 1, when a large attendance is expected.

The stores of the Mullanphy Florists, the Bentzen Floral Co. and the Pieper Floral Co., on North Grand avenue, are undergoing improvements, which will be completed in time for the opening of the fall season.

Foster the Florist's new quarters on Seventh street, near Olive street, will be ready by September 15. During the summer months Fred J. Foster, president of the company, has been busy at the Marcus avenue greenhouses, getting things ready for the fall and winter.

The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. and the Westover Nursery Co. expect a busy fall season, judging from advance orders already booked.

Joseph Frank expects to reopen his floral department early in September in the S. S. Kresge 5 and 10-cent store. During the summer months Mr. Frank has derived much pleasure from his new Chandler car. He says that he expects to open a floral department at Kansas City, Mo., in one of the Kresge stores.

The big waterfall display designed by H. Harvey in Grimm & Gorly's big show window continues to be a strong attraction on busy Washington avenue.

Charlie Hahn and Jack Weis expect to have everything ready for the opening of their new store on Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, Ill., September 1. Both are well known young men on the east side and should do well from the start.

Both Vandervoort's and the Famous-Barr floral departments have had splendid business so far this month. Funeral work has been exceptionally heavy.

The coal situation remains quite acute, as many of the county growers have not received their supply as yet, but they expect a full supply, as their orders have been placed far ahead.

The florist bowlers are all eager for the season to open, which it will September 15. Secretary Joseph Krager will send out notices for a special meeting to be held before the opening night.

The rose-growing establishments of Werner Bros., A. S. Cerny, W. J. Pilcher, Otto Bruenig and John Steidle, in St. Louis county, are in fine shape for the season. These firms have about completed improvements and their young stock is in splendid condition. A large crop is expected from them all through the fall and winter season.

The death August 15 of Thomas O'Byrne, a retired florist, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

OBITUARY.

Thomas O'Byrne.

Thomas O'Byrne, a retired member of the trade, died August 15 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John T. Shields, 5226 Florissant avenue, St. Louis, Mo. Many of the old-timers in the trade attended the funeral, which was held August 18, with interment in Calvary cemetery.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

USING the words of Major P. F. O'Keefe regarding the trade's publicity, it is now time to "fish or cut bait."

HOTEL accommodations are strained in a city visited by the S. A. F. convention nowadays. Cleveland, fortunately, is well equipped in that particular.

CONVENTION visitors last week saw the steel framework of the huge municipal auditorium which will house the national flower show, to be held at Cleveland in 1922.

ALONG with other textiles, chiffon prices for several weeks have been below the peak, perhaps as much as ten per cent, but latest advices from France are of renewed advances.

KEEPING in step, The Review published its largest convention number last week on the occasion of the trade's largest convention. The Review is the paper that grows with the trade.

TO keep up with the rising cost of growing, the board of directors of the American Carnation Society, at Cleveland last week, increased the amount of all the premiums on its list for next January's show.

THOUGH in many other lines prices have a tendency downward, that of paper is strongly upward, discouragingly so to catalogue houses and to publishers. The end of the frequent price boosts is not in sight.

AN addition of $5 per week to printers' wages, effective in Chicago this week and doubtless soon in other cities, will increase printing costs markedly and make the expense of issuing catalogues still higher. This trade is feeling no decline in the cost of doing business.

WHILE there is widespread belief in business circles that the peak of prices has been passed and that the trend is changing from a sellers' to a buyers' market, florists as a class can see nothing which points that way. None of the things constituting a principal item of expense, either in a store or greenhouse, has fallen in price; indeed, coal and labor tend to advance. It will cost more to run a florist's business this winter than it ever cost before.

Now, if ever, it is needful to be slow to grant credit and prompt to collect. The florist who could not pay last season's bills as he went along scarcely can be expected to do better next season under conditions now confronting the trade.

THE weekly review of R. G. Dun & Co. says that "while no single element accounts for the continued hesitation in business, it is even clearer now than recently that the price question remains the dominant factor." Commercial failures in the United States last week were 152, compared with 155 the preceding week, and 104 the corresponding week in 1919.

S. A. F. FINANCES.

The state of affairs in the treasury of the Society of American Florists, of which many gained an inkling for the first time at Cleveland last week, is not a perilous condition or one to occasion alarm, though it should induce greater conservatism in handling that organization's funds. The steps that led to the present situation are easy of explanation and of comprehension. The absence of a national flower show during the last few years has deprived the society of an important source of income, one that usually added at least $5,000 to its coffers. Last year, also, the bargain offer of $25 for life membership, which now costs $50, induced former annual members to change their status. Over 1,000 life members were added to the membership list. The dues they paid, however, went into the permanent fund, which almost doubled in size. The general fund, which received its income from annual dues, suffered in consequence. So, although the S. A. F. has plenty of money and is stronger financially than ever before, its general fund is depleted.

An unusually heavy drain on the treasury was caused by the appropriations of the last two years of $5,000 each to the national publicity campaign. Other expenses, both of the usual items and of new undertakings of the society, greatly increased at the same time. An unfortunate course of events brought the period of greatest expense in years that were, in face of rising costs, lean ones.

The Cleveland convention provided funds enough to meet the society's bills. A conservative expenditure of its money will enable it to progress as successfully as ever before. There is no danger on that score. But no money can be appropriated to the national publicity campaign this year, though it badly needs it, and the billboards on the society's hands present a problem. The Society of American Florists is as strong as ever and is sound financially. But the publicity enterprises which it has launched need more hearty support than has been given them thus far.

COAL PRICES TO STAND.

"Although the Illinois mine workers paid at a per diem rate will receive a substantial increase in wages, there will be no immediate increase in the price of coal." This statement was made last week after informal conferences had been held by a number of leading mine operators.

Following their determination to break away from the central competitive district in making agreements with the miners' union, the operators decided to put the drawing of a satisfactory agreement squarely up to Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners. The Illinois operators will enter a conference prepared to grant the miners an increase of $1.50 a day, 50 cents less than the increase demanded. It is regarded as probable that if the miners undertake to guarantee that the day wage men will return to the productive basis in effect prior to April 1, 1920, the operators will do better than the $1.50.

COAL PRODUCTION INCREASES.

With the striking miners back at work in Illinois and Indiana, production of soft coal during the week of August 14 rose to the highest point attained in any week since last January, the United States geological survey has reported. Preliminary estimates place the total output at 11,728,000 net tons, an increase over the last week before the strike of 848,000 tons, or eight per cent.

Whether this increased rate of production can be long sustained, the bureau says, remains to be seen. One element in the improvement was the accumulation of empty coal cars during the strike of the day men.

ASK ANOTHER EXPRESS RAISE.

The American Railway Express Co., in a supplementary application filed with the interstate commerce commission August 20, asked for authority to increase all of its rates fifteen per cent, in addition to the twelve and one-half per cent already allowed by the commission.

The additional increase is asked to meet the recent wage award of the railroad labor board for employees of the express company, which estimates that the award will increase its operating expenses $44,258,903 annually. Hearing on the application will be held August 27 in Washington.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

J. E. S., Minn.—Aconitum Napellus, commonly called monkshood.

J. D. G., Ill.—Begonias are called beefsteak geraniums, and some other species are known as beefsteak plants, but the beefsteak begonia is not known to us.

FERTILE GROUND.

The thoroughness with which The Review covers the florists', seed and nursery trades comes frequently as a surprise to advertisers who are accustomed to the low percentage of returns from publications not so carefully read and consulted by buyers. They do not understand, until the proof presents itself, that 12,000 readers are scanning its columns each week with a closer interest than they devote to any other publication. So advertisers used to low returns from other periodicals sometimes express themselves this way:

We should like to mention to you that our advertisement in The Review surely fell on fertile ground, for the inquiries and orders resulting from it have been away beyond our expectations.—Fertile Chemical Co., Cleveland, O., August 21, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was, perhaps, the dullest so far this summer, but scarcely more so than is usually expected. Arrivals, except those of outdoor-grown material, were light and the demand was anything but regular. The only excitement was provided by the lily situation. There is always some demand for lilies, but every grower seemed to have a good crop, with the result that there were too many on the market at one time and the price went down to $3 per hundred.

With the crops somewhat off again, lilies sold at $6 to $8 per hundred, Monday, August 23, with the demand dull. Gladioli are arriving in large quantities and the prices are from 50 cents to $2 per hundred, with two or three of the leading varieties commanding as much as $5 per hundred. Asters also are in heavy supply and the quality is nothing to boast about. They move slowly at $1 to $3 per hundred.

Roses are not overplentiful, but sufficient to meet the demand. The quality is poor in most varieties, but Ophelia and Sunburst are good, while some nice flowers of Crusader are available. American Beauty is off, in both quality and supply, but its movement is balanced in consequence without change in prices, which remain $15 to $40 per hundred for specials. There are fewer of the better grades of hybrid teas arriving and outside of Crusader, which commands $15 per hundred, scarcely any variety brings more than $10 per hundred for the top grade, excepting Scott Key, the best grade of which brings $50 per hundred, which is better than American Beauty. There is little complaint on the part of the growers regarding either movement or price of roses this summer.

There are no greenhouse carnations to be had. The few that are coming in are from plants in the field.

Cattleyas are short in supply and the price of the best gigas has moved up to $2, with a selected few at $2.50. Inferior blooms, mostly Gaskelliana, may be had as low as 50 cents each.

There is a plentiful supply of Easter lilies and a few of the rubrum variety of speciosum, but lily of the valley is exceedingly scarce and not in much demand.

The supply of miscellaneous stock, while it has decreased a little, is still too large for the demand. Zinnias are prominent and quantities of dahlias are in evidence, the latter selling at about $1 to $2 per hundred, according to variety and quality.

Various Notes.

Friday, August 13, lightning struck and set on fire a big potting shed at the establishment of the Julius Roehrs Co., at Rutherford, N. J. The shed was practically destroyed, but the loss is covered by insurance.

Charles Futterman has withdrawn from the firm of Futterman Bros., 101 West Twenty-eighth street, and is going into business for himself under his own name at 110 West Twenty-eighth street.

T. K. Domoto, of Domoto Bros., San Francisco, is spending a few days in town and is visiting the trade. He came here after attending the Cleveland convention.

A. M. Henshaw, of the Henshaw Floral Co., and Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., with their wives, are returning from Cleveland by automobile.

Henry Weston and wife, of Hempstead, returned August 21 from an automobile trip to the Thousand Islands.

Antonio Martin, of Carballo & Martin, Havana, Cuba, retail florists and growers, is in town and expects to remain a few weeks. He is accompanied by Señora Martin and Senorita Hilda Martin and a niece and nephew. Mr. Martin's many friends here are greatly pleased to renew his acquaintance.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Gladioli, asters, marigolds and a few other late summer flowers comprise most of the stock of the local florists now. Roses, valley and a few other kinds of flowers are kept in limited quantities or they are ordered as they are needed. The average florist has little variety and not a large stock. Ferns are doing double duty as fillers and for display. Prices are low compared with the high prices that flowers have been bringing. They are not, however, down to what they have been in years gone by.

Various Notes.

Henry Hornecker, Central avenue near Grove street, East Orange, has painted his store and greenhouses thoroughly and is making other renovations preparatory to the opening of the new season.

F. A. Kuehn, 621 Central avenue, also has been improving his place, preparatory to the new season. He has already painted his greenhouses and the inside of his store and plans soon to paint the outside of his store.

Alexander Forbes & Co., seedsmen, at 115 Mulberry street, have had an attractive summer window display. It is a large window with much floor space and glass on three sides. About two-thirds of the way back from the front is a miniature house, about 14x18x24 inches, and to the left and back of that, a neat little garage. Except for the road and walk, all in front of the house and garage is green, in imitation of grass. At the right of the house and occupying about a fifth of the entire space is a real garden, with small plants growing in it.

R. B. M.

CLEVELAND.

For Ray Chapman's funeral the Jones-Russell Co. had the orders from five baseball league clubs. Knoble Bros. Co. received the commission for a floral blanket from the big contribution of dimes by fans of the city. Each received $500. The blanket took 2,000 Ophelia roses, which Manager McLaughlin, of the Cleveland-McCallum Co., took care were the finest to be had at this time.

Adam Graham II and James Eadie are en route to Florida, part business and part pleasure. The aquarium in the public square will possibly be enriched with a contribution of southern reptiles.

Walter E. Cook & Co., Inc., entertained a number of trade visitors last week, who were profuse in their praise of the new store, the newest and most complete in town.

A. C. Kendel, of the Kendel Seed Store, commenting upon the S. A. F. conventions of 1896 and 1920, expressed the opinion that in many respects we have not advanced in proportion to many other professions, even in comparison with the seed trade. It gives food for thought.

Manager Shepherd Norris, of the Friedley Co., piloted several parties through the place and was pleased with comments passed upon the big stock of cyclamens, poinsettias and Begonias Pride of Newcastle and Mrs. Patten. Pteris ferns growing in benches had been transplanted from flats, thus saving the time and labor of the passage through the 2-inch pot stage. Now when the plants begin to touch one another they are lifted and potted into 4-inch pots, making fine stock, which grows much more freely.

Edward Tracey, of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, taken sick during the convention, recovered sufficiently to be able to return home.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Several days of cool weather have had a decidedly beneficial effect on the market. Supply has been reduced and the demand increased. The reduction in receipts has been particularly noticeable with roses, which always check up sharply when hot weather is followed by a sudden drop in temperature, as was the case last week. The rains have done some damage to outdoor flowers, but of these there still are plenty. The cold, wet weather had the effect of bringing many people home from the summer resorts and it may almost be said that the vacation season came to a sudden end a week or two earlier than usual. The difference in the demand is perceptible.

Although the market has not yet cleaned up, it is in much better shape than at any time in August. There is no shortage of flowers, except perhaps of valley and one or two other specialties, but the supply is not greatly in excess of the demand, except perhaps of gladioli. Of gladioli this market never has seen such great quantities as have come this season. It has been impossible to clean up at any time since full production was reached. Some of the stock is extremely fine and is selling at fair prices, but the average is pulled down at the clean-up sales.

Asters are in heavy supply, but the average quality has improved and they are selling moderately well. There are few carnations as yet. Giganteum lilies continue in good supply and there are considerable quantities of rubrums, which are freely used in funeral work. Otherwise there is no considerable supply of stock, though many varieties of outdoor flowers are seen in moderate quantity.

Greens are plentiful, except galax. Many dealers have none to offer and others have advanced the price to $3 per thousand in the effort to conserve their small supply.

August Poehlmann is in the Presbyterian hospital with broken ribs, a fractured left forearm and a shoulder injured by dislocation. His injuries are painful, but not serious, and he is expected to be out by the end of the week.

Returning from the convention the Poehlmann motor went off the road and overturned near Hebron, Ind. It was 8:15 Saturday evening, it was dark and there was a curve in the road, which was wet. In the car were August F. Poehlmann, Adolph Poehlmann and their sons, Earl Poehlmann and Morton Poehlmann. George Elliott, of Brighton, Mass., was driving. August Poehlmann was the only one who suffered severe injury; the others escaped with a few scratches and bruises. The machine, a Peerless touring car, turned upside down, but with such little damage to itself that it was driven back to Hebron under its own power. The party stayed there Saturday night and came to Chicago Sunday.

Various Notes.

Chicago is proud of its bowlers. They swept the decks at Cleveland. The scores published elsewhere in this issue of The Review do not tell the whole story, because in the end of the championship match, in which Chicago took first place, A. J. Zech rolled five games against Ernest Farley, a former Chicagoan now located at Dayton, O. It was quite the most exciting event of the evening and resulted in certain members of the Chicago delegation coming home with more money in their pockets

The Market.

Conditions remain pretty much the same as a week ago. We had a continuation of humid, uncomfortable weather, hardly conducive to cut flower activity. Gladioli overtop everything else; they were never before so abundant or of such superb quality. Certain colors and varieties sell moderately well,

Carnations are practically a minus quantity for a time, and, with so many fine asters, they are not wanted. Sweet

At Waltham fair, to be held September 9, 10 and 11, some good plant and cut flower prizes are offered to commercial growers. Prizes of $50 and $25 are offered for a group of plants. Classes for gladioli carry $40 and $30, $15 and $10, $35, $15 and $10, while dahlias are allotted $25 and $10 and $25 and $15. Equally good premiums are offered for asters, roses, carnations and other flowers. E. Allan Peirce has charge of the flower department.

A letter received from John K. M. L. Farquhar states that he had just spent a day at the famous Gravereaux Rose Garden, Rosarie de l'Hay; the collection was in excellent condition and numbered no less than 7,700 species and varieties. Of Rosa gallica alone there were 450 varieties. Mr. Farquhar will sail back from Cherbourg September 4.

F. W. Fletcher, formerly of Auburndale and now of Orlando, Fla., writes that growing tubers of Godfrey callas is his only doubtful proposition. They do not make tubers like æthiopica and are more addicted to dry rot. He says that the problem needs further study before he will admit that it cannot be done and he purposes planting a smaller lot, 50,000, this season. Watsonias, gladioli, some lilies, sweet peas, asters and roses succeed well in heavy soil.

On and after September 4 the wholesale flower markets and commission houses will remain open all day on Saturdays.

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

have been heavier than ever this season.

Frederick Cave, a Kewite and prominent member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, left the Massachusetts General hospital August 13. The noted specialists there were afraid to operate and consider his condition critical. His wife and two children, who have been in Europe since last fall, are now on their way to America.

Many alterations and improvements have been recently made in the commodious wholesale store of the Welch Bros. Co., on Devonshire street, which will greatly increase their facilities for doing a large shipping trade.

W. N. C.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The wet weather caused a change in the market on the last two days of the third week of this month. The opening of this week brought heavy supplies of flowers. Many of them were poor, owing chiefly to too much rain. There were heavy losses during midweek. Flowers were freely thrown out from necessity. There were no offers and they were spoiling. The change, as the week closed, was surprising. Most of the good flowers are grown outdoors at this season and, good flowers being impossible with violent wind and rain storms nightly, a brisk demand sprang up for good flowers, a demand easy to satisfy with even a moderate supply. The supply, however, was small, exclusive of what is irreverently termed junk, which is treated as such. Owing to cultural difficulties, the supply of fine astermums, indoor grown, usually seen at this season, is missing.

The Cleveland Convention.

The Philadelphians who went to Cleveland to attend the S. A. F. convention have nearly all returned. The character of our representatives and of the convention itself is so entirely changed as to merit comment.

For many years the Philadelphia delelgation was always numerically strong; often it was the largest single delegation attending the convention. It mattered not where the convention might be held. The past generation of Philadelphia florists were made to feel that not to take a holiday to go to the convention was to be a deserter. The bowling tournaments, the shooting matches, the parties and the sights were the attractions. As a consequence, even getting married and going to the convention for a floral honeymoon came into vogue. Except by a few who ran the meetings and served on the committees, little business was done or even attempted. The delegates were there for a holiday. The exhibitors were the exceptions to this rule. Philadelphia has always led all other cities in her exhibits. She leads today. Well, gradually things changed. The amusements became more and more expensive; the rising generation did not want to spend the holiday in a hot city in midsummer; it ceased to be fashionable to get married and go to the convention on a honeymoon.

The Cleveland convention that has just closed was the exact opposite of all this. It was a business gathering of business men and women. The social side was absent. Philadelphia was represented by a splendid group of exhibitors, who made her presence felt as of old, and, as far as known, by only four others, two retailers and two wholesalers.

The exhibitors are unanimous in their praise of the Cleveland convention. They say it was the best attended convention the society has ever held and that it equaled the large record set by Detroit in the amount of business done.

This is illustrated by a story told of Martin Reukauf, who, though highly pleased with his success, dryly remarked that he had not done a thing, scarcely booked an order. Philadelphians were pleased with the election of Thomas Roland, of Nahant, as president, and of F. Adolphus Gude as vice-president, and with the choice of Washington as the place for the next meeting.

The early tearing apart of some of the exhibits on Thursday afternoon and the separation of the two halls were disadvantages. It was a curious fact that so extraordinary a floral occasion as the beautiful tokens sent to the ill-starred Chapman should have occurred in the convention city during convention week. With an offering of $2,000, raised by a Cleveland newspaper in dime contributions, the hol-

The Market.

Business has been none too active during the last week and stock has dragged on the market. A glut of gladioli has caused prices to drop to $3 to $6 per hundred. The quality is good and at these prices they are greatly sacrificed. The aster glut is over and the supply has greatly decreased.

Roses are moving well. Some good stock is available from young plants. A limited number of carnations from new stock are seen, but they are too scarce to be considered. Easter lilies are available at $1.50 to $2 per dozen. A few rubrums are also displayed. These move well for funeral work.

Garden flowers are greatly in evidence and, although there is little call for them, they are attractive in window displays. In this class are hydrangeas, buddleias, statice, cosmos, zinnias, dahlias, marigolds and tuberoses. Potted plants are scarce. Ferns are practically the only plants available.

Various Notes.

Indianapolis was fairly well represented at the S. A. F. meeting at Cleveland, although not as many attended as had been anticipated.

John Kilcoyne is enjoying his vacation at his former home, at Paducah, Ky. Before returning home he will visit in Tennessee.

Bert Hitz has remodeled his range and intends planting it entirely to roses.

Harry Bookedis and family have just returned from an interesting trip to Detroit, the Great Lakes, Toronto and various places of interest in Canada.

Len Elder returned recently from a fishing trip.

Entries have been turned in for the Indiana state fair, which is to be held from September 6 to 11.

The various committees have been busy in preparing for the meeting of the F. T. D., to be held here October 12 and 13.

The Pahud Floral Co. sold its lease, at 139 North Illinois street, to Jud McCarty, haberdasher. The store was an attractive little room in the Lyric Theater building, but, because of the good price offered, it was deemed wise to sell. The Pahud Floral Co. will continue

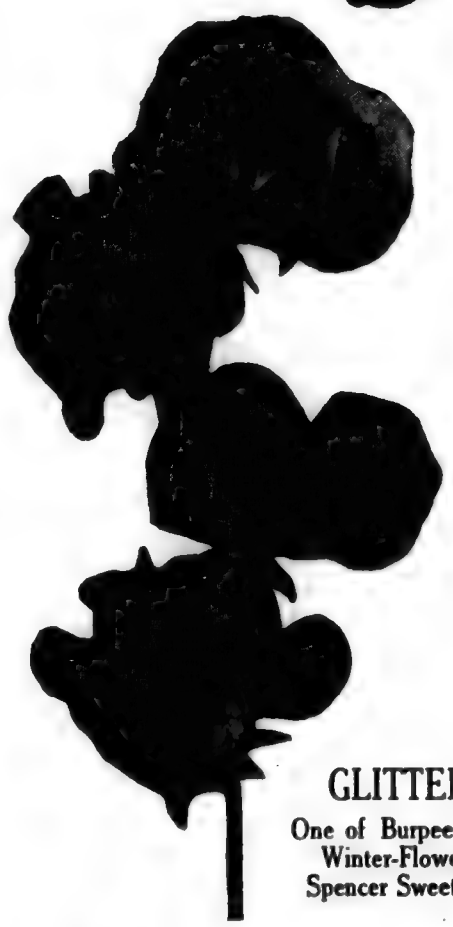
SEED CROPS IN CALIFORNIA.

In its midsummer crop report, covering both flower and vegetable seeds, sent out August 11, the John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Cal., stated:

"Since our last report, June 12, we have had two months of extremely hot and dry weather. Moreover, there has been an entire absence of night fogs, which are so essential in the summer time for growing crops in California. Unquestionably, these conditions will shorten the season and lighten the yield of all crops.



"Dry weather is showing its effect in the bean crop and although all of our bush lima beans are on irrigated land, the moisture in the ground does not take the place of the fogs, which are essential when lima beans are setting a crop. All pole beans will be a short crop with us, as the major part of our acreage is planted on unirrigated land.

"The lettuce crop did not survive the heat and most of it will be a total failure.

"Most other vegetables promise a fair yield, although some varieties of radish will be short.

"Since June the sweet pea crop has suffered from aphis and drought combined and many acres have set positively no seed. We are, therefore, compelled to report an entire failure on many varieties. June 12 we were under the impression that the early-flowering varieties would set a fair crop, but now that they are threshed they are quite disappointing, some sorts being practically a failure. At this time only the early-flowering Spencer mixed, the late-flowering Spencer mixed and the grandiflora mixed are available for orders.

"The nasturtium crop is now being threshed and we expect to fill all orders in full and to have a limited surplus to offer.

"The hot weather of the last sixty days has forced our fields and the aster crop will be ten days to two weeks earlier than in any previous season. Some varieties have suffered, but we believe that if the weather soon becomes normal and remains moderate for another month, we shall have sufficient seed, especially as we have a larger acreage planted than in previous seasons.

"The general flower seeds promise a good crop, with a few exceptions. We regret to report the following varieties to be entire failures:

Balsam, double, camellia-flowered, scarlet.
Convolvulus minor.
Hibiscus.
Lathyrus latifolius, mixed.
Matricaria Golden Ball.
Nemophila insignis, blue.
Nemophila, mixed.
Nigella Miss Jekyl.
Primula obconica grandiflora.

"The following varieties seem likely to be a short crop:

Antirrhinum, tall, Brilliant.
Antirrhinum, tall, Fire King.
Antirrhinum, semi-dwarf, Ruby.
Campanulas in all varieties.
Celosia Childsii, yellow.

CROP REPORT FROM HOLLAND.

Labor Costs Influenced Plantings.

Under date of July 23 Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland, sent out their report on the stand of the seed crops in that country. Their summary of the general situation is as follows:

"In consequence of the dearth of victuals and other necessaries of life, wages have been tending upward rapidly in this country and the growers, being, of course, mindful of their interests, endeavor to cultivate their fields with as few people as possible and are hardly prepared to grow any product which requires much labor, such as pole beans and the seed of cucumber, carrot, scorzonera, onion and several biennials.

A. HENDERSON & CO., 166 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago

"The winter has not done much harm. There has been, however, a certain slowing up in the demand for Dutch products; on the other hand, our records of seeds in cultivation show a large number of gaps. Much war stock, like old spinach seed, carrot seed and other varieties, which endangered the good reputation of the seed trade during the war, has gradually been cleared off for all kinds of purposes."

Many Stands Good; Acreage Small.

In its detailed summary of crop conditions for various sorts, the firm has little to say for the following other than that the planting is small, but the stand good: Beet, borecole, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, chicory, endive, leek, parsley, radish and winter radish, savory, savoy and spinach; of spinach an excellent crop of seed is expected.

The remainder of the detailed report follows:

BEANS, DWARF. The plantings in this country are quite small, so that the export of dwarf beans will be almost out of the question; at least, the export will be limited to certain varieties. On the whole, the stand is quite satisfactory.

BEANS, ENGLISH. Plantings, although much smaller than in the preceding year, sufficient. Stand here and there feeble and attacked by lice, but, on the whole, rather good.

BEANS, POLE. Still worse off than the dwarf beans as to plantings, but the stand is quite good.

CABBAGE, RED. Much less is planted than before and, in general, the stand is considerably feebler.

CABBAGE, WHITE. Plantings considerably under normal. Many growers planted but little or nothing, in consequence of the uncertain situation and the unfavorable circumstances prevailing during the planting time. Here and there are a good many worms in the pods and aftergrowth; although the stand may so far be considered satisfactory, these worms may even yet have a harmful effect on the crop.

CARROT. After the extraordinary overproduction during the war, planting has been almost stopped. There are only quite small fields of the better varieties. The stand in general is rather good, some of it even excellent.

CELERY. Almost normal plantings. Stand rather good.

CHERVIL. Small area, while, moreover, a great deal of the planting has been subsoiled. Crop rather good.

CORN SALAD. Middling planting of Dutch corn salad. The other varieties are almost lacking. The stand is rather good.

CRESS. Moderate planting. Stand good.

CUCUMBER. Small planting, almost none at all in some varieties. The foreign sorts have been sown on a particularly small scale. Stand so far rather good.

"GLAD" MEN AT BOSTON

GLADIOLUS SOCIETY MEETING.

Present Officers Continue.

At the annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society, held at Boston August 14, there was a good attendance. The president's and secretary's statements in regard to the society, printed below, show it to be quite flourishing.

The present officers continue in office for another year. They are: President, H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.; vice-president, C. R. Hinkle, St. Joseph, Mich.; treasurer, Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.; secretary, A. C. Beal, 212 Kelvin place, Ithaca, N. Y. The executive committee is composed of J. J. Prouty, Joe Coleman and Frank E. Bennett. The place of J. C. Vaughan on the exhibition committee is taken by T. A. Havemeyer; the nomenclature committee continues the same.

The decision as to the place of meeting next year rests with the executive committee. Invitations were received from New York, Buffalo and Toledo. Frank E. Bennett, president of the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, St. Thomas, Ont., urged the Canadian claims to the honor.

Trade Visitors.

Some of the out-of-town visitors to the gladiolus exhibition were:

Havemeyer, T. A., New York.
Sperling, W. A., New York.
Schwarz, Z. B., Manchester, N. H.
Bennett, Frank E., St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada.
Meader, H. E., Dover, N. H.

Brown, C. W., Ashland, Mass.

PRESIDENT MEADER'S ADDRESS.

A Tenth Anniversary.

This, our annual meeting, is especially noteworthy as the tenth anniversary of the founding of the American Gladiolus Society. It is extremely appropriate that it be celebrated in these spacious halls, as the initial meeting was held here and the charter list opened to members August 27, 1910.

To the efforts of the late Maurice Fuld and other gladiolus lovers we are indebted for the auspicious starting of our society, with a list of 137 names, which has since increased creditably and satisfactorily, with also a considerable foreign membership.

Looking Back Ten Years.

Looking backward over the last ten years, we find a steadily increasing enthusiasm for the gladiolus, which as a most beautiful, adaptable and useful flower has justly taken its place as the leading summer flower. Its long-continued blooming season, its ability to thrive under great variations of climate, soil and location, its freedom from insect pests and its wonderful range of color, surpassing all other flowers in versatility of bloom, endear it alike to amateur and to professional growers.

Our noted American hybridists are constantly and painstakingly working toward still further improvements and each year shows a constant advance, a notable instance being the popular primulinus hybrids, which have gained in public favor by leaps and bounds. Ten years ago the possibilities of the primulinus hybrids were practically unknown. What wonders may we not expect in ten years more of progress?

The March of Progress.

The adaptability of the modern gladiolus for greenhouse and coldframe forcing is becoming better known each year and florists are rapidly recognizing the ease of indoor culture and the profit from forced blooms, which meet with ready sale.

There are many more varieties nowadays suitable for forcing, finer and larger blooms and better colors than there were a decade ago.

In spite of the continual advance of the gladiolus, we look forward to still greater improvement and feel that we are still on the threshold of the future, justly anticipating, with the passing of time, the pleasure of greeting newer marvels of beauty, evolved by work and patience, the twin pillars of progress in horticultural endeavor, as well as in other fields.

There are many things I should like to say, but time presses and our meetings are infrequent, also we have much serious business.

Acknowledgments.

Before closing, I would recommend that we take some action respecting the death of our friend and founder, Maurice Fuld, making suitable recognition of his work in the society. His genial, attractive personality, his pleasant smile and cordial handclasp will be missed.

I wish to thank my associates in office for their aid and coöperation and would urge every member to use his best efforts to continue the improvement and progress of our society. I am especially grateful to the flower growers, also to the florists' trade papers, whose relations with this society have been uniformly pleasant. To the Massachusetts Horticultural Society I extend our thanks for their unremitting hospitality. Finally, to the newly organized Massachusetts Gladiolus Society we cordially offer our best wishes, hoping that the coming years will add greatly to its prestige and prosperity.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Going Good.

There are now 351 names on the rolls of the American Gladiolus Society. Of these there were 270 paid-up members in 1919-20. Some are now sending last year's dues with their remittance for this year. Thus it will be seen that actual paid-up membership is somewhat fluctuating, but as a rule few members are dropped for failure to send in their dues. This shows a good, live membership and it should be our purpose to increase it to a minimum of at least 500 members, which would enable the society to extend its activities. There have been inquiries concerning life memberships, which this society has not as yet provided. The executive committee should be directed to consider and report upon this question. Last year the society voted to eliminate the initiation fee and our experience thus far indicates that it was beneficial to the society.

The society was represented at the recent conference, held June 15, 1920, to consider Quarantine 37 and its possible revision. It would seem desirable that this subject be discussed and some action be taken by the society.

Among those of our members taken by death during last year was Maurice Fuld, a charter member of our society as well as one of our most active members. Mr. Fuld was always interested in gladioli and when possible he never failed to attend and take part in our meetings. His live personality and his keen enthusiasm for the advancement of floriculture will be greatly missed in

The report of A. C. Beal, secretary of the American Gladiolus Society, presented at the annual meeting, held in Boston August 14, 1920.

What's the Use?

Hiram Stebbs is a farmer—likewise a one-time neighbor.

One day Dad and I were riding by his place and found him and his men "working like Sam Hill" repairing his roadside fences.

"What's up, Hiram?" says Dad. "Going to put some cattle in your field?"

"Nope," says Hiram; "going to keep some out."
"What some?" asked Dad.

"Well," says Hiram, "some day someone will come along with a bunch of cattle, and when they do, every pesky beast of them will find our fences all mended and no place for them to break into.

"Last year two bad actors get over into my neighbor's field and trampled down more alfalfa than you could draw in with a tractor.

"Reckon in business, as in farming, it's well to keep your fences mended."

All of which I forgot as a boy, but remembered again last January, when we came to the conclusion that advertising was a pretty good sort of a fence mender.

It keeps good business IN and keeps bad business OUT.

florists' meetings. Another man pre-eminent in his profession, who recently died, was Patrick O'Mara, of the well-known firm of Peter Henderson & Co. I can vouch for Mr. O'Mara's interest in and great knowledge of gladioli from correspondence which I had with him. He had great talents of leadership and his wise counsel and forceful personality are much needed at the present time. His interest covered the entire field of American floriculture and his death creates a gap which will be difficult, if not impossible, to fill.

To Resume Investigations.

In concluding this last report as the society's secretary, I wish to say that I have enjoyed the work and regret that the pressure of my investigation work has made it necessary for me to give up the office. I feel, however, that the country is back on a more normal basis and some one can be found who can give the office the time necessary to care properly for the work. My desire is to resume more actively investigations on gladioli—a field in which I can probably render a better service to the society than as its secretary. However, if I can help out I shall always be at its service. I shall miss the opportunity afforded by the duties of secretary to make acquaintances among the members, but they may count on my interest and support in any good work. Several applications to register gladioli were received during the year. mitted for registration, but the applications increased many fold this year. It seems desirable to return to former practice and it is the hope of the Department of Floriculture to resume testing work on a large scale next season. It may be said, however, that we have grown a few new varieties each year and that some of these are worthy of registration.

At the present time there is considerable discussion of horticultural nomenclature and some persons are advocating some sort of bureau of registration at Washington. It is no doubt desirable to have some sort of register of names to prevent different varieties receiving the same name.

Eliminating Duplicates.

Since no complete description of each variety of every flower can be made which will enable anyone, under all conditions of climate and soil, to positively identify many of the varieties, and since no person can know all existing varieties of some of the larger groups of flowers, like roses, gladioli, peonies, irises, phloxes, dahlias, tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, sweet peas, etc., some of us are wondering how it will be possible to prevent or even to materially lessen the bestowing of different names on the same thing. Allow me to illustrate. When the peony collection was assembled at Cornell it was supposed that there were 1,600 varieties, but when the committee on nomenclature of the Peony Society finished its work there were between 400 and 500 distinct sorts in the entire collection. In other words, there were about 1,100 perfectly good names on the waiting list. In one case a certain variety appeared under eleven distinct names. It is quite probable that, if we had had a registration bureau at that time, many if not all these names would have been listed. No recording clerk anywhere can do more than list names.

Trial Grounds Necessary.

It would seem to be clear, therefore, that the effort to secure and fix distinct names is, after all, only a small part of the question. Trial grounds of all the leading flowers should be established, not necessarily in one locality, and the varieties studied by the most capable men. For this purpose there should be carefully selected growers appointed on committees to examine the growing plants. Some progress has been made along this line by certain societies, but more and more systematic work needs to be done.

There is another aspect of this matter that should not be lost sight of. The American Carnation Society and the American Chrysanthemum Society efficiently control the introduction of new varieties by requiring that the flowers be exhibited and passed upon by a committee of competent growers or dealers. The flowers are commercial cut flowers and there is little probability that there will be the incentive to grow new varieties of carnations and chrysanthemums to the same extent that some garden flowers are produced. In the case of certain outdoor flowers long lists of varieties were grown before the special societies were formed, or there is no special society for the particular flower. The phlox is an example of the latter type. The problem is, therefore, to reduce existing lists and establish more exact standards for the new varieties. The growers must establish these standards and enforce them.

What is required, therefore, is a central recording office, which should register varieties after these have been passed upon by experts, either while growing in a trial ground under neutral control or on exhibition before the members of a special society interested in the flower, or by both means. The possibility of renaming, either innocently or purposely, would be reduced, at least, to minimum. My earnest hope is that the various societies will keep this under their own control insofar as the determination of what varieties shall be recorded or registered is concerned.

problem themselves instead of leaving it to some future federal board or office with its arbitrary rules. The American Gladiolus Society, I am sure, will wish to coöperate in any worthwhile effort to establish gladiolus nomenclature on a more definite basis. Along this line the writer set about compiling a list of the variety names of gladioli as catalogued by the commercial growers. I was much surprised to find my list embracing 605 names. Most of these occur once or twice, while some, like America, Mrs. Francis King, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Niagara and Peace, occur in nearly every list. There are 106 varieties offered by five or more growers. Some of the varieties are new and consequently the stock is entirely in the hands of the introducer. On the other hand, some varieties are old and deserve distinction.

I think the list of gladioli is too long. Even though the range of color and of color markings is perhaps greater than in any other flower, nevertheless it would seem that 150 varieties ought to be extensive enough. We wish further improvement in gladioli, but are there not too many inferior, too many closely alike, possibly too many freakish or odd things in our lists? What should this society do about this matter if any or all these questions can be answered affirmatively?

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The market last week was overstocked with gladioli of the finest quality; great quantities were moved, but at ridiculously low figures. Stock sold at $2 and $3 per hundred that was even better than some that brought as high as $10 per hundred a few weeks ago. A vast amount is being used, but there is more on the market than can possibly be cleaned up. Asters are in good shape; they are fine flowers and have good shades. There is nothing like a glut of these and all that come into the market clean up well each day. There is not the usual glut of hydrangeas to be seen this year. Golden Glow is plentiful, but it does not sell well; the main demand is for funeral and hospital work, and this does not fit in well for either. Although the market is overstocked and quite a lot of first-class stock is going to waste, there is a fine retail business all along the line.

An Advertising Thought.

There was a good deal of discussion

A letter of sympathy was sent to Mrs. J. Partridge. Mr. Partridge, one of the society's honorary members, died after a short illness. A letter was also sent to the brother of the late William Gillis. Mr. Gillis, an active member of the society, died after an operation.

The dahlia show will be held September 30 and October 1 in Pembroke hall. The exhibits for the September meeting will be one outdoor melon, twelve potatoes and three stalks of celery.

The annual picnic of the society occurred August 12 and was one of the most successful which it ever held.

The annual fee of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association has been raised to $3. The annual dues of the retail section are $3. Retailers are requested to join both. Fees may be sent to Herbert J. Eddy, 4425 Sherbrooke street, Montreal. Retailers who are already members of the parent organization may remit their fee for the retail section to Mrs. Percy Waters, Danforth avenue, Toronto, or to Silas A. McFadden, 79 King street, west, Toronto.

Several changes were made in the constitution of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association as published in the program. Among these was a provision for forming a section by any branch on the application of fifteen members. Such section is allowed a representative on the directorate. The executive is to appoint a vice-president for each province.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Walla Walla, Wash.—G. G. Schueller states that he has abandoned the name of the Flower Shop as applied to his retail business, which he now conducts under the same title as the greenhouses and rose and bulb farm, the Walla Walla Floral Co.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Retail and shipping business have both kept up remarkably well during the last week. Some days there has been a rush almost like that of a holiday. The opening of the new theater created a big demand for baskets and other made-up work, besides a good deal of decorating greens. Roses are coming in a little more freely, but the new crop is not in sight yet. New-crop greenhouse carnations are promised and a few are already shown. Carnations are fine for display and for decorations. Pompon dahlias are making a good showing alongside their larger brethren of the fancy class. The purple buddleia is also pretty, helping out in basket and design work. Small flowers, excluding baby zinnias, are scarce. Greens are better and are coming in more plentifully.

Various Notes.

Ernest Rober, of Wilmette, Ill., was a visitor recently.

The Tassano brothers are making fine headway at their Artesian Nursery, D. Tassano being the grower and Angelo taking charge of the selling end and also helping in the nursery when time permits. The whole of the new glass is devoted to maidenhair fern and it is in splendid condition. An immense cut will be taken this fall and winter. Plumosus, which was recently planted, is making an extra fine growth, several acres of lath being devoted to this crop. Besides the greens, large areas are devoted to narcissi and other bulbs.

To anyone in California it would seem like taking coals to Newcastle to purchase geranium seed, but Fraser & Son, of Pasadena, report a good demand for their selected varieties and hybrids.

The Los Angeles Florists' Club held its August Meeting at Christopher's. Owing to vacation time, there was not such a large attendance, but besides President Armacost, Frank Warner, F. Borden, J. Rollin, A. Goldenson, C. Gutting, Edward Rust, H. R. Richards, George Hall and Fred H. Allen were present. The principal item for discussion was the publicity scheme and after many interesting points had been brought out it was the opinion of everybody at the meeting that a pro-rata arrangement along the line of what is done in some eastern cities would be better than the present one of an open subscription list.

Jack Gilroy, of San Francisco, and his wife and children were visitors here.

C. E. Morton and wife and Fred Hillis and wife are on a pleasure trip to Catalina island. The island has been a popular place with florists.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton returned from Phoenix, Ariz., last week, in order that their son Henry might have a vacation.

Robert G. Fraser & Son, of Pasadena, are optimistic about seed conditions, the recent warm weather after the flowers were fully developed being just what was needed for their asters, zinnias, gypsophilas, delphiniums and other timely crops. D. G. Fraser says that most people would be surprised to know the amount of flower seeds that are grown in California and shipped back by European and eastern houses. "It is still in its infancy," he says, speaking of the growing end of the business. He has left on a business trip to Santa Barbara.

Pete Wolfskill, of the Orchid Flower Shop, Pasadena, has returned after an enjoyable coast fishing trip of two weeks.

A call at the store of the Art Floral Co., at Long Beach, was a revelation and shows the way business has boomed at this popular seaside resort in the last five years. The store, now under the management of R. F. Rossi and J. S. Stameson, is about 30x60 feet, nicely arranged with a large icebox. At the rear of the store is a fine room for making up and other work. The quality of the stock shown is quite equal to that of the average store and the whole thing is a credit to the hard-working partners who have advanced it from a small beginning.

The store and window display at F. Lichtenberg's store is always choice and attractive and seldom more so than on the occasion of a recent visit, when some beautiful made-up baskets, the work of that clever decorator, Harry Hansen, formed the principal display.

Fred Dostal and Harry Morgan are among the busiest men in town at the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, owing to an immeasurably good run of business at a time when some of the staff are away on their vacations. Mr. Wolters is also absent for a time, but the store is especially attractive and keeping this up and attending to orders is a big job. Mr. Dostal is well pleased with the success of his new venture.

ROBT. G. FRASER & SON, "Busch Gardens," Pasadena, Calif.

Some fine Cattleya gigas—evidently of a later-flowering variety than the type—are making a nice display at Wright's Flower Shop. F. Westrom says that with others of the staff on their vacations, it is keeping him and those remaining on the jump to keep up with the orders.

S. Murata & Co. have an immense stock of baskets at their large store on Los Angeles street. Besides large consignments of domestic manufacture, Mr. Murata has a large stock coming from Japan and the baskets are extremely attractive. He says it is difficult to procure sufficient good stock to keep up with the demand for long-distance shipping.

Some of the finest auratums yet seen in the city were noted at the store of the Broadway Florist. Business is brisk here, but the wedding bells that we have all been listening for so long are slow in ringing. But Dan says, "Make no mistake; they are going to ring all right."

George Hall & Co. are making up a carload of palms and other stock for a southeastern shipment.

Mrs. Steke, of the Great Bend Greenhouses, Great Bend, Kan., who has been visiting her father and friends in Pasadena, intends leaving for home shortly, as she says they will be getting busy and she wants to be there.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Asters are not so plentiful as they were a few weeks ago. Many that come in are not so fine as they have been. The decreased supply of asters has caused a slight increase in prices.

Good roses and carnations are scarce. There are some attractive roses on the market, most of which are at present needed for local demand. It is too early for chrysanthemums to be considered actually in season. Two weeks from now, it will begin to be profitable and satisfactory to ship them east. Dahlias are being extensively displayed in the stores. Gladioli are fairly plentiful. The second crop of asters will come in early in September, and undoubtedly asters will be shipped right along. Many other attractive flowers are seen on the market. The local demand, especially in decorative pieces, seems to be for vivid colors.

Various Notes.

The E. W. McLellan Co. states that Russell roses are better this season than they have been for some years. The firm is now getting ready for winter, with new stock. It is planting 20,000 Columbia roses and nearly 15,000 Premier. This firm had bought about 600,000 freesia bulbs, before the scarcity became evident, and is planting about 500,000 of these bulbs. These are 2-year-old bulbs, which are good here; 3-year-old bulbs and over are needed in the east, but 2-year-old bulbs produce good results in California, because they do not have to be forced so much here, according to this firm. They are grown outside until about Christmas and then given a little forcing. The flowers are ready for the market early in the year. The E. W. McLellan Co. buys its bulbs and does not raise any.

J. A. Axell reports a brisk shipping business to all sections of the United States. He considers that the real shipping season for chrysanthemums will begin with the month of September.

Mums and violets are the two long-distance flowers and Mr. Axell considers that chrysanthemums will keep his shipping department busy until violets come in, about the middle of October.

Chrysanthemums are coming in nicely, according to the United Flower & Supply Co., which is already shipping mums to coast points and east as far as Denver. This firm congratulates itself on having laid in a large stock of strawflowers early. The demand for these was fairly good last year, but this season it has increased to a remarkable degree.

Henry Domoto, of Domoto Bros., has gone east on business. He is expected back next month.

Enomoto & Co. are taking orders for chrysanthemums for September shipment. They continue to ship asters to coast points as well as east.

The Bertrand Flower Shop, in the Palace hotel, is busy with decorations, in addition to its usual trade with guests and visitors to the Palace. Fred Bertrand reports that business has taken a sudden jerk upward.

Julius Eppstein, in the St. Francis hotel, has orders for decorations for some of the coming society weddings. They are all to be in different colorings. Not one is in white.

Some of the prize varieties in dahlias are being shown at B. M. Joseph's store, on Grant avenue. These are some of the kinds that will be displayed at the coming dahlia show, in September.

The Royal Flower Store, on Polk near Sacramento street, finds that business has picked up much during the last two weeks. Homes that were closed all summer are now reopened and the opening of the school year is proving good for retail florists.

Recent visitors to San Francisco include O. C. Saake, proprietor of the Saake Flower Shop, Los Angeles. Mr. Saake was accompanied by his brother, William. Another visitor from the south is H. A. Siebrecht, Jr., of Pasadena.

Mrs. Maude McGovern, of the Rosery, Winnipeg, Man., is visiting the trade here.

The California State Floral Association, one of the oldest organizations in the state, has closed a successful dahlia show, which was given in Red Men's hall. Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., exhibited some fine seedlings and had no competitors.

The will of the late Charles M. Volkman, who died here last month, has been filed for probate. The executors are his partner, Joseph G. Cox, and his son, Edwin H. Volkman. The will disposes of $1,000,000. Mr. Volkman was in the seed business in this city for 57 years. He is survived by his wife and nine children. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Fairly steady sales, plenty of funeral work and not too much stock combined last week to put florists in an optimistic frame of mind and start the current week without any glut of flowers on the market. A number of novelties have been shown recently. The standard lines are showing some improvement in quality, while prices have been maintained well.

Roses seem to have the biggest increase in deliveries and one of the growers reports that his outdoor cut is the heaviest that he has ever enjoyed. The late cuttings of Russell have shown a decided improvement over last month's crop and Irish Elegance is more plentiful. Ulrich Brunner and Caroline Testout have both sold well and Ward is more common. Fine Columbia and Ophelia are seen and baby roses are being cut by most growers.

The supply of carnations is steadily increasing. Dahlias are appearing, although it will be two weeks before they are offered freely. They are being featured with asters, which are at the height of the crop now. Some of the finest purple and blue stock ever shown here is being handled now. Sweet peas are holding up well and are selling freely at the lowest prices seen this season. They are being freely combined with orchids, since the supply of gardenias has again slackened and will hardly fill current demands. Snapdragons are in lighter supply, while gladioli are offered so freely as to be almost a glut at times. Golden Glow and a number of varieties of thistles are being shown for use in this combination, while Shasta daisies move less freely. Water lilies, Lilium rubrum and Myhrus Phyleen are plentiful enough to fill every need.

Various Notes.

Washington florists are likely to have a representative in the next session of the state legislature, with A. A. Kelly, of Kelly's Gardens, Spokane, filed in the third district on the Republican ticket.

George Melby, at present with Kenney's Home of Flowers, announces that he will open a shop of his own October 1, in the new building being erected at Fourth and Pine streets. The store is 15x32 feet, with a basement workroom. Mr. Melby operated Melby's Flower Shop, on Pike street, until drafted into service in 1917.

F. C. Schricker, of Bremerton, has outgrown the quarters taken over there less than a year ago and is installing a fine new retail shop in the new Keith building, on Main street. In addition he is putting in two greenhouses, which will give him about 10,000 feet under glass.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop has been kept busy, since five of the force are away on their vacations. Harry Crouch reports a good sale on the variety of novelties available in good quality at this time.

George Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., and his family; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rosaia; his sister, Miss Alvera Rosaia, and a party of twelve spent four days last week climbing Mount Rainier. They reported a splendid trip.

H. H. Wenzell, of the Broadway Flower Shop, has handled the decorations for a number of important weddings lately.

H. Plath, of San Francisco, was a visitor recently. He was on his way home from a vacation spent in the Yellowstone National park.

The Hollywood Gardens are showing some excellent Roosevelt and Norwood ferns. Some of the finest purple asters seen this season are coming in also.

Mrs. Winters, who first engaged in the florists' business at San Diego, Cal., has opened a retail store at Toppenish.

H. Lindley has been enjoying a visit from his brother, Albert, a California farmer.

Mr. Ludwig, of the Saxonwald Nursery, at Castle Shannon, Pa., and Paul Hilman, of the old Woodland Park Floral Co., were trade visitors recently. Edward Brown, of Vancouver, who is in charge of the greenhouses for Brown Bros. & Co., was also here on business.

Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., has been showing some King of Autumn dahlias, which equal any seen this year.

Thomas Wylie has been offering some fine Golden Glow and flowering thistles lately and will have a number of fall novelties. H. M.

EVERETT, WASH.

Enabling the Everett Floral Co. to double its output and grow all its own flowers, the six greenhouses owned by H. H. Peterson & Son, 3526 Broadway, are now practically completed. The structures average 25x100 feet and are situated on the corner of Thirty-sixth and Lombard streets. The new range takes the place of the smaller houses which were torn down to make room for it. To make the enlargement possible, an addition of two and one-half lots was purchased. When the new greenhouses are completed, they will contain 25,000 square feet of glass.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

This territory cannot offer any improvement in the way of change in market conditions. If anything, the supply is heavier and the demand is at the lowest ebb. In quality, however, roses, in particular, are almost up to the winter flowers. At no time has such good summer stock been offered. This can be said of gladioli likewise. Easter lilies are exceptionally good and are the only flowers moving at a profit to the grower.

Various Notes.

Fred Burki, president of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has improved in health and left Los Angeles, Cal., recently with his daughter Roma. They expect to visit Pittsburgh for several months.

Pittsburgh and vicinity were well represented at the Cleveland convention and everyone seemed to enjoy his stay while in Cleveland. The McCallum Co. distributed powder puffs to the fair sex and key rings to the men as souvenirs, while the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. gave brushes to the ladies and Pittsburgh stogies to the men. Every visitor seemed to appreciate these small remembrances.

Pennsylvania seemed to be the lucky state during the convention this time, as Miss Kelly, of the J. W. Glennon Co., Kittanning, Pa., won the Randall electric fountain, while C. D. Kennedy, manager of the Oakwood Rose Gardens, Oil City, Pa., received the set of wicker furniture. Frank J. Zak, of Pittsburgh, Pa., won a lamp.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa., stopped here on his way home from the convention.

Edward Ashcraft, of the cut flower department of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is spending his vacation with his family on Lake Erie.

David Geddis, of the St. Louis Cut Flower Co., stopped here to call on his old friends on his way east.

W. D. Howard, of Milford, Mass., stopped here while driving home from the convention. H. J. H.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

JOHN F. KOEGLER, of Stockton, Cal., is starting a new nursery.

THE Winchester Nursery Co., W. P. Massey and C. F. Massey, of Winchester, Va., and G. F. Hetzer, of the Mountain View Nursery, of Williamsport, Md., have purchased the Foreman farm, at Inwood, W. Va., for $23,000 and will start a nursery there soon.

PRIVET AS FLOWERING SHRUB.

With privets as with persons, the untrained sometimes has a natural beauty which the trained lacks. A recent addition to the privets, Ligustrum Ibolium, while quite valuable for hedges, also develops when left untrimmed into a graceful flowering shrub, its delicate white flowers resembling somewhat those of one of its parents, Ligustrum Ibota, from which also it derives decided hardiness of growth. A spray of the flowers is shown in the accompanying illustration.

Ibolium's hardiness is a distinct improvement over its other parent, L. ovalifolium, otherwise known as California privet, whose foliage that of L. Ibolium resembles, though being a little less glossy and of a somewhat lighter shade of green; the new privet also matures its foliage a little earlier than California privet, taking on before maturity rich bronze hues. The flowers are followed by clusters of berries which stay on the plant well into the winter.

Experiment stations in the United States and Canada have plants of Ligustrum Ibolium growing in their grounds and can doubtless give information as to its behavior in their various localities.

GARDENERS' ASSOCIATION.

Amendments to By-Laws.

The National Association of Gardeners, at its convention at St. Louis September 14 to 16, will take action on amendments in regard to its membership, which, if adopted, will not only increase dues, but put a mark of quality upon those who belong to that body. The executive board or its authorized committee on membership can admit or expel anyone not deemed fit to be a member of the association, without being compelled to give reason for such action to either the individual or the association. The association aims to make its membership a sign of professional integrity, so that it shall be a recommendation in itself. The resolutions to be adopted are as follows:

"To amend article 2, by adding two sections, section 7 and section 8, as follows:

"Section 7. Applicants for active or associate membership shall be passed on by a membership committee to consist of the secretary and any two members of the executive board, on whom the secretary shall be authorized to call, to pass on applications. An applicant for active membership must provide the membership committee with complete record of his gardening experience and references as provided for on the application blanks.

"Section 8. The executive board, or its authorized committee, shall have the power of refusing to admit an applicant to membership and shall be empowered to expel from membership anyone guilty of unprofessional conduct or other conduct calculated to reflect adversely on the association. The executive board shall be under no compulsion to give any reason for its action in refusing an applicant for membership to, or expelling a member from, the association, either to the individual concerned or to the association.

"To amend article 3, section 1, by making the dues $5 a year, instead of $3 a year as now provided.

"To amend article 3, section 3, by making the dues for life membership $50, in place of $25 as now provided."

ALLOW ENTRY FOR EXPORT.

The Department of Agriculture has published a new set of rules and regulations governing the entry into the United States of plants for immediate export, which went into effect August 1.

These rules and regulations are a revision of and supersede the rules and regulations governing the entry for immediate export of prohibited plants and plant products promulgated October 20, 1917, effective December 1, 1917.

"The purpose of section 7 of the plant quarantine act of August 20, 1912," states the department's circular, "is to provide authority under which insects and diseases injurious to plants may be excluded from the United States. This section provides that 'no person shall import or offer for entry

Furthermore, the bringing of prohibited plants or plant products to a port of the United States or into the territorial waters of the United States, whether the same are offered for entry or not, constitutes a violation of the act, even if no actual unloading or landing is made.

"The purpose of these regulations is to modify the quarantine orders as to plants and plant products now excluded, or which may hereafter be excluded by quarantine, so as to make provision, where such action can be taken without risk to the plant cultures of this country, for the entry of such plants or plant products either for immediate export or for immediate transportation and exportation in bond to meet the occasional exigencies of commerce. The purpose is to provide for such entry and transshipment only at such ports and under such conditions of unloading and transfer of cargoes or transportation in bond as shall conserve the interests of the United States. ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

There has been one steady glut of outdoor stock, principally of gladioli and asters. Sweet peas are much shorter in stem and do not sell so readily. Good phlox and hardy perennials are seen, but move slowly. Carnations are practically out of the market now and only a few irregular shipments are seen. Hardy summer pompons arrive quite frequently, but, owing to so many other outdoor flowers reaching us, the sale of these is not large. Easter lilies are received quite frequently, but the trade does not call for them often. Good auratum and speciosum lilies are seen and move well. In roses the supply is larger than the present demand. Orchids are in fine shape, but the demand is quite small just now. Greens are fairly plentiful and they supply about all the needs at present. There have been good sales of Boston and Whitmanii ferns, palms and crotons.

Various Notes.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Milton Selinka, of New York, recently.

From reports gathered from the flower committee of the Rochester exposition and flower show, much interest is expected to be taken in the display of cut flowers and plants. The exposition opens Labor day, September 6. H. J. H.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

A discussion of the plans for the September exhibition and an address by Andrew J. Dorward made the last meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society practical and interesting. Mr. Dorward's address concerned hardy annuals and the improvement that he has seen among them.

The committee on awards reported favorably on a single dahlia, named Newport Wonder, that was shown by William MacKaye, gardener for Henry A. C. Taylor, and the recommendation of a first-class certificate was adopted. The dahlia originated with James Robertson five years ago. It is rosy salmon in color, has eight petals and is seven inches in diameter under ordinary culture.

Various Notes.

Samuel W. Smith, Jr., has been reappointed postmaster at Jamestown by the postmaster-general.

John Mahan has been appointed assistant to Andrew K. McMahon, the veteran superintendent of Island cemetery.

Oscar Schultz reports that business during August has been a great improvement over that of the preceding month.

V. A. Vanicek, who underwent a serious operation at the Newport hospital, has returned to his home much improved.

Samuel Vetters, who has been seriously ill for several months, is reported as improving. W. H. M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business this summer has been far ahead of that of any previous summer in the history of present-day florists. All of the downtown stores have been renovated and they have been arranging for the opening of the fall season, while the growers have their houses all well in hand. Most of the growers are busy benching their carnation plants.

Various Notes.

The horticultural building at the Rhode Island State College, at Kingston, burned to the ground shortly after noon Sunday, August 15. All efforts made by the firemen to extinguish the flames were fruitless, owing to the inadequate supply of water. The adjoining greenhouses and nearby buildings were saved, but the loss on the main building amounted to about $6,000.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

Outdoor stock is arriving in larger quantities this year, owing to the favorable climatic conditions prevailing. Last season gladioli were scarce, but this year they have been a glut on the market, mainly because the farmers planted large fields. Now they find they have no time to cut the stock and florists who go after it get it for a song.

Business is good for August and everyone speaks of July trade as having established a record in their summer turnovers. The young stock is coming on splendidly and everything augurs well for a good chrysanthemum season. Orchids are off crop, but the first roses of the new cut are exceptionally healthy.

Various Notes.

Nine or ten of the Brampton florists attended the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association at Hamilton last week and were delighted with the enthusiasm manifested throughout the discussions. Many of the trade are now on their vacations and it was quite interesting at the convention to be again rubbing shoulders with men from Calgary and as far east as Halifax and Hellarton, to say nothing of meeting the ambassadors of commerce and representative florists from Boston, New York and the other large cities across the border line.

J. E. Cooper is staying at Georgian bay and E. Dale is at Southampton. T. G. Davis attended the Cleveland convention. Among those who have visited the greenhouses in Brampton lately are George Tull, Oak Ridge, Va.; J. H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill; Max Schling and W. R. Cobb, New York; A. Gude and W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Andrew Tino, Montreal, and A. N. Terrill, Calgary.

Greenhouse Heating

SIZE OF BOILER.

I would appreciate some advice on the sketch I am sending you. The residence is a 2-story brick building with basement; the greenhouse will be on a level with the basement, against the southwest end of the residence. I want to heat it with hot water. What size of boiler will I need, and what size of pipes? Where should the supply tank be placed? I want to heat to 60 degrees when it is 10 below zero. I want to place the boiler in the basement nearest the greenhouse. There is one outside entrance. There are 4-foot walls of concrete on the sides, with two feet of glass and a 4-foot concrete wall across the southwest end.

M. D.—Ind.

The sketch shows the greenhouse to be 30x50 feet, with a door in the side wall near the north end. It will be well to use five 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one upon each plate, one under each purlin and another three feet below the ridge. Connect these at the farther end of the house with fourteen 2-inch returns. Place two returns in the coil to be supplied by the middle flow pipe and three in each coil to be supplied by the other flows.

If preferred, four flows might be used with fifteen returns, but this would not give as even a distribution of heat as when five flows are used. On the side where the door is located, it will probably be best to have the end of the coil on the south side of the door.

Connect the flow pipes at the highest point, which should be near the heater, with the pipe leading to the tank, which should be located as high as possible in the residence or under the ridge of the greenhouse.

HEATING NEW HOUSE.

I am enclosing particulars regarding a new house which I want to heat. Please give me full information.

H. L. H.—Kan.

The sketch indicates that the house is 22x50 feet, with four feet of glass and four feet of stone in the side walls. The south wall also has glass above a 4-foot wall. The office building forms the north wall of the greenhouse. No indication is given of the temperature desired, or of the use to which the greenhouse is to be put, but we infer that a temperature of 60 degrees will be needed when the outside temperature is 10 to 15 degrees below zero.

There appear to be two doors in the east wall, which will prevent running a coil on that side, but the plan seems to include one greenhouse to be built against that side of the house; a second house probably will be constructed, which would lessen the amount of radiation required.

To heat the house as described, you should use four 2½-inch flow pipes, running one upon each plate and the others upon the purlin posts about two feet below the sashbars. Use four 2-inch returns in the coils under the west bench and three returns in each coil under the middle benches. For the east side it will probably answer if a coil of four returns is run from the vestibule door to the south door on the east side of the house and another coil of four returns is run on the wall or under the bench between the doors on the east side. If the north corner of the house is much exposed and if there is a space of ten feet or more from the corner to the north door on the east side of the house, a coil of four 2-inch pipes might be run below the door leading to the office around the corner to the door leading into the greenhouse.

The main return pipes should be of the same size as the overhead flows and all pipes should slope downward about one inch in fifteen feet. The highest point in each flow pipe should be connected with the pipe leading to the expansion tank, which should be located as high as possible over the office. In case the tank is located where there is danger of its freezing, it will be advisable to connect two of the flow pipes directly with the tank, so that a circulation can be secured.

In case a temperature of 50 degrees will answer, one return may be left out from each coil, unless the house should be piped for a temperature of 20 to 25 degrees below zero, in which case the number already suggested will be required for a temperature of 50 degrees and another pipe should be added to each coil for 60 degrees.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Last week was probably the worst this summer, caused by an abundance of all kinds of stock, with nothing to cause any demand. The market was flooded with gladioli and much other outdoor stock. Roses are more than plentiful and even carnations, usually scarce at this season, more than meet the feeble demand. Some fine asters and dahlias are coming in now.

Various Notes.

Ralph E. Hill, of the Elitch Gardens Co., and wife, are spending a two weeks' vacation on the Gunnison river.

Mr. and Mrs. Saurwald, of the Colonial Floral Shop, at Pueblo, Colo., were visitors last week, also J. W. Watson, of Grand Junction, and Mr. Reed, of the Fort Morgan Floral Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers motored to the top of Pikes Peak August 15.

The vacation rush is on now, before the season closes. Emil Glauber is on a fishing trip. N. A. Benson and Ben Boldt are also seeking the speckled beauties this week. R. E. H.

CROP REPORT FROM HOLLAND.

LETTUCE. Quite small planting.

MANGEL-WURZEL. SUGAR BEET. Because of the high wages and the high corn, flax and sugar prices and also because people did little in transplanting the sprouts, the planting has been greatly neglected, so that it is hardly possible to meet even the home requirements in many varieties. The crop prospects are not bad; however, recently the plants have been attacked by lice.

ONION. Small planting of the Dutch sorts. In general, the other varieties are altogether lacking. Stand rather satisfactory.

PARSNIP. Small planting. Stand middling, here and there rather feeble.

PEAS. Of the early varieties the plantings are fairly sufficient; of the others there are only smaller fields. Stand good.

PEAS, SUGAR. The principal varieties have been sown in rather considerable lots, the others in smaller plantings. Stand satisfactory.

PEAS, WRINKLED. Generally small planting. Stand satisfactory.

SCORZONERA. SORREL. Almost normal plantings. Stand rather good.

SWEDE TURNIP OR RUTABAGA. The unfavorable situation has decreased the planting of this seed considerably. At some places there are worms in the shells; for the rest, the stand is satisfactory.

SWISS CHARD. Medium planting; prospects for crop are satisfactory.

TURNIP. This planting, like the mangel-wurzel planting, is small, and for the same reasons. At the slightest cause the growers have subsoiled their fields and, in consequence, the production this year has decreased considerably.

FLOWER SEEDS.

Although the plantings have been greatly limited, owing to the war, the assortment has become somewhat larger again. At the time of planting, the soil and weather conditions were quite favorable for the small plants; the growth is excellent and a good crop may be expected if the weather, upon which much depends, is favorable.

TRI-CITY FLORISTS MEET.

Seventy members of the Tri-City Florists' Club, which draws its membership from Moline and Rock Island, Ill., and Davenport, Ia., met Wednesday afternoon, August 11, at the American Home, on Mulberry avenue, Muscatine, Ia. Emil Kranz, who, with his wife, acted as the host of the occasion, is the only Muscatine member of the club. Mrs. Kranz served a bounteous dinner to the visitors.

The afternoon program opened with an address of welcome delivered by Mayor R. S. McNutt, of Muscatine. C. H. Claussen read an interesting paper on gladioli, which was discussed by those present.

During the business session a committee on arrangements for floral displays at the Mississippi valley fair and exposition, which was to be held at Davenport August 16 to 21, was appointed, as follows: Emil Kranz, C. J. Reardon, C. O. E. Boehm, H. Pauli, H. Bills, L. Stapp, H. Gaethje and John Staack.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

The market last week was much the same as in the few weeks previous, with much stock and few sales.

Gladioli and asters are glutting the market and the retailer has no difficulty in getting stock at almost his own price. Some exceptionally good gladioli and asters sell at a fairly good price, but the majority bring only $1.50 to $3 per hundred. Some fine astermums arrived, but soon found a ready market because of the inferiority of most of the stock.

New carnations made their first appearance this season last week and went only fairly, as they are still quite short and the blooms small; the retailer can use them only for funeral work.

Harrisii and rubrum lilies hold up well and bring a fair price. Roses are coming in better all the time and, considering the abundance of other flowers, they are bringing a good price; they range from $4 to $15 per hundred.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell is enjoying a stay of a few weeks in Bath, Me.; he intends to visit the trade in the east on his way back. His store is receiving some of Charles Pommert's new gladiolus, which Mr. Pommert has named White Wonder.

Earl Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., Mrs. Mann and their children recently visited this city. Mr. Mann reports a large crop of roses for the fall and winter business.

William Hull, of the Bristol Floral Co., Bristol, Tenn., has recently recovered from a two months' siege of pneumonia; he was at the Christ hospital in this city.

At the monthly meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society, at H. W. Sheppard's store, a resolution was adopted to the effect that the American Carnation Society should be asked to hold its 1922 meeting in Cincinnati.

Among the florists who stopped in this city on their way home from the Cleveland convention were the following: Mrs. Fanny White, Lexington, Ky.; M. A. Herrick, Owosso, Mich.; Mrs. W. B. Johnston, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Fred Keller, of the John A. Keller Co., Lexington, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Rambler, who are connected with the store of Miss D. E. Ruch, Shreveport, La., and W. S. Wells, of the BluMaize Blossom Shop, Ann Arbor, Mich.

The local trade was, as usual, well represented at the annual county fair. Ball & Betz won four first prizes for an artistic floral design, a table decoration, a cut flower basket and hanging ferns. C. Jones had three firsts for decorative plants, cut flowers and blooming plants. Albert Sunderbruch won two firsts for miscellaneous plants and a choice Sprengeri asparagus. G. H. K.

AFTER

Remarkable Results!

The accompanying illustration is of a Dendrobium Thyrsiflorum in a six-inch pot grown by James Livingstone, Supt. for Mr. Fred Vogel, Jr., Milwaukee, Wis.

In speaking of his success, Mr. Livingstone says:

"This Dendrobium had ten beautiful racemes open at one time. During the winter time, this plant received applications of Nitro-Fertile at least three times a week. Nitro-Fertile was used in the proportion of one ounce to one gallon of water, until the plant was almost in full bloom. I have no hesitancy in saying that most of my success was due to Nitro-Fertile and can recommend it with the greatest confidence in culture of greenhouse plants in general."

The Market.

There was little doing in the retail stores other than funeral work last week. Everyone was doing a steady business. There is abundance of asters and gladioli.

Various Notes.

The Muehlebach Flower Shop has artificial poppies made of red silk, which look quite natural. They will be worn with the silk and wool dresses this fall, taking the place of the popular organdie flowers.

Miss J. E. Murray has had a busy week filling funeral orders.

Mr. Dolan, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., left for Denver August 19, expecting to stay for a week.

Charles E. Heite, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., has returned from a trip to Colorado.

Mrs. Annabelle Mantell, of Miss Lou E. Boggess's force, was notified of the death of her husband, Andrew Mantell. Mr. Mantell was found dead in his room in a Chicago hotel. He had been dead twenty-four hours. The body was interred in Kansas City.

T. J. Noll has received several telegrams from the west stating that asters and gladioli are ready to be shipped, as has been done in former summer seasons, but owing to our mild summer the market is glutted with such flowers.

Henry Kusik is taking advantage of the dull season by enlarging his salesroom and putting up more shelves. He has been getting in gladioli, roses and asters.

S. Bryson Ayres, of Independence, Mo., has returned from a three days' trip to the state fair at Sedalia, Mo.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. is busy constructing a lake and installing a pump plant. This firm is cutting a big supply of roses, mostly Ophelia, Columbia and Russell. R. C. King, of Leavenworth, Kan., was a visitor at Pinehurst. Tucker Smith was here last week and reports good business.

Mrs. A. Newell and daughter have returned from a pleasant vacation.

Bigger, Better, and Earlier Flowers—Stronger, Heavier Bulbs

J. D. Long, of Boulder, Colorado, says he wouldn't think of attempting to grow "Glads" without Skinner system, now that he has had several years' experience with it.

"The bloom spikes are earlier, bigger and better," says Long. "We now always catch the earliest market and get top prices; even when the market is full.

"Besides which, we often grow bulbs in one year, which used to require two years."

Mr. Long finds that his Skinner System has given equally good results on other things.

More Echoes From The D. & P. Range

Come to think about it, that word echoes just doesn't fit at all, at all.

An echo is a noise, after the noise has stopped noising.

And you know, and we know that although the noise Duckham-Pierson is making, may not be so loud, still the things they are doing are good and big.

By big, don't exactly mean big houses, and big costs, so much as a uniform bigness.

A bigness that results in such a dependable quality and quantity of roses, that rumor tells of prices uniformly above the market.

When it comes to the houses, and equipment in general, we frankly believe it's one of the very finest things we have done.

Furthermore, both Mr. Duckham and Mr. Pierson have been most courteous in welcoming visitors we may take to see the houses.

One of the things for which the range is particularly worth visiting, is the heating plant.

Its entire freedom from pumps, traps and any of the usual complications will open your eyes.

With coal costs what they are, a perfect working gravity system is like the ads. say of Disston's saws, "a mighty handy thing to have about the place."

Soon, firing time will come around again.
Long before it does, why don't you let us take you over to see this heating?

You may get some ideas that will save you a lot of grief.

The way the wind scoots down across the valley is a caution. But the gables are both end and side braced against it.

COAL

Perhaps we can help you get it

In these days of profiteers, strikes, industrial unrest, railroad congestion and tight money the greenhouse owner is confronted with the problem of getting coal for the winter. Some of you are fortunate and have your supply on hand. Others are not so well off.

Some of the best effort of this organization is being directed to this matter of coal supply, and every resource of the company will be available until we know our customers and friends are safe. Write us, no matter where you live—and we will try to help you get coal at a fair price.

Mind you, we are not in the coal business, but this is just a service we want to render you—customer or not.

The AGMCO is an organization of people who want to do unto others as they would have others do unto them. If we can bridge the gap for some of you people who need this kind of service we shall be happy and our reward will be your thanks for our help.

Write us about it. If you are situated so you can spare coal for others, tell us, so we can put you in touch with your less fortunate neighbor. This is a serious matter—a time to forget selfishness and put a shoulder to the wheel. We'll do all we can, but don't wait—write us fully now.

Greenhouse Builders

About the Douglass House At Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

What a choice little layout it is with its 18 by 33 foot greenhouse and attractive work room!

To be right frank with you, the materials for the greenhouse are our part of it.

The work room design and erection were taken care of by Mr. Douglass.

For those who can indulge in these delightful work rooms of special design and construction, it is certainly fine.

However, we have grown to feel that frequently too much money is put in them at the expense of the greenhouse itself.

In a way it's kind of like putting a lot of money in the upholstering of a car and in consequence cutting down on the size and power of the motor.

As a solution for all of which we now have a standard work room made in sections.

Although not at all elaborate in design, it is decidedly attractive.

Just to show you how it looks, took a view of the opposite end of a house exactly like Mr. Douglass's and attached to it, one of the standard work rooms so you can see for yourself what a splendid proposition it is.

Fortunately for you, we have some most interesting circulars that tell you all about our Standard Houses and Work Room. Will gladly send them to you and your employer.

Another Florist Reports 100,000-Mile White

A WHITE TRUCK owned by Hession, New York, is another addition to the already long list of 100,000-mile Whites in the service of florists. This truck, purchased in 1915, has covered approximately 125,000 miles, and is still running in a very satisfactory manner.

"We are indeed very well pleased and satisfied with our White in every way," says Mr. Hession. "It has lived up to all our expectations, has given very efficient service, and we regard it as a valuable asset to our business."

White Trucks are constructed to give economical service over a long period of years. Owners' cost records show that they do the most work for the least money.

WIRE WORK

Manufacture Revolutionized

By means of special machines, built to our order for this work, we are now able to perform practically every operation by machinery at greatly increased speed—and machine-made frames are better made than hand-made frames, perfect in shape and size.

We are able to furnish everything in Standard Designs, also Special Designs of all kinds. Our Boss Wire Worker is a man of many years' experience and national reputation among hand-workers. He can build anything that can be made of wire. Just tell Randall's what you want.

Another great improvement is dipping each frame in a solution of tin. The tin solders every joint—the joints become actually the strongest parts of the piece. It adds tremendously to the strength of the frames and at the same time makes every frame look as though nickeled. Tinning prevents rust.

Our great improvements in the methods of manufacture enable us to offer the trade three important advantages:

Better Quality—Better Deliveries—Better Prices

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

MUM CULTURE IN CALIFORNIA

California cultural methods, though practicable only in the comparatively limited areas where a California-like climate prevails, are of interest to florists in general, in all latitudes and longitudes. A San Francisco wholesaler here relates how mums are handled in the vicinity of his city.

By J. A. AXELL.

THE first California chrysanthemums were grown at Menlo Park, a short distance southeast of San Francisco, in 1887. Some were also cultivated at San Rafael, a few miles northward from the Golden Gate. These were sold as potted plants and for garden use. They were principally grown under glass, but a few were produced outdoors. The outdoor flowers were not protected in any way and their season, consequently, was short. September 25 was about the earliest date of their appearance and Thanksgiving day usually saw the last of them. There were a number of varieties, among them what were known as hairy mums and anemones. Some of the latter were twelve inches in diameter and quite handsome. Unfortunately, the stock of these varieties is lost. No doubt they would sell well if produced now.

Stretching the Season.

Later, the growers began to cultivate chrysanthemums outdoors for the cut flower market. By covering them with cheesecloth and disbudding them, it was possible to extend the producing season for two months, beginning a month earlier and continuing a month later than formerly. At present the season runs practically from August 15 to Christmas or later.

Central California mums are mostly produced in the region between San Francisco and San Jose and the Japanese are their chief propagators. The chrysanthemum is their national flower and was originally brought to California from their country. Few are more patient and skillful in its propagation than they. The young plants are set about six inches apart, in beds, and are grown one flower on a stem. They are tied and staked in the same way as in the greenhouse and are covered with cheesecloth. Considerable commercial fertilizer is used. When mature, the cut flowers are tied in bunches of six dozen each and hauled to the market in motor trucks. No boxes are used; the bunches are simply wrapped in paper and cheesecloth. The San Francisco market is located on Bush street. Here the trucks begin arriving toward midnight and the flowers are carefully placed in water for the morning's market. This opens at 7 o'clock and is usually thronged with buyers.

Favorite Mums at Frisco.

Among the early varieties commercially grown are Chrysolora, Golden Glow, Monrovia and October Frost. These are ready about September 1. For midseason there are Bonnaffon, Chieftain, White Chieftain, William Turner, Yellow Turner, several bronze varieties and Mrs. May Hunter. The last-mentioned was disseminated by a local grower several years ago and is an especially fine keeper. The late mums are Appleton, Wells' Late Pink, Helen Frick and Charles Rager. The growers stay by these varieties and are slow to change for the newer ones. Large quantities of mums, including pompons, are also produced by Chinese growers. These mums are of the usual commercial varieties, but are not disbudded and grown as single flowers. The plants are allowed to bush out and a number of blooms are produced by each one. They appear during the midseason and frequently last till after Christmas.

Pompons and singles are grown in great abundance, but do not come in as early as some of the larger varieties. The heavy cut of these is usually about the middle of October.

Long-distance shipping of chrysanthemums has been going on intermittently for a number of years, but did not assume large proportions till 1914. At that time both buyers and shippers began to realize that the flowers could be successfully sent across the continent, provided proper methods of handling and packing were employed.

Eccentricities of Expressmen.

Each year the business has increased materially, in spite of all difficulties. Until recent years nearly all shipments were carried in ordinary express cars, as no refrigerator service was available for the purpose. The fact that the flowers, even under those circumstances, usually reached their destination in good condition speaks well for their carrying capacity. When shipments arrived in bad order, the trouble was generally due to carelessness of express agents. In many cases the damage was caused by the boxes being piled close to steam pipes and subjected to continual heat. This would naturally cause the flowers to shrivel and present a bad appearance. Again, agents have been known to pile fish and other wet goods on the boxes, drenching the stock with water—sometimes salt water. The result can be better imagined than described. However, the business is rapidly assuming large proportions and the express companies are unquestionably trying to take better care of shipments entrusted to their care.

It is expected that the coast-to-coast refrigerator service, interrupted by the world war, will now be partly resumed. The express company has promised to provide a semiweekly service, beginning early in the present month. That is, twice a week a refrigerator car will leave San Francisco for the east.

Much improvement has also been made in packing methods. Shippers now realize that it does not pay to send anything but the best grade of fresh-cut stock and are using their utmost care in both handling and packing.

When shipped an especially long distance, mums usually arrive in a wilted condition and have to be revived. This is done by breaking an inch or two off the stems and placing the flowers deep in water in a cool place. If some fail to respond, the operation should be repeated. Above all things, the flowers should never stand in a draft.

MUMS AT LOS ANGELES.

Culture in Foothill Country.

Most of the chrysanthemums produced in the vicinity of Los Angeles are grown by Japanese. The mums are planted in the open field from April to June. Before the buds show in August, the plants are covered with cheesecloth. Many of the growers have several acres of mums and such an enterprise involves a great deal of work. The crop is grown principally in the foothill country, in the decomposed granite which occurs there. For first-class results, this soil usually requires heavy fertilization. Glendale, Hollywood and Sierra Madre are leading centers of chrysanthemum culture.

A few of the Japanese grow the mums under glass and the greenhouse flowers usually bring higher prices than the outdoor stock, but last year the weather was so favorable that there was not much difficulty in obtaining good prices for the outside blooms. The growers received $2.50 per dozen in November for No. 1 grade and the lowest price noted by the writer that season was $1 per dozen to the wholesaler.

Delivery at Local Market.

The growers take the stock to the market in their own machines. The blooms are mostly tied in bunches of about six dozen, arranged in tiers of six so that each alternate flower shows. The Japanese are adepts at this style of packing. The bunches are covered with cheap muslin to keep off dust.

Heavy wind, especially following rain, is the condition most feared; it is dreaded even more than frost, which is seldom severe enough to damage the flowers.

The varieties chiefly grown in southern California are Chrysolora, October Frost, October Queen, Jeanne Nonin, the two Eatons, Chieftain, White Chieftain, Bonnaffon, Appleton, Harvard, Mrs. Brock, William Turner, Scalarandis and Mrs. May Hunter. Other varieties are cultivated, but these are most popular and are best adapted for shipping.

As regards the destination of the California-grown blooms, one company has shipped them successfully to Toledo, Cleveland and St. Paul. Some shipments to Pittsburgh were reported poor on arrival. Our principal territory is Arizona, Texas and New Mexico. Other wholesalers report successful shipments to Detroit, to Lorain, O., to Minnesota points and even to New York, but it is doubtful whether shipments to the far east are entirely safe.

Every year the demand increases in the surrounding territory, so that there is less and less need of taking the risk of the extremely long journeys. There are many more chrysanthemum growers in the San Francisco bay district than here, in the south, and the regular shipments of the San Francisco growers cover a wider range of territory.

H. R. Richards.

WHAT'S GOING ON.

There's News in This.

The Jointless Fire Brick Co., Chicago, issues a weekly bulletin for its employees and recent editions show, among other things, what some well known florists are doing.

Here is an extract from the bulletin of August 16:

"From the number of orders we are getting from florists all over the country it would indicate that this is the open season for florists' orders. Perhaps our ad in the Florists' Review is hitting the mark, but what will they be if we put all our salesmen on the trail before the season is over? Go to it! The florists are all in the market, from indications, at this time of the year. Our Mr. Peacock struck an order, from the Davis Floral Co., for a carload at Joliet and we have sold this one concern altogether three cars at different points in Illinois and Iowa. We are putting 40,000 pounds into a greenhouse at Morton Grove and we have numerous orders from florists all around, so please do not get the idea that greenhouses are small pickings. They are real orders."

More Big Business.

And here's a clipping from the bulletin of August 21:

"The editor was called out on the carpet by all three of the men who travel out of headquarters for what he has written in the last bulletin. Mr. Peacock registered a strenuous objection in having only mentioned his three-carload greenhouse orders and accused us of having, deliberately and with malice, omitted to mention his 80,000-pound order for Bassett & Washburn, exclusively engaged in growing roses at Hinsdale, Ill. And then came Mr. Kuttnauer, who took occasion to criticise us for mentioning Mr. Peacock for honors and deliberately omitting his name, when we only mention the 40,000-pound order for Poehlmann Bros. Co., accusing us of trying to take credit for this directly and going right over his head."

The editor of the bulletin evidently is something of a josher, as he explains certain irrelevancies in the issue of August 28 thuswise:

"For the benefit of those who will ask to know, the writer admits that he reads the Florists' Review and the Power Plant Engineering, and sometimes he reads the Gumps. Sometimes he sits and smokes, and sometimes he only sits."

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

FOR HIGHER HAIL INSURANCE.

After reading what was said in The Review for August 12 regarding a revision of our hail insurance, I heartily agree that something should be done. I was hailed out three weeks ago and lost nearly 13,000 square feet of glass. I am carrying a double assessment and the insurance helps out, but does not begin to replace the loss. I believe that the time is ripe to bring this matter up and to have a readjustment of rates made to conform with the prevailing prices of glass and labor.

By the time this reaches the office of The Review our range will be all reglazed. Edward Williams.

WORKING CONDITIONS.

I read A. Hodge's letter in The Review for July 1. I agree with him on the bonus system. But I think that if the owner has had a good year he ought to give his men something at Christmas to show his appreciation; he might give, as Mr. Hodge suggests, salary for one or two months.

I agree with what he says as to why men quit. Many places have too many bosses. Also, they should furnish their men with what is necessary to do the work, such as boots, aprons and syringing coats.

A good grower should be paid just as much as a good mechanic or carpenter or bricklayer or plumber.

I believe that we should be given the 8-hour day, the same as in the other trades. Some places are working nine hours, but most of them have to work ten hours. And we should get the same pay for eight hours that we are getting for ten hours. If a man is working by the day, he should be paid at the same rate for eight hours. If he is paid by the hour, he should be paid enough more per hour to make his pay for eight hours equal what he has been receiving for ten hours.

George Allen.

AS YOUR FRIEND WOULD DO.

We had a number of orders to get out for the funeral of an Italian boy one day recently. A foreign woman came into the store several times, ordering in all three large standing pieces. When she was questioned as to what she desired on the cards, she gave us the name of a man and said: "He is dead, but I am ordering them for him."

This was amusing, but if we had more of these customers, what a help it would be to us during these hot summer days! It may be well summed up thus: "Though your friends be dead, do for them what you think they would do if they were still alive, and 'Say It with Flowers.'" I. L. Bates.

GETTING GROWERS TOGETHER

By J. FRED AMMANN.

AT THE meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association at Cleveland the time given on the program was limited, and so it was decided best not to undertake too much detail work, but rather to confine our deliberations to just a few of the most important matters. The first was the report from the committee on organization, which was printed in the convention number of The Review. The chairman then called for a brief report from each delegation present, with a view of getting the sentiment for or against the formation of a growers' association. There were fifteen districts that reported. Of these, twelve were enthusiastic in favor of organizing and ten of them were entirely in accord with the unit plan, having already organized, or started to organize, locals. In all about one hundred growers were present. There was no opposition to organizing from any community. There was question in the minds of a few as to the best plan to adopt, and the question was raised by some as to just what such an organization proposed to do or could accomplish. This only goes to prove that some of these more conservative communities want first to be shown before they are willing to enter into the plan in full force.

Spur and Check.

Well it is that such a condition of conservatism does exist, for it will help to do two things that will be of much benefit in the end. One is to spur on those who do favor organization towards getting real, tangible results therefrom. The other is to hold in check an element which may become too radical in its tendencies towards organization.

Let us briefly review a few of the principal reasons for this organization and for the unit plan as adopted. First of all, after making a careful estimate of the amount in dollars and cents represented at this meeting I do not hesitate to put the amount of capital invested by growers at a sum in excess of $25,000,000, and it is not exaggerating to say that with earnest efforts on the part of those interested the organization can be made to represent an investment of over $100,000,000. Would anyone be willing to go on record as saying that it would be unwise and not good business to bring the growers with such a large volume of assets into closer coöperation?

Let us review some of the best points brought out by a few individuals against accomplishing actual results and see if they are not after all the best points in favor of organizing, especially in favor of the unit plan. One speaker said the average growers were so constituted that they could not agree on burning the same grade or kind of coal; hence to purchase coal in units would not work.

To Find What Can Be Done.

It was also said that the grower knew nothing about marketing his stock and that the regulating of prices was out of the question, since supply and demand are and always will be the only means of regulating prices. Now, this man, I am quite sure, was entirely sincere in his remarks and did not say this with a view of preventing organization. What he did mean was that these are some of the things that could not be changed and that he wanted to know of something tangible which could be done besides these which would benefit the grower.

If it is a fact that there are communities where there are growers who could not agree on using the same kind or grades of coal when it would be to their best individual and mutual interests to do so, it does seem that, if they could be brought into an organization and could be shown that it is being done successfully elsewhere for mutual benefit, such an organization would be a great benefactor. As to the grower knowing nothing or little of how to market his product, it again seems that if there are such growers—and I know there are many—then if such men can be brought together into an organization and educated along these lines it would be a boon not only to themselves, but also to the other branches of the trade; namely, the wholesalers and retailers. For there are and always will be many growers who sell their own stock and who could be much benefited themselves and through whom the trade at large would benefit if more uniform methods were adopted in the selling. Especially does this apply to plantsmen and propagators of plants. So here we have an argument again in favor of organization and especially for the unit plan, for conditions vary so much in various parts of the country that the problems of the growers can best be solved by organizing in district locals.

We all, I am sure, agree that supply and demand are great factors in the regulating of prices, but I am quite certain most of us also agree that a demand can be created by judicious advertising which will help to adjust conditions caused by oversupply. If there is anyone who doubts such to be the case, I would refer him to the notes giving the proceedings of the S. A. F. convention just held and urge them to read the remarks made by R. S. Latshaw on coöperative advertising.

Worth While.

We have at least a large number of florists, many of whom are growers, who by their contribution to our national publicity fund during the last three years have proved that they do believe in advertising to relieve an oversupply and we have, I am sure, few contributors to this fund who think that the plan of collection is equitable and fair to each. Now then, if the growers' organization can do no more than solve to some extent these problems which some think insoluble and also bring about a uniform and equitable system of collecting funds for advertising, surely it will be well worth while. Before I go into this last subject at length, do not understand from this that I consider publicity the main object of this organization, for, as I have again and again stated, while it is one of the prime aims and objects, it is only one of many, and I am only using it to help to illustrate the plan because it is the one big thing which we have undertaken in recent years. The time is here, however, when a more equitable plan of raising the funds for this purpose must be put into effect or national publicity of flowers will fail. I am quite sure that the growers back of this organization movement are determined that it shall not fail; hence we included this in our considerations when organization was proposed.

This, then, brings us to another reason for organizing on the unit or local plan.

> During the discussion at the meeting in Cleveland when the National Flower Growers' Association was formed, August 19, various questions arose which could not then be fully answered. Here the man who, more than any other, has been responsible for the first growth of the new organization, draws these loose threads together and thus strengthens this new cord of coöperation into something with which growers will more and more wish to tie up.

There are many communities already organized in a coöperative way to raise funds for publicity. Most of these are in large centers and collect their funds on the percentage plan; this is working out quite well where the sales and purchases go through the commission houses. There are, however, as stated before, many growers throughout the United States who sell their own product direct, either at wholesale or retail or both. The only way the percentage plan of collection could be put into effect in such cases would be to go over the books of such firms at various intervals. That is neither practical nor feasible. So the next best method to collect an equitable amount from such firms is on a basis of square feet of glass area; hence, we have put the clause in the constitution of the National Flower Growers' Association that an amount equal to not less than $1 per thousand square feet of ground covered with glass be collected for local dues and that an amount equal to not less than 50 cents per thousand square feet of ground covered with glass owned or controlled by members of any local be paid as dues to the national organization annually. This does not mean or say that every local district shall collect on the square foot basis. It can collect its dues on any plan the members may adopt, the percentage plan, the square foot plan, or on a direct assessment of so much per member; that will be left entirely to each local district to decide for itself, just so long as the lump sum collected is equal to the amount stated.

District Committees.

So here we have several reasons for the unit system of organizing. The others are many, for we all well know how our conditions and problems vary in different communities; some will be all strictly wholesale cut flower growers, others will be wholesale and retail growers and still others will retail the entire output of their greenhouses. So, in districts where there are a mixture of all three, special committees or boards can be appointed to handle the different problems locally. This can be done much better through local branches than by individual membership in the national organization. True, some of these districts will have to be quite large, covering one or more states, in order to be able to retain a paid secretary to look after the work of collecting dues, taking invoices, etc.

Some will say, why then have a national organization at all? Why not let each district be one organization in itself and run its own affairs to suit itself? The purpose and plan of having a national organization and units or locals working under a charter issued therefrom is not, in any way, to have the national body dictate to the locals any specified policies. There are, however, some general fundamentals, in which all locals should be uniform. Those are assessments for national dues, invoice of plants, grading of stock, packing stock, terms and credits, claims and adjustments, along with many other important matters requiring standardization, which can be done in a uniform way nationally. In these, the national body should have absolute jurisdiction. Through the national body, local organizations can be kept in closer union with one another, using it as a sort of clearing house. The fact that the national organization is made up from the local units and has its officers elected by delegates therefrom simply proves that the national body is not intended to be a dictator to the locals, but rather must be a servant of all locals, looking after the welfare of all and keeping them united in one strong body. These are some of the principles we stand for and intend to carry out.

Growers' Child of the S. A. F.

Just one more word in closing, with reference to the relations of this organization to the parent body, the S. A. F. There seems to be in the minds of a few some doubt as to what relationship, if any, this growers' association will bear to the S. A. F. As one who has received the highest honor in the gift of this great organization, I want to say that I would rather live in obscurity all the rest of my life than to take from this great parent body one iota of prestige or progress. I speak not only for myself, but for all who are vitally interested in this new movement, when I say that we are builders, not wreckers. We sincerely feel that each and every one of us can be of more service to the great parent body by coöperating through affiliation as a growers' association than we can as individuals; all we ask is a fair trial. We all love the parent society. We would not dare connect ourselves with any movement that could in any way deprive the old S. A. F. of the title of parent. Yes, we hope to be the largest of its many offsprings, but as such we only pray that we may be able to add more strength to it, helping to build a reserve fund large enough to build for us a permanent home in the national capital and thereby put floriculture on the high plane it deserves before the American people and the world at large.

If there are any communities which want to organize into a district local and want assistance from the national body, get into correspondence with the writer, who will be glad to help you to organize.

GROWERS' OFFICERS.

Following the meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association at Cleveland August 19 the board of directors met to choose the two officers whose selection is delegated to the board by the constitution. J. F. Ammann was continued as secretary of the association and Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., was chosen treasurer.

DISEASED CYCLAMENS.

I am sending some cyclamen leaves which are affected with disease. Any information as to the name of this disease and the remedy for it will be appreciated. O. B.—Mich.

The leaves show unmistakable evidence of cyclamen mite. While many remedies for this dreaded pest have been suggested, I do not know of any real cure except the radical one of throwing away the entire stock and not growing any cyclamens for a year. The mite seems to persist if even one or two plants are retained. Large and usually successful growers have proved this to their cost. Probably the remedy of most value is a good nicotine extract, such as Black Leaf 40, with which the plants should be syringed weekly on the first appearance of the mite, being sure to spray the liquid down well among the leaves and on top of the bulbs. AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Rose Registration.

The following roses have been approved by the registration committee of the American Rose Society. Unless objections are received within three weeks of this publication, the registration will become permanent.

From the Jos. H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind:

Name, Red Columbia; class, hybrid tea; parentage, sport of Columbia. Description—The general habit of the plant, character of the foliage and freedom of growth and hardiness are the same as Columbia. The flower is a long-pointed bud of good texture and of a brilliant scarlet color which is similar to Hoosier Beauty. The petalage, however, is not so full as Columbia. Freedom of bloom and lasting qualities are all that can be desired.

From R. & J. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.:

Name, Betty Alden; class, polyantha; parentage, Tausendschoen x dwarf polyantha. Description—Vigorous growth with glossy, dark green foliage; medium in size; vigorous and hardy bud; flowers single, in clusters; color, apple-blossom pink changing to pure white.

From R. & J. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.:

Name, Beacon Belle; class, polyantha; parentage, Tausendschoen x dwarf polyantha. Description—Habit of plant, character and foliage, freedom of growth and hardiness similar to Betty Alden. Flowers in clusters, especially double and many-petaled and close; flesh color, becoming pure white when in full bloom; fragrance slight.

From R. & J. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.:

Name, Boston Beauty; class, polyantha; parentage, Tausendschoen x dwarf polyantha. Description—Habit of plant vigorous, with leathery, dark green foliage; hardy in growth; flowers in clusters, full and double. It is clear pink in color, with strong fragrance.

BULLHEADED BLOOMS.

I am sending you some rose buds taken from Premier and Columbia plants. Can you tell me why I am getting these bullheaded blooms? They are taken from plants benched early in June. I find that Columbia shows a greater number coming out this way than does Premier. C. R. C.—Pa.

The buds received were badly eaten by thrips. Mix one pound of Paris green with five pounds of brown sugar, dry. Use one ounce of the mixture to one gallon of water. Spray your roses after each syringing. Do not use the spray too heavily, nor leave it too long on the foliage, as it will burn the foliage, making it appear as though the plants were affected with black spot. If this remedy is used consistently during the warm weather, it will soon rid the plants of thrips. Some advise mixing lime with the Paris green to prevent the foliage from being burned, but I have found that it also keeps the thrips from eating the poison. I do not advise mixing any other ingredient, but use it lightly and often. Five ounces in five gallons of water should be enough at one time for 3,000 rose plants and it will not burn the foliage.

FREEZING AMERICAN BEAUTY.

How much freezing can American Beauty plants in benches stand? They are in solid beds. Should the plants be trimmed back before freezing? Is it necessary to cover the beds and, if so, how much covering should they have?

J. S.—Ill.

I do not fully understand the purpose for which this information is sought regarding the American Beauty plants—whether, for lack of fuel or other causes, it is the intention to shut down the house entirely during the winter months and start the plants up again in the spring, or whether the inquirer figures that by freezing the plants they will ripen better and produce better results. American Beauty plants can be carried on the benches while they continue to produce a profitable crop of flowers. As they let up in their production the plants can be dried off and the temperature of the house lowered to between the freezing point and 40 degrees. After the plants are well ripened they can be cut back, lifted, potted up and started into growth for pot plant sales, or they can be lifted and replanted in benches of fresh soil and grown on for the production of cut flowers for another season.

American Beauty will stand a moderate amount of freezing, but severe freezing will ruin the plants. M. P.

SOUR SOIL STOPS GROWTH.

I am sending a package of rose plants, requesting that you examine them for disease and report findings to me.

J. J. F.—Va.

I do not find any disease on these rose plants and am of the opinion that the trouble is caused by sour soil. The roots appear to be in the first stages of rotting and it seems to the writer that the stocks were not well enough started into growth when the grafts were put onto them. When the plants were received the roots had started into new growth, being covered with new white roots, showing plainly that the change from the soil to the moss in which they were wrapped was beneficial enough to the plants to start them into active growth again. I would suggest a change of soil for the plants and less water at the roots until they become better established and have gained control of the soil. M. P.

TRANSFERRING CARNATIONS.

When should carnation plants be taken from the field into the greenhouse? E. J. W.—N. Y.

The carnation plants now in the field should be lifted and planted in the greenhouse benches without further delay. This work usually starts late in July and continues through August until finished, but after August 20 it is considered late for doing the work. M. P.

WIREWORMS IN FIELD.

Can you give us any information as to how we could get rid of black and yellow wireworms, which are doing considerable damage to carnation plants in almost the same manner as the field mice have destroyed many fruit trees during the last year? We have tried tobacco dust, but this did not have any effect on them. Any aid will be gratefully appreciated. M. & O.—N. Y.

If your carnation plants are being attacked in the field, I would suggest that you arrange to lift them at once. Shake off all the soil and in that way rid them of the wireworms. I know of no remedy for them in the field. You could use bisulphide of carbon if the area to be treated were limited in extent, but it would hardly pay in the field. Sterilizing the soil would also destroy them, but that must be done while there are no plants growing in the soil that is treated. A. F. J. B.

FUMIGANT CAUSES TROUBLE.

I am in serious trouble with my carnations. I was expecting to carry them over, and they were fine until about a week ago. Nearly all of the buds turn a light brown and the top of the new growth turns the same color. It is not rust, although I have a little of it. I have been burning sulphur and alcohol as a fumigant. Could that have caused the trouble? If necessary I will send you a plant. D. F. C.—Colo.

I cannot understand for what purpose you are fumigating with sulphur and alcohol at this time of the year. Your trouble probably comes from that source. Discontinue it at once and begin fumigating or spraying with a nicotine solution. Use the nicotine for aphis and thrips. If your plants are infested with red spider, spray with salt water. If you have leaf-spot disease, use Bordeaux mixture, but leave off the sulphur. A. F. J. B.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

EFFECT OF IMMIGRATION LAWS.

On Hiring Canadian Help.

Florists who negotiate with residents of Canada, or any other foreign country, as prospective employers, should remember that Uncle Sam has laid down some immigration laws which contain drastic provisions against certain means of inducing aliens to come to the United States. Following is the text of extracts from these statutes, as found in Barnes' Federal Code:

Section 3702.—It shall be unlawful for any person, company, partnership or corporation to prepay the transportation or in any way to induce, assist, encourage or solicit or attempt to induce, assist, encourage or solicit the importation or migration of any contract laborer into the United States, unless such contract laborer or contract laborers are exempted under the fifth proviso of section three of this act, or have been imported with the permission of the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the fourth proviso. [The penalty for violating the statute is a fine of $1,000, or imprisonment for not less than six months or more than two years.]

Section 3703.—It shall be unlawful to induce, or attempt to induce, any alien to come into the United States by promise of employment through advertisements printed, published, or distributed in any foreign country.

Section 3704.—All contracts which may hereafter be made to perform labor or service by any person in the United States, its territories, or the District of Columbia previous to the migration or importation of the person or persons whose labor or service is contracted for into the United States shall be utterly void and of no effect.

Section 3700.—The following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission to the United States: Persons hereinafter called contract laborers, who have been induced to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; persons who have come in consequence of advertisements for laborers printed, published, or distributed in a foreign country. Provided further, that skilled labor, if otherwise admissible, may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed cannot be found in this country, and the question of the necessity of importing such skilled labor in any particular instance may be determined by the Secretary of Labor upon the application of any person interested. Provided further, that the provisions of this law applicable to contract labor shall not be held to exclude professional actors, artists, lecturers, singers, nurses, ministers, professors, persons belonging to any recognized learned profession, or persons employed as domestic servants.

The last cited section also excepts employees coming to the country temporarily in connection with exhibits at a fair or exposition.

Hits More Than Evils.

Unquestionably, the provisions of the law are broader than the evils that brought about its enactment. As said by a federal judge:

"The motives and history of the act are matters of common knowledge. It had become the practice for large capitalists of this country to contract with their agents abroad for the shipment of great numbers of an ignorant and servile class of foreign laborers, under contracts, by which the employer agreed, upon one hand, to prepay their passage, while, upon the other hand, the laborers agreed to work after their arrival for a certain time at a low rate of wages. The effect of this was to break down the labor market and to reduce other laborers engaged in like occupations to the level of the assisted immigrant. The evil finally became so flagrant that an appeal was made to Congress for relief by the passage of the act in question, the design of which was to raise the standard of foreign immigrants and to discountenance the migration of those who had not sufficient means in their own hands, or those of their friends, to pay their passage."

Doubts as to Application.

A reading of the statutes will show that they are not free from doubt as to whether certain classes of florists' employees are covered by them. On one hand it seems likely that the law would be construed as applying to the ordinary employee, since reference is made to "labor or service" and to "labor of any kind, skilled or unskilled." The law has been held to apply to farm laborers, lace makers, milliners, expert accountants, dairymen and others. But we believe that it would be held that an expert botanist might be possessed of such scientific knowledge and so employed as to be excepted under the proviso exempting members of learned professions. This belief is founded on the fact that the United States Supreme court has decided that a chemist employed as such on a sugar plantation was exempted on that ground.

In case of doubt as to whether the provisions of the law are apt to be violated by a given course of negotiation for the employment of an alien residing abroad, it is strongly advisable to ask information from the Secretary of Labor.

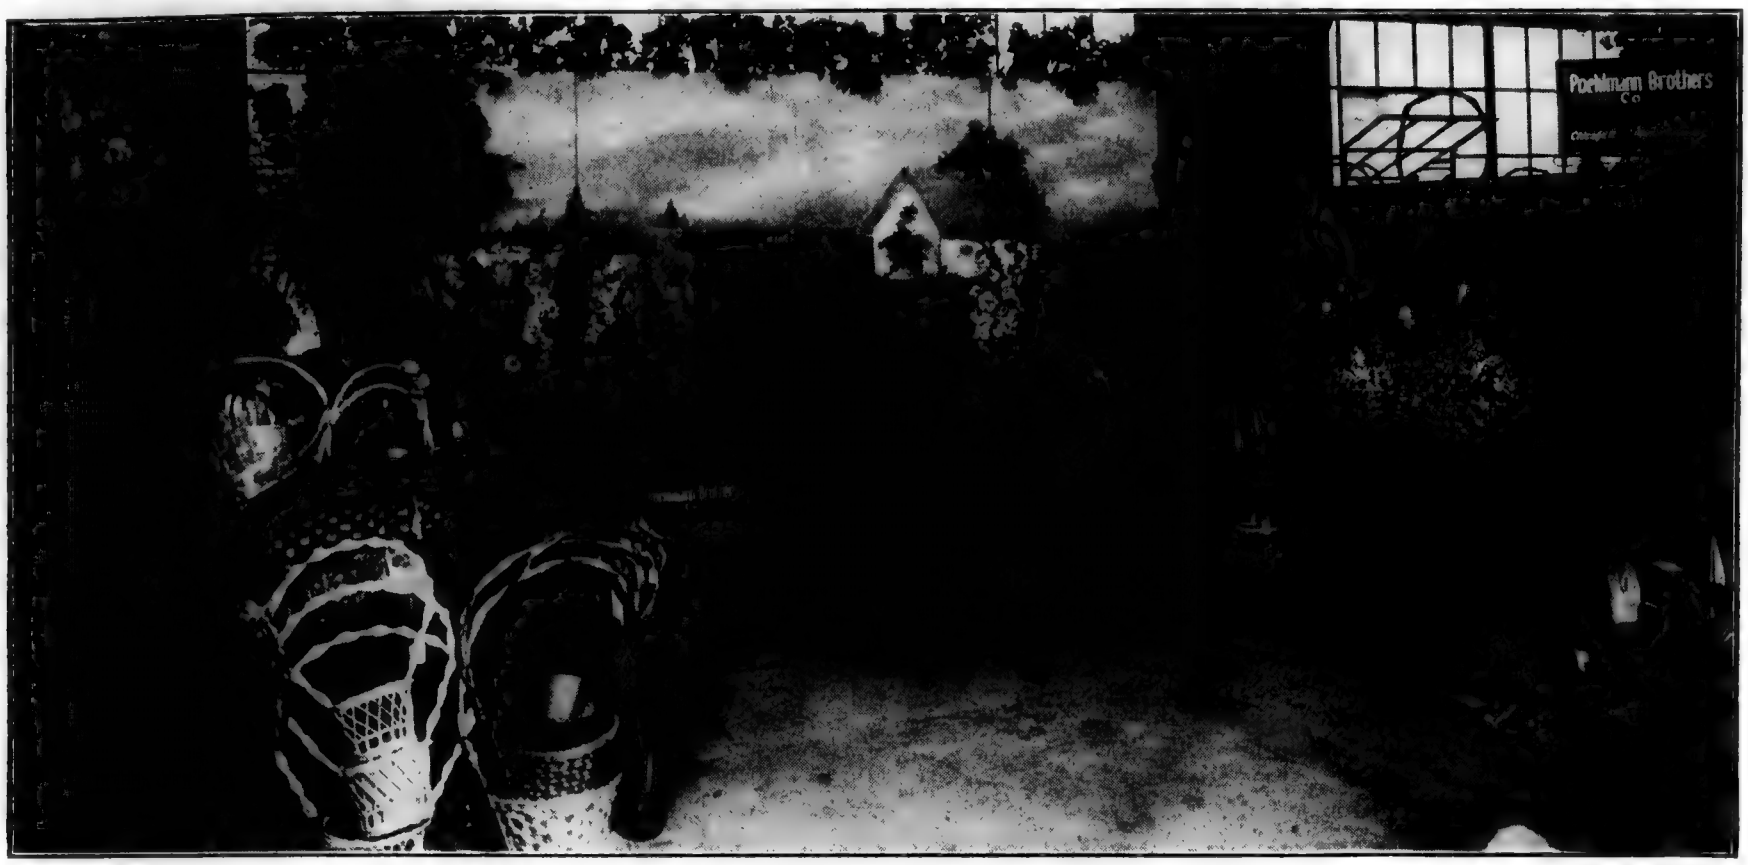
As illustrating how the act may be violated, there is a federal decision holding that there was a violation where an American textile mill advertised in an English newspaper, stating that "first-class weavers could earn 35 shillings to two pounds per week."

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Mrs. W. H. Evans, president of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., announced August 19 that the controlling interest in the corporation had been sold to John L. Nichols, the sale including the retail store at 104 North Tejon street and the range on East Columbia street. Mr. Nichols said at the same time that, while he will devote a large part of his time to the firm's business, there will be no change in personnel.

TATE'S TIPS

PRODUCTION OF LILY BULBS.

Plants in Development.



One evening last winter I listened with a great deal of interest to a lecture by Dr. David Griffiths, of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, on the subject of the commercial production of lily bulbs in this country. Dr. Griffiths not only had lantern slides to illustrate his lecture, but showed actual plants in all stages of development, from the seedling to the finished plant. As I looked at these and marveled, a friend who was with me, Fred G. Bauer, known as one of the best all-around growers in Maryland, said he had been experimenting along these lines for the last ten years and now produced all of the lily bulbs he used. Considering that no finer lilies than Mr. Bauer's come to the Baltimore market and that there is no man of whom I know who has a more exact knowledge of the cost of production of anything he grows, when he says that from an economic standpoint it is possible, there is no doubt in my mind that it can be done.

But I can hear many of my readers say, "Why should I take all this trouble when I can purchase good flowering bulbs in the fall and have no trouble except to flower them?" To such I would recall the old proverb, "In time of peace prepare for war." All of us can remember when a great part of the lily bulbs used in this country came from Bermuda; how many come from there now? Is it not possible that Japan's supply may be a repetition of Bermuda's? Just last year we heard of crop failures in Japan.

Learn How to Produce.

Only a few years ago who would have thought we should have gone through a Christmas without azaleas? There is no doubt in my mind that American brains will solve this problem, that the time will come when azaleas will again be on the market, but why not, in future, solve these problems before the catastrophe comes? Think of what loss the lack of azaleas has brought to florists and then think of the greater loss the absence of lilies would bring. Would it not be well to know at least how to produce your own bulbs, if such an emergency were to arise? Why not produce a few each year, note carefully on these every cent they cost to produce and compare this with what your bought bulbs cost you? Then, like Mr. Bauer, you may prefer to produce your own bulbs.

Good growers say it is a simple proposition, that it is quite possible to produce lily bulbs in this country more cheaply than they can be imported. But we are not going into this phase of the question at this time; the object of this article is to warn the growers to be prepared. With this object in view, I recently visited Mr. Bauer's range and had him explain to me the cultural methods he used, in order that I might pass them on to the readers of The Review. The process is so simple that anyone should be successful. Mr. Bauer saves his own seed; for this purpose he saves any unsalable plant. This is sown in January. When they are ready for potting, the seedlings are put into 2-inch pots, then are shifted to 3-inch pots and then to 4-inch pots; by this time it is August. Then they are allowed to rest a while, after which they are grown into 6-inch and 7-inch pots. In this way, seed that is sown in January will produce plants slightly over a year old at Easter, averaging from five to eight flowers.

Now note that a great deal of the growing time is in the summer, when you are not cramped for room. For instance, take your imported Easter stock today and pot it up, say, as late as October; the only difference between these and your own production is that yours will be a little farther advanced. From October on the cost of both, as far as room and labor are concerned, will differ but little. Now figure out what your plants have cost you up to this time and compare this with the cost of your imported bulbs. If you will do this honestly, you are going to have your eyes opened. It is a grand and glorious feeling to know that you will have bulbs no matter what the bulb market may be, whether there is a crop failure in Japan or Uncle Sam has discovered some Japanese pest which is invading the United States and places an embargo. We have not yet forgotten a cargo that went to the bottom of the ocean. And then we all know that the Jap is something of a scrapper and may have a war on his hands at any time. While this may sound pessimistic, any or all of these things may happen, and any of them is a good reason why every American florist should be in a position to produce his own lily bulbs.

RESOURCEFUL FLORISTS.

One of the qualities of a good decorator is resourcefulness; without it a florist would get nowhere. The exhibition hall at Cleveland was a case in point. Every exhibitor who sought to show his goods to advantage had to devise some sort of stage setting. The problem was especially important for those who had been assigned space next the walls; with them the light was on the wrong side, the goods between the customer and the window. To meet this condition some of the exhibitors set their tables at right angles to the wall and windows instead of against them, while others built artificial backgrounds to block out the windows. Of the latter class was T. E. Waters, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., who erected a beaver-board background on which Miss Groeh, one of his assistants, painted a garden scene. The management forbade flashlight photography because of lack of ventilation, but Mr. Waters left his display in place until after the convention had closed, when the accompanying picture was made.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

To Hold Show in Washington.

The annual convention of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the national capital chrysanthemum show of the florists of Washington, D. C., will be held jointly November 10 to 14 in the old Masonic Temple, Ninth and F streets, N. W., Washington.

The schedule shows fifty-five regular classes for chrysanthemums, classes A to P of special prizes offered by the C. S. A. for chrysanthemums and a number of classes for roses, carnations, violets, begonias, growing foliage plants and growing palms and ferns. All correspondence should be sent to F. H. Kramer, chairman of the executive committee of the show, 916 F street, N. W., and all exhibits to O. A. C. Oehmler, superintendent of the exhibition, old Masonic Temple, Ninth and F streets, N. W.

Officers and Committee.

The present officers of the Chrysanthemum Society of America are as follows: President, Thomas W. Head, Lake Forest, Ill.; vice-president, Z. D. Blackistone, Washington, D. C.; secretary, Charles W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill., and treasurer, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J. Mr. Blackistone, as the officer of the society on the ground for the convention, will have plenty of work to do, and his reputation gives assurance that it will be well done.

The local executive committee for the chrysanthemum show is as follows: Chairman, F. H. Kramer; vice-chairman, Z. D. Blackistone; secretary, George Schultz, 1206 H street, N. W.; treasurer, A. E. Gude; superintendent of show, O. A. C. Oehmler; hospitality, William F. Gude; finance, C. L. Jenkins; judges and awards, Adolph Gude; program, J. Harper Hetherington; entertainment, George C. Shaffer; private gardeners' exhibit, G. E. Anderson.

VEGETABLE GROWERS MEET.

At the twelfth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America at Ohio State University, Columbus, O., August 25 to 28, action was taken which will lead to the association's affiliation with the American Farm Bureau Federation. The association, however, will continue to exist and exercise all its regular functions. As suggested by Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, the association and the federation will each appoint five members of a committee on plans.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., president of the association, responded to the address of welcome of Wendell Paddock, professor in the Ohio State University, and delivered an interesting and stimulating presidential address.

Following a committee report by F. C. Stokes, of the Stokes Seed Farms Co., Moorestown, N. J., the association declared in favor of efforts to standardize varietal names of vegetables and to buy of only those seedsmen who correctly name their varieties. Mr. Stokes brought up this same subject at the last annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, at Milwaukee, and the action of the Vegetable Growers' Association is a further step in coöperative standardization by the various trade organizations.

The attendance at the convention was large and fully representative of the country as a whole, members coming from as far north as Ontario, as far east as New England, as far south as Louisiana and as far west as Walla Walla, Wash.

HOME-WOUND WIRE TIES.

From "Grow Your Own," the slogan to which the restrictions of the Federal Horticultural Board have given a popularity not always happy, it is but a step to "Make Your Own," something for which the trade has ingenuity, if not time or labor, enough. But wherever a florist has originated a labor-saving or expense-saving device, The Review has been glad to spread the news so that all the trade might share in the benefit.

An interesting case of making one's own is reported by George S. Duflot, Lake Charles, La. Mr. Duflot decided that he could save money, at the expense of only a little time, by making his wire ties himself. So he took wire one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter and wound it as closely as possible around a pipe, which was from one to one and one-half inches in diameter, according to the size of the wire tie that he wanted. To facilitate the winding he attached a crank, made of piping and two elbow joints, to one end of the pipe, which he held up by means of two wooden braces or crosses. Then he placed the pipe and coil of wire on a 2x4 timber and clamped it there to hold the wire tight and prevent it from uncoiling. With a cold chisel and a mallet he easily cut the wire into open rings, which, when used on plants, will not slip or fall down, but simply rest on the leaves.

FLOWERS SUCCEED WINE.

Despite the personal predilection of many florists for beverages which are no longer lawful, there was a belief held by a large number of them when prohibition came that the seventeenth amendment would be distinctly to the advantage of the trade. All sorts of benefits have been pointed out by those who held this belief. Some are demonstrable to a certain degree; some are not easily proved, though they may be decidedly felt. But one such gain to the trade is unequivocally pointed out by the following newspaper dispatch:

Thomaston, Me., August 14.—The four-masted schooner, Elizabeth Freeman, launched by the Atlantic Coast Co. today, was christened with flowers by her namesake, a daughter of R. R. Freeman, of Wollaston, Mass. She is chartered to carry lumber from Boston to Buenos Aires.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Philip Breitmeyer, of John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich., was found busy at his desk, following his return from the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland. "I am beginning to check up for the first of the month," observed Mr. Breitmeyer. "To be, and continue, successful, one must look and plan considerably ahead. What is my impression of the general atmosphere prevailing at the convention? The exhibits were first-class and the meetings lively, accomplishing more than at any former gathering. Most assuredly, our society must prosper."

• • • •

Robert Greenlaw, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, dropped in during the chat with Mr. Breitmeyer and mentioned the fact that, during his attendance at the convention of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association, he was much impressed with the spirit of observation shown and the greater necessity of our exemplifying what we purpose to teach. In other words, possessing the greater collective force if unselfishly organized, we can and must blaze the trail.

• • • •

"We were unable to secure the location as mentioned in The Review," observed R. H. Wells, of the Detroit-McCallum Co., Detroit. "We must be content with a below-ground residence for a time and have secured all the space available here to accommodate increasing trade. The first favorable opportunity will find us on the street level."

• • • •

Robert Rahaley, manager of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, is enjoying the remainder of his vacation at Mackinac Island, Mich., to be followed by a visit to the growers, with whom he keeps in personal touch.

• • • •

The window of the L. Bemb Floral Co., Detroit, shows a summer scene, with a fisherman fully prepared for the expectant fish. Albert Pochelon and M. Bloy are on a fishing tour.

• • • •

Harry E. Saier, of Lansing, Mich., was found back from the convention and on the job. He was accompanied to the convention by Mrs. Saier, who, incidentally, is anticipating the trip to Washington next year. Business in all branches is fine. Poultry supplies are booming; a card system tags the number of chickens in town and the owners are known and followed up right along with success.

• • • •

"I am sorry I was prevented from being at Cleveland," remarked Henry Smith, of Grand Rapids, Mich., "but our state horticultural board was making a tour of inspection among the orchards of this county and my being a member made my attendance obligatory. I read with interest the report of the meetings and the list of names of those present. The optimistic tone appeals to me," added Mr. Smith. "I believe that the opportunity to do big things in our profession was never more favorable than now, if gone at in the right way, and I say this after a lifetime spent in the business."

• • • •

"Mum's the word," observed H. L. Scharff, of Scharff Bros., Van Wert, O. "My brother and I have nothing to say just now, but we shall make our little talk later through the Classified columns of The Review, which earned for us last spring $1,000 more than we could return in value. Returning cash disappoints three parties—the sender, the receiver and the earner. We intend to overcome this, if possible, next season and are working up a big stock of chrysanthemums, especially of the Chadwick family, which is our long suit and, fortunately, free from midge." Carnations planted inside were noted as looking vigorous and clean. Matchless and Benora are leaders. Cyclamens in 4-inch pots outdoors in frames were in the pink of condition. The pile of coal was referred to with satisfaction and suggested the thought that the possession of this essential will influence the observant eye of the traveling salesman when making his credit report to his firm in the future.

• • • •

"The evolution of the business," remarked R. J. Wagner, of the Wagner Greenhouses, Tiffin, O., "as applied to us has been remarkable and striking evidence of what watchful care and personal service will do." Originally a market garden business operated by the senior Wagner, it was enlarged when the two sons, R. J. and F. M., conceived the idea of adding the cultivation of perennials upon a part of the 60-acre farm and retailing the cut to the students of Heidelberg University. Then followed a range of glass for cut flowers. This would have been added to this summer if the firm which had the order for material had not fallen down. The business is conducted direct from the greenhouses, which are located only a short distance from town, and the attractive appearance of the place makes a visit a delight, whether one is a buyer or not. A fine planting of Monarda didyma, Delphinium Belladonna and Lilium candidum, both ornamental and profitable, was noted. The monarda is particularly useful in sprays; it lasts long after being cut. NEW YORK.

The Market.

The flower market continues dull and uninteresting. Arrivals are still largely in excess of the demand, which makes clearances difficult, even at bargain prices. Staples, such as roses, lilies and orchids, sustain their values fairly well, only occasional breaks being noticeable, and then, perhaps, for good reasons. Immense quantities of gladioli and asters are still arriving every day, but other outdoor-grown stock is shortening up a little, with the exception of dahlias, the supply of which is increasing.

A few carnations from field plants are coming in and the quality, owing to the rains which have favored the growers this summer, is good, barring, of course, the short stems.

Roses continue in good demand and the supply of flowers in the higher grades is a little better. American Beauty is in fair supply and the demand keeps the special grades up to a range of $15 to $40. Hybrid teas are a little more plentiful than they have been for some time, but a slightly increased demand makes clearances easy. Francis Scott Key seems to rival American Beauty, the fancy grades equaling in price those of Beauty.

The supply of lilies has been quite large for a week and $6 to $8 per hundred has been the price range. A few speciosums are coming in, chiefly of the rubrum variety. Lilium auratum is also occasionally seen. The supply of lily of the valley is rather short, but there is no active demand for it at $6 to $15 per hundred sprays.

The supply of cattleyas is somewhat larger and prices have, in consequence, weakened a little, although selected flowers still command as much as $2 each.

A good assortment of miscellaneous flowers is still available. The varieties have now the additions of tritomas, tuberoses and Hydrangea paniculata. A few Golden Glow chrysanthemums are coming in, but the demand for them is light at $1 to $3 per dozen.

Various Notes.

William Sullivan is severing his connection with the Dolansky-McDonald Co. and is arranging to go into business on his own account.

Thorley's had the family order for flowers in connection with the Vanderbilt funeral last week.

Antonio Martin, of Carballo & Martin, Havana, Cuba, who is making New York his headquarters for a few weeks, is spending a few days in Chicago.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., has returned from his European trip and was a visitor in the market last week.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Public Notice.

The publishers of the Delineator, Everybody's Magazine and the Designer, in a recent advertisement published broadly in the newspapers to carry home their declaration, "Whatever the idea be, to eat more citrus fruit, to line our chimneys with clay, or to use granite for monuments, that idea may be 'sold' to an entire nation by national advertising," featured our publicity campaign, calling particular attention to the great service of the F. T. D. and also to our slogan, remarking of the latter, "With the aid of the florist even the mute may be silver-tongued, for, whatever the occasion, we are being taught by advertising that we may 'Say It with Flowers.' The florists must 'sell' an idea to the nation."

The trade should highly appreciate this making an example of our campaign, this reference to the purpose of our effort to extend the use of flowers. Many times we have called attention to the fact that publicity experts were watching our campaign with interest, and it is quite evident that they have been noting results. We have "sold" the idea to the nation, and it is up to the trade to see that the idea remains sold. This would appear to be an easy task. All that is wanted is the support of those who have been hesitating to make a subscription until they might see that they could not lose anything. All uncertainty as to the benefit to accrue from the campaign is dispelled. Our main object has been attained. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," has gone home.

An Example.

The Shotwell Floral Co., Fargo, N. D., sends us a letter recently received from a customer, which reads as follows: "It might be of interest to you to know that through the kind offices of the little motto, 'Say It with Flowers,' and, perhaps—who can tell?—by virtue of several dozen dark red roses furnished by the Shotwell Floral Co., Miss T— is now Mrs. Roy B. F— and we live at ———." No need to publish the names, although the writer of the letter in his happiness probably would not object. Goodness only knows how many others the slogan has helped through its suggestive force.

It's up to the florists to keep the slogan working all the time. If you have not contributed what you think should be your just portion of the expense, why not attend to this important matter at once? Help to keep the idea "sold." It is to your interest to do so. John Young, Sec'y.

Water Lily Grower Touring Ponds with Seattle Florist's Family.

WATER LILIES IN WASHINGTON.

Our native water lilies are found growing under such apparently simple conditions that amateurs and even professional gardeners who have taken up their cultivation have often given them much less care than they really need. Their essential requirements are a rich, alluvial soil in abundance, water and uninterrupted sunlight. If the water lilies are to be grown in pools, whether natural or artificial, they should be planted where no neighboring shade trees will cast their shadows over the water.

Water lilies can be grown in practically every part of this country, one species or another flowering in the open without artificial heat from April to October. In the central states and southward the hardy varieties decline when hot weather sets in. In the eastern states, and especially near the Atlantic coast, where the nights are cool, the season is much longer and the color of some of the pink varieties is more intense. In California the varieties which are hardy in the east flourish equally well and bloom for a longer period. There, in frostless localities, especially where the lemon tree is free from injury, even tender varieties may be left in the open pond during the winter. In colder localities the tubers should usually be removed to warmer quarters in November, to remain until spring.

That water lilies will grow freely in the northern Pacific states is indicated in the accompanying illustration, which shows part of Haller lake, near Seattle, Wash. Here Mr. Buyers, one of the largest growers of water lilies in the Pacific northwest, produces such beauties as may be seen surrounding the boat in which he is sitting. Those inside the boat are the wife and daughters of George Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., Seattle. By name they are, from left to right, Miss Dorothy, Miss Florine, Mrs. Rosaia and Miss Evelyn.

THE trade must work for better average stock rather than more stock.

HELP, though not of an experienced sort, will be easier to get the coming season.

THERE are getting to be so many trade societies they are in danger of treading on each other's feet.

READJUSTMENTS of wages on a lower level have already spread from the textile industries to some other lines of manufacture.

FOR low sales expense on moving surplus carnation plants, the Classified columns of The Review have proved themselves unrivaled.

IT is better to shut down glass rather than cut prices. The trade can not sustain itself, until coal and labor fall, on lower prices than were received last year.

THE approach of frost finds the trade full of Boston and other ferns. It is a condition common in ante-bellum days. There no doubt will be a scarcity again before spring.

SEVEN new retailers appear in the Pink Part this week. The telegraph delivery section of The Review, now printed regularly on rose-pink paper, is growing faster than at any previous time since it was started.

THE application for an additional increase of fifteen per cent in express rates to cover increased wages, presented by representatives of the American Railway Express, will be submitted without delay to the Interstate Commerce Commission. September 1 the increase of twelve and one-half per cent already allowed the express company became effective.

THE national association of the sweater and knitted textile industry is the latest to start a publicity campaign. Its purpose is to "keep up the interest and demand for knitted manufactures and to stiffen the backbone of the buyers in the trade." Over $27,000 is reported to have been pledged. One-tenth of one per cent of the current sales, to be paid monthly, is the contribution asked for the fund and no part is to be spent until at least $50,000 has been pledged and subscribed.

LIKE the squirrel, are you storing nuts in the fall? Collections that you make now will afford capital for winter's business.

RISING rents afford another problem for city retailers. Those whose leases expire next year face, in almost every case, a sharp advance.

COAL costs real money now, but it is necessary to buy a certain amount as insurance against the possibility of having to shut down in midwinter.

PAUL J. MANDABACH, editor of the National Drug Clerk, says many drug stores have gone into the flower business, some of them to the extent of wanting to join the F. T. D.

GROWING conditions have been so favorable that carnation plants from the field are much more abundant than was to have been expected, especially in view of last spring's comparative scarcity of rooted cuttings.

THE trade in the national capital have a busy year ahead. In November the Chrysanthemum Society of America meets there, in January the American Carnation Society and next August the Society of American Florists.

THE editorial matter in the August number of the S. A. F. Journal was prepared with a view to its being read before the convention, but reached members after that event was past and gone, not getting into the mails till the end of the month.

IT will not do to neglect collections. The trend of the times may be seen in this: "R. G. Dun & Co. report 160 commercial failures in the United States last week, compared with 152 in the preceding week and 99 in the corresponding week in 1919."

WHEN florists compare the quotations now given them on calendars and other such printed matter for next season with what they paid last year, they realize more poignantly how paper and printing costs have jumped in the last twelve months.

FURTHER trouble in the hard coal fields may result from the seventeen per cent raise awarded by the anthracite wage commission, which was below even the minimum demand of the miners. President Wilson supports the award and defies the threat of a strike.

IT has been a wonderful summer for the trade. Business has been much better than in other years and growing conditions have been so good that the supply of stock has been much larger than in any other summer. Greenhouses are being filled with stock of unusually good quality.

SEND $50 to John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, and he will send you one of those great blue and gold signs that are beginning to bloom along the roadside. Put it on the side of your boiler-house, if you have no more conspicuous place for it. Do your bit to tell the world to "Say It with Flowers."

COAL TENDENCIES.

Now that a downward tendency has been reported in prices on bunker coal, with strong indications that a further decline may be expected, greenhouse men are wondering if the effect will spread to the fuel they use. In Baltimore the drop was sharp, and in New York quotations fell off noticeably. It should be remembered, however, that the imperative demand for fuel at the Atlantic ports caused many to engage in speculative buying when coal was scarcest. Now that conditions seem easier, the outside speculators have ceased activities. The drop to lower figures in bunker coal represents, therefore, a return to a fair level from profiteering prices and for that reason is not to be expected to an equal extent in other sorts of coal.

There is, nevertheless, a feeling that better transportation and steady work at the mines will have an effect on coal prices. Dun's said in last week's report, "One trade feeling the effects of improved transportation is bituminous coal, which reported easing last week in some regions and notes further weakness this week."

On the other hand, retail prices on coal in Chicago were boosted when freight rates went up, August 26. The increase ranged as follows: Southern Illinois coal, handled entirely within the state, 53 cents a ton; the same coal handled over an interstate route, 65 cents a ton; Indiana coal, 53 to 57 cents a ton; Pocahontas and all other eastern bituminous coals, $1.05 a ton.

"Pocahontas coal," explained a Chicago coal dealer, "costs $4.50 a ton at the mine. The original freight charge was $2.60 a ton plus three per cent war tax. This has been increased by forty per cent, bringing it up to $3.75 a ton. This makes the cost to us $8.25 a ton. It costs $2 a ton to pay cartage, yard expenses, sales expenses and administration. The cartage alone is $1.15 a ton. Pocahontas coal bought on the open market today cannot be delivered at less than $12.50 if a dealer is to make a fair profit."

From the present outlook it seems as though the grower must pay high prices for his coal, since coal he must have, and make the returns on his crops next winter yield enough to cover the increase.

BEWARE SOLICITORS!

In those communities where The Review has an accredited representative, he is a member of the trade who is well known in the locality. No subscription agents or traveling solicitors are employed. So an unknown person who seeks to take subscriptions to The Review, especially in agency combinations, is one with whom florists should not deal. He is operating under false pretenses in an endeavor to defraud members of the trade.

Report comes of one such case of fraud in Cleveland recently. Perhaps the same individual may attempt to work the same scheme elsewhere. If so, refuse to deal with him. Have nothing to do with unknown persons soliciting for The Review and keep your money.

GLAD YOU THINK SO.

Every now and then someone writes to The Review that he has received a service out of all proportion to the paper's charge for it. Like this:

Enclosed find check to pay for my little peony ad. Have had better results from this than from any other advertising I have ever done and your charge is ridiculously low.—E. A. Riehl, Alton, Ill., August 19, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Henry Eichholz, Jr.

Henry Eichholz, Jr., son of the well known florist at Waynesboro, Pa., was killed at Cleveland last week when a fast train struck the automobile he was driving. He was employed as a truck driver by a large Cleveland contractor and, just finishing his day's work, was crossing the railroad tracks when a fast train crashed into his truck. The gasoline tank on the automobile exploded and he was badly burned. He was removed to a hospital and his fiancee, Miss Rebecca Lesher, a trained nurse of Chambersburg, called to his side. She ministered to his wants until the end and accompanied the body to Waynesboro.

Mr. Eichholz was buried with full military honors. A guard of honor escorted the flag-draped casket, carried by six ex-service men to and from the hearse, on the trip to Green Hill cemetery. The military ritual of obsequies was followed at the grave, where taps marked the passing of a soldier.

Henry Herman Theodore Eichholz was born in Waynesboro January 1, 1898, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eichholz. He attended the local schools and later worked with his father as a florist. For several months he worked for a firm of florists in New England. May 10, 1917, shortly after the outbreak of the war with Germany, he enlisted in Company C, Eighth Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard. He was called to active service with his company July 15 at Camp Gerbig, Chambersburg. September of the same year found him with his division, the Twenty-eighth, at Camp Hancock. Upon the reorganization of the division he was transferred to Headquarters Company, One Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, and shortly afterward to the One Hundred and Ninth Machine Gun battalion, with which unit he served overseas. He went through five major offensives, those of the Argonne forest, Chauteau-Thierry, St. Mihiel, Aisne-Marne and Somme, during which time he escaped unscathed with the exception of a slight gassing received in a rest camp. After the armistice he was assigned to duty with the Army of Occupation as a member of the Two Hundred and Ninetieth Military Police, being stationed for the most of the time at Coblenz, Germany. He held the rank of corporal when he was discharged in June, 1919.

Mr. Eichholz was an active member of Joe Stickell Post No. 15 of the American Legion, and of the Lutheran church. He had been employed in Cleveland for the last eleven months.

Surviving are his parents and these brothers and sisters: Gertrude, at home; Meta and Alvin, Washington; Herman, Augusta, Richard, Dorothea and Frances, all at home.

John Fraser, Sr.

John Fraser, Sr., head of the Fraser Nursery, Huntsville, Ala., died after a long illness August 24 at his home at the age of 78 years.

Mr. Fraser was a native of Edinburgh, Scotland. He learned the nursery business in England and at the age of 24 came to the United States. He was married at Glencoe, Mo., and his wife survives him. About forty-five years ago they moved to Madison county, Alabama, and he was in the employ of the late Major W. H. Heikes, who had started in a small way the nursery business. Together they built up the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, among the largest in the United States.

Many years ago he established the Fraser Nursery and made it one of the best in the country.

Mr. Fraser leaves in his immediate family his widow and six children, three daughters and three sons: Mrs. Geo. McLaughlin, Mrs. R. L. Leatherwood and Mrs. Robert S. Harrison and James, John and Ollie Fraser. A sister, residing in New York, came to attend the funeral.

The funeral services were held August 26 from the residence. Burial followed at Maple Hill cemetery, where the Masonic order had charge of the services.

W. Stickles.

W. Stickles, brother-in-law of Richard Salter, died at the home of his daughter, at Winnipeg, Can., Monday, August 23. The body was taken to Rochester, N. Y., reaching there Saturday, August 28. Mr. Stickles was 76 years of age. He was well known to all the local florists and had been active in greenhouse work for many years. He had been residing in Winnipeg since last April. H. J. H.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Trade in general has been quiet the last two weeks. Gladioli and asters are filling up the market and they have reached the low summer levels in price. The quantities of gladioli in the market far exceed the demand. It seems many of the bulb growing farms are shipping in cut stock, flooding the market to the detriment of the florist grower. Prices have fallen below a paying figure. Asters likewise are plentiful and the best are the only ones salable. Common stock is moving slowly even at low prices. Roses are moving fairly well and are equal to the demand. Prices have declined somewhat.

Various Notes.

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association will be held September 3, at the Athletic Club building. The meeting will be called at 1 p. m. During the afternoon the ladies will be entertained with an automobile ride through the various parks. A banquet will be held in the Association of Commerce rooms at 7 p. m. President Mathewson and Secretary Seel are providing for additional entertainment. A good attendance is looked for.

William Lubliner has returned from an extended trip through the east. He visited Boston, New York and Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pollworth have returned from Cleveland.

W. A. Kennedy and wife attended the Cleveland convention and are motoring to New York.

Rose Semler, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., has returned from the east.

Archie McDonald and R. Welke, after attending the convention, are back on the job again.

Lightning recently struck one of the tall chimneys at the range of the C. C. Pollworth Co., doing considerable damage, but everything was entirely covered by insurance.

F. McCarthy, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; M. Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, New York, and M. Schilz, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Inc., La Porte, Ind., were in the city last week. P.

Baumgarten, Florist, Inc., has increased its capitalization from $10,000 to $25,000.

The corporation heretofore known as J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., has been reincorporated under the style of Fox's Incorporated, thus adopting the title used by the public.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There was some improvement in the market last week, not much, but enough to lead to the belief that once again S. A. F. convention week marked ebb tide of business for the year. An immense quantity of stock was moved. There is only one trouble with business: There is so much stock everywhere, in Chicago and everywhere else, that a big public demand fails to make much impression on the aggregate supply. It has been an unusually favorable summer, climatically speaking. Outdoor stock has given unexpectedly good production, with the result that the whole middle west has been full of garden flowers. This has been especially true of gladioli and only slightly less so of asters. These two now constitute the bulk of the outdoor flowers. Gladioli, always abundant at this time of year, never were so plentiful as now. As they are plentiful, also, in all other markets, it is up to the retailers to push the selling; if they do not do so, the wholesalers can not. Anyone who can use a quantity, anywhere from 1,000 to 10,000 spikes, can get interesting special quotations.

Asters are of good average quality and sell steadily for funeral work. The local retailers like liatris for its long, purple spikes; they are used in nearly every window.

The immobility of Easter lilies is causing comment. There is scarcely any real demand for them and it is almost impossible to force sales. The fact seems to be that there have been few weddings calling for decorations in August, leaving funeral work as almost the only outlet for lilies—and most of the sprays have been made of gladioli, as the cheapest flowers on the market.

Each day now sees an increase in the supply of carnations, but their reception is not so enthusiastic as it would be with fewer asters on the market. An occasional dozen chrysanthemums, Golden Glow, is seen.

The supply of roses has been reduced. Many growers have pinched the young stock rather than send a big cut of short stems to a market which had no real need of such a grade. Good medium and long roses are selling well. There are reports of special Russell

Special Notice.

Labor day, September 6, is next Monday, and every Monday is a big shipping day in this market. Out-of-town buyers should note that there will be no delivery of mail on that day and that special delivery stamps should be used if one does not wire. Nor will there be any express service in Chicago next Monday. Some of the wholesale houses will not open, but most of them will be open half a day, in the morning, to take care of stock and orders.

August Business.

Where July was a surprise, August was a disappointment; the business done was below expectations and showed nothing like the increase for July. In 1919 August was an excellent month for the few who had stock. This year everybody had flowers and to have equaled last year's August sales is considered something of an accomplishment; it was necessary to sell much more stock to realize the same money. While the low average prices were hard on the growers, the huge quantity of stock moved shows the public has been buying flowers even in warm weather.

ent, to those familiar with the situation, that property in the district from Rosehill to Bowmanville would soon become too valuable for greenhouse purposes and that the removal of the numerous growers there is only a matter of time. The trend was seen when Peter Reinberg stopped adding to the Rosehill place and started another establishment several miles farther out. Last year his brother, George Reinberg, followed suit by starting a new place out Tessville way. The march of events has so far taken shape as to attract public attention, as witness the following from the real estate section of the Sunday Tribune:

"The last of the original north side farm land is to go. Rows of apartment buildings, constructed to relieve Chicago's housing situation, will grace the sky line of Bowmanville, made up at present of homes and greenhouses.

"The property to be used as sites for the new buildings is owned by Peter Reinberg, president of the county board and forest preserve district, and wholesale florist. It comprises approximately thirty-seven acres, sixteen of which are still under glass and operated by Mr. Reinberg's concern.

"It is Mr. Reinberg's plan to tear down all his greenhouses and construct business and apartment buildings. Demolition of the greenhouses will be gradual and the building operations, which eventually will grow into millions, will be started as soon as conditions will permit.

" 'Chicago is up against it for housing, and as soon as I can I will do my share to bring an end to this condition,' said Mr. Reinberg. 'If the cost of building construction comes down from its prohibitive perch, I will start the erection of at least half a dozen large apartment buildings at once.'

"The sixteen-acre tract still under glass is the site of the Reinberg farm, purchased in 1850 by Henry Reinberg, the county board president's father, two years after he came to the United States from Luxembourg. It is bounded by Foster avenue, Robey street, Seeley avenue and the Rosehill cemetery. A second tract of sixteen acres, from which the greenhouses already have been removed, is bounded by Robey street, Balmoral, Bowmanville and Winchester avenues. Another tract of five acres, which also will be used as apartment building sites, is bounded by Foster avenue, Leavitt street, Balmoral avenue and Robey street.

building purposes. It was on the Reinberg farm in 1858 that the county board's president was born. As soon as he was able to toddle about he had as his playmates little Indian children from tribes which had occupied the property only a few years before. When Peter was 11 he helped plow the fields, finding many valuable relics of the Indians, which he still has in his collection. Among his possessions are arrow heads of flint, bits of Indian pottery, battle axes and washed stones from the glacial period.

"The Reinberg property, which was purchased for $10 an acre by the elder Reinberg, is now valued at $3,000 an acre."

Although the Tribune made no reference to it, Peter Reinberg and George Reinberg, each has started new greenhouse ranges in the country which probably will be built up faster than the crowded-out ranges come down. Other growers in the vicinity also soon will be moving to the country.

Various Notes.

August Poehlmann's injuries in the automobile accident August 21 have proved more serious than at first thought. It was necessary to reset the broken wrist. Mr. Poehlmann has suffered much pain and was not able to leave the Presbyterian hospital at the time expected. He will carry his arm in a sling for a good many weeks. Mr. Poehlmann's wide acquaintance and popularity are shown by the large number of visitors and much greater number of inquiries as to his progress.

C. M. Grossman, of Petoskey, Mich., had a notable showing of gladioli, last week, in the window of the American Bulb Co. The varieties not only were the newer kinds, but the spikes were immense, indicating that northern Michigan affords ideal climatic conditions for the development of plant and flower. White Giant was true to its name, in size, and the purest white yet seen. Golden Measure, which many expect to see displace Schwaben, was finer than any seen here before, while Mrs. Dr. Norton was wonderfully attractive. A primulinus variety named Maiden Blush took the eyes of the retailers; it will make a hit in the hands of the artists.

Sam Pearce, with his wife and two sons, left Chicago August 8 by automobile for New York, to visit his son-in-law, George Tegelaar, who has recently arrived from France, where his firm, Drevon-Tegelaar & Co., one of the prin-

There is to be a new flower store on West Madison street this season, about midway between H. N. Bruns and C. Frauenfelder. The principals are employees of the latter, Max Steigleberg and Joseph Streiff.

It develops that the item recently quoted from the daily papers, with regard to H. Van Gelder having bought a huge apartment house on the south side, understated the purchase price. It was $185,000, not $155,000 as the Tribune stated.

Charles H. Fisk and wife have reached Yokohama on their way home from India, where they went on their purchasing tour for the A. L. Randall Co. They will remain in Japan until the lily bulbs have all been shipped. Mr. Fisk writes Randall's that he is the only American bulb buyer in Japan this season.

Jack Beyers claims for the Angel Guardian greenhouses the credit for having been first on the market with mums this season. They were received August 23, good Golden Glow.

When the sixty-fourth store in the Piggly-Wiggly chain, at 718 South Kedzie avenue, opened August 28, flowers were given away by the management.

Odd birds, of carved wood, and pine cones gaudily painted, are novelties offered his customers by Harry C. Rowe, 4401 Sheridan road. They are some of the work of the wounded soldiers in France.

With the increase in the public's expenditures for flowers, which has been markedly felt at Youngquist's North Shore Floral Shop, 851 Irving Park boulevard, Mr. Youngquist notes a disposition on the part of customers to follow their own taste in giving instructions for floral work, instead of being guided by the florist.

The greenhouses have been razed at Schiller's north side location, 4509 Broadway, and work is about to begin on the foundations of the $30,000 conservatory and store. Business is being carried on as usual in the shop on the corner.

Enlargement of window space has brought flowers more conspicuously to the attention of those who pass the store of the Briggs Floral Co., at Sheridan road and Broadway. That is one explanation of a splendid August business, according to D. A. Papatony.

Visitors.

Chicago is a favorite summer resort for southern florists, but there have been an unusual number of them here in the last few days. Among them have been P. Chopin and wife, C. of new gladioli at the store of the E. C. Amling Co., where he invited comments on the flowers.

Walter Amling, who now lives at Pana, Ill., was here last week to visit his brothers and cousins.

Joseph Carlin, with Tipton & Hurst, Little Rock, Ark., arrived here August 30 for a vacation. He is a former Chicagoan, having been with the Fleischman Floral Co. and Bohannon Floral Co. before going to the southern city.

H. Kusik, of Kansas City, was here on one of his frequent visits, which usually include Milwaukee. He looks for another big season in the southwest.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Supply and demand are about evenly balanced; both are light. Outdoor flowers form the greater part of the receipts. Asters are the leading flowers, with the best types of asters in their glory. Well grown Semple and ostrich-plume asters find buyers at good prices. Gladioli are not so plentiful as they have been, although they are a good second in importance. Dahlias are just beginning; a few fine blooms of choice varieties are setting a high standard. Cosmos has come and fall delphiniums, tritomas and the Japanese hydrangea add decorative variety. The acquisition to the indoor list is Chrysanthemum Golden Glow. There are just a few long-stemmed roses. Pilgrim, the new pink, has been added to the list. Beauties and orchids are also out of the market for the present. Two notable efforts to obtain cattleyas here met with little success.

Mr. Habermehl's Accident.

Widespread was the feeling of sympathy, and great is the relief, regarding John P. Habermehl. Mr. Habermehl left his Bellevue-Stratford Flower Shop chatting and laughing with his associates in the afternoon of August 19. In the evening he was lying unconscious in the Atlantic City hospital. Mr. Habermehl, who had taken an afternoon train to Atlantic City, was standing on the curb there when a touring car struck him and knocked him down. He was cut and bruised and unconscious. Fortunately, his injuries were not serious, though painful. He is now out of the hospital. Mr. Habermehl believes that the lamp of the car struck him as he stood on the pavement. John P. Habermehl is one of the foremost men in the floral world today. His recovery is good news to all who know and admire him.

The Coming Season.

The fall season opens Monday, September 13, when the schools reopen and the dahlia season commences in earnest. October will bring the return of social activity and that critical period when indoor-grown flowers commence to resume sway, generally styled the commencement of the chrysanthemum season. This period is particularly easy for the buyers and particularly difficult for the sellers in the wholesale cut flower market. The regular social season begins Thursday, November 25, Thanksgiving day. It lasts seventy-six days. Christmas day and New Year's day fall on Saturday. Ash Wednesday comes February 9, 1921. Easter Sunday will be quite early, nearly as early as it can come, March 27. Sunday, May National Flower Growers' Association.

The meeting in Cleveland has made it clear that Philadelphia's position in regard to the National Flower Growers' Association is not understood. The preliminary work in forming the association has been done by one of our most brilliant men, to further the interests of our profession. We do not question that in unity there is strength. The purpose of the association is to right wrongs and to advance the common interest. We want to know, what are those wrongs? How are our interests to be advanced? We believe in our wholesale commission houses; we do not wish to investigate them. We do not believe in coöperative buying. We do not believe it possible to stabilize the prices of cut flowers; we wish it were possible. We believe that the S. A. F. is well equipped to handle legislation and publicity. What then is the field of the association? It is charged that Philadelphia is slow or she would join this movement wholesouledly. This is absolutely untrue. Who started the S. A. F. publicity movement by a contribution of $500? Was it a New Yorker? Was it a man from the west? It was a former president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club and one of our representative men. How would the exhibition hall in Cleveland have looked without the Philadelphia exhibits? Ask the S. A. F. judges to whom they gave the certificates of merit.

Evidently other sections of the country have grievances which they hope to see redressed. Philadelphia has no grievances. Call her slow, but call her sure.

Various Notes.

Moss W. Armistead and a friend from Portsmouth, Va., and C. E. Tutor, of Grandy Florist, Norfolk, Va., were here recently.

Arthur A. Niessen considers the Cleveland convention as the best business convention that he has ever attended. Mr. Niessen thinks that the chats with other delegates in the hotel lobbies are invaluable.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is no particular change in market conditions. Two flowers continue to dominate everything and if no gladioli or asters were available the supply of cut flowers would be small indeed. Gladioli arrive in ever increasing numbers and their quality is exceptionally fine. It is unfortunate that demands are quite inadequate to care for them and prices rule quite low; $1 per hundred is a fair price, though some fancy spikes may reach $6 per hundred. Many are sold lower than quoted prices or not at all. Asters are excellent, thanks to the pleasant weather which we have enjoyed for some time; some fine flowers sell up to $5 per hundred, while others sell as low as 25 and 50 cents per hundred.

Carnations and sweet peas are both temporarily out of the market. Arrivals of roses are not large, but ample for all needs; their quality is fair for the end of August. The best hybrid teas sell at $10 per hundred, with some grades at one-tenth these prices or less. Lilies have varied in price from day to day; with a little demand they sell at $15 per hundred and a day later are in the doldrums at $8 to $10 per hundred. Some dahlias, buddleias, heliehrysums, cosmos and other outdoor flowers are seen, but they are not abundant; the call for them is light. Cattleyas are scarce and bring $18 per dozen. The demand for asparagus is light.

Club Field Day.

Beautiful summer weather favored the forty or more members and friends who made the journey to North Abington, Mass., Saturday afternoon, August 28, for the Florists' Club field day, nearly all going over the road in automobiles. Walton G. Wyman, of Littlefield & Wyman, and W. H. Wyman, Jr., of the Bay State Nurseries, met the visitors on arrival and conducted them over the various nurseries. The Bay State Nurseries were first inspected and a visit was made to the commodious and up-to-date offices, packing sheds and large storage houses before going through the numerous fields. Railroad sidings run alongside the large packing sheds and traveling cranes pick up boxes and cases. A sawmill adjoins, where all cases are made. Not much stock is placed in the storage houses in the fall, but a great amount of stock is stored there in the spring, when the ground opens, and the low temperature permits shipping to be continued quite late.

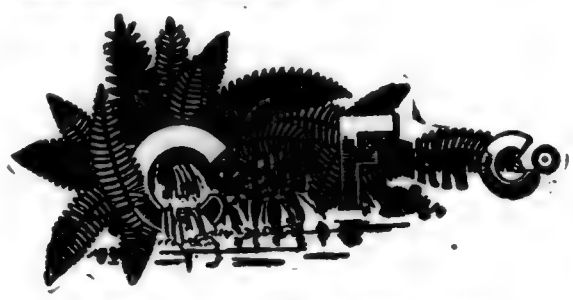
There are 300 acres in all planted to deciduous trees and shrubs, evergreens and herbaceous perennials in the towns of North Abington, Abington and Rockland. Rhododendrons are seen by the acre, including some grand hybrids; large lots of kalmias and andromedas were also noted. Great blocks of retinisporas, thujas, piceas and other conifers were growing and scores of acres of all the leading flowering trees, shrubs, vines and roses. The herbaceous nursery is quite extensive and about every variety worthy of culture was to be seen here; phloxes, mallows, tritomas, larkspurs, rudbeckias, violas and many others carried quantities of flowers, and it was surprising to note how clean the nurseries were when the labor conditions were considered.



Littlefield & Wyman's fields are less extensive than those of the Bay State Nurseries, but contained some fine stock. The retinisporas, hemlocks, Pinus Mughus and other evergreens excited the admiration of the visitors. In the greenhouses carnations are the leading specialty. The largest house, 40x318 feet, contained 15,000 plants, well established and just starting to bloom. Eastern Beauty, which was raised here, is grown in quantity; it is a medium-sized, variegated flower, with a delicious odor, and sells at sight. Belle Washburn, Matchless and Enchantress Supreme are the other leading sorts. Mr. Wyman pointed out the striking lead which the plants had where planted in soil prepared last spring as compared with those in soil prepared just before planting time. Godfrey callas, sweet peas, stevias, chrysanthemums and snapdragons are other crops grown here under glass, while Daphne Cneorum meets with a large sale and is specialized on here.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon and quite a surprise came when, in passing through a long woodland road between two of the nurseries, the cavalcade of automobiles was halted and refreshments were served in a delightfully shaded spot, with a babbling brook behind the lunch table. After the inner man had been well cared for, short addresses were made by H. H. Bartsch, who referred to his visit to the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, at Hamilton; W. N. Craig, F. E. Palmer and Gustave Thommen. W. H. Wyman, Jr., in responding, spoke of the many handicaps placed on New England nurserymen by the various embargoes promulgated with little warning at frequent intervals. The field day was thoroughly enjoyed by all who participated in it.

Visiting Kidder Bros., Lincoln.

Ask anyone acquainted with the Boston market who brings in the finest and best-branched single violets, freesias and stevias and the answer will probably be Kidder Bros. The two brothers composing the well known firm believe in growing a few things, in growing them well and then placing them on the market in the most attractive way possible. The Kidder violets have a reputation possessed by no others in Boston and I have never seen any Purity freesias at all approaching theirs in size of flower, substance and length of stem. Most of the houses are planted with Comet tomatoes as a summer crop and these are just finishing; 36,000 pounds of fruit were picked from 9,500 plants and all have made quite satisfactory prices. Usually 75,000 freesias are grown in pots, but, as bulbs of decent size could not be secured this season, they have been cut out temporarily and a larger planting of Princess of Wales violets will be made.

Violet planting starts early in October. About 25,000 splendid plants were noted in the field; these are kept well watered and sprayed to keep red spider in check. All are grown in solid beds and the soil is changed every year; this entails much labor, but it is found to pay. Stevias in 8-inch pots to the number of 10,000 are grown; these are grand, bushy plants and no comparison will be possible between the quality of flowers they produce and those planted out in the field, dug up and placed in pots or beds. All soil used for pot plants is steamed and the killing of all weed seeds makes a great saving of labor.

Various Notes.

The employees of the two stores of T. F. Galvin, Inc., on Park street and Boylston street, will have a fishing trip September 5. The steamer Alice will carry the party and Charles Lynch has charge of the arrangements; incidentally, Mr. Lynch expects to land some whoppers which will set new records at the fishing grounds.

Arthur W. Kidder, of Kidder Bros., returned August 27 from a six weeks' vacation spent at Falmouth, Mass., where he enjoyed excellent fishing and bathing.

Thomas F. Galvin, Jr., made a large and handsome wreath four feet in diameter August 26 for Jordan, Marsh & Co., for Louise B. Pray, the first customer Eben D. Jordan had in his store on Hanover street. Mr. Galvin has signed a ten years' lease for his present store at 226 Devonshire street.

Fields of dahlias are now looking quite attractive in this section and a good display will undoubtedly be made at Horticultural hall September 11 and 12.

W. H. Wyman, of the Bay State Nurseries, returned August 29 from a trip to Prince Edward's island.

In Penn's windows this week a nice group of well flowered plants of the South African violet, Saintpaulia ionantha, attracts considerable attention. Henry Penn will return from his vacation this week.

Herman Bartsch greatly enjoyed his recent trip to Canada. It made him feel somewhat heartsick to see consignments of palms, araucarias and azaleas coming into Canada from abroad unrestricted, while the Federal Horticultural Board denies our growers practically everything.

All the flower markets and wholesale houses will be open as usual Saturdays, commencing September 4. W. N. C.

FOR SALE

Unquestionably one of the most modern, up-to-date and money-making greenhouse plants in the East. Situated within 5 miles of the city limits of Baltimore, Maryland, whose population is close to three-quarters of a million and growing fast. This plant contains ten houses, about 150,000 square feet of glass; one block of houses planted in 20,000 best commercial roses; one block planted in 35,000 carnations; one house in plumosus. The plant is heated by steam, with 4 boilers in use and 2 in reserve, making 6 in all. The boiler-room is 40x60 ft. About 200 tons of coal on hand and deliveries being made right along. Contains packing shed 40x60 ft., coal shed 24x84 ft., pot and soil shed 24x40 ft. Large garage and cut flower room and cellars; also two auto trucks, one a 2-ton Packard, A-1 condition, and Dodge delivery truck just delivered, never used. Plenty of tools, fittings and material of all kinds, including lumber, glass, 300,000 to 400,000 flower pots ranging from 2 to 4 inches, all in good condition, about 40,000 of these never used. Contains about 25 acres of elegant fertile land, beautifully situated, with abundance of water, with an unfailing supply of good soft water from springs; with double system engines, fully equipped water tank. Two dwellings, one heated by steam; barns, granary, two horses, wagon sheds, about 35 tons of hay, also farming implements. Apple orchard, 150 bearing trees, winter fruit; bank of the very best propagating sand on premises. Baltimore will buy all the flowers that can be grown. Located on good state road; none better anywhere; ideal climate; good schools, churches, mail delivered at door. Cost to replace plant about $250,000; can be purchased at a bargain. Owner has been in business 46 years and has never had glass broken by hail. This is a going concern, and with the present planting for this season's business this should be one of the biggest opportunities ever offered in this line.

As I have this place in charge for sale, all communications must be addressed to the undersigned, who can, undoubtedly, arrange terms to suit the purchaser.

CHAS. T. LEVINESS, Jr.,

Houston, Tex.—Kerr the Florist is preparing to start a branch establishment in a high-class residence district. Several purposes are in view, in addition to increasing the business. One is to increase the plant, decorating, renting and care-taking department. Another is to prepare against the day when rising rents may make a location outside the downtown district a money-saver as well as a money-earner.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Earlington, Wash.—Ernest Mayer, who for the last three and one-half years has been manager of the Hollywood Gardens, Hollywood, Wash., is going into business for himself in this town.

WILL REDEEM EDEN TRACT.

Reports of the sale of an interest in the Eden tract of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, at Eureka, Cal., as they have appeared in print elsewhere, have been so confusing to the minds of some in the trade that G. Vander Abeele, receiver for the concern, explains the transaction in the following way:

"The Eden tract, which consists of our nursery grounds at Eureka and is one of the several pieces of real estate owned by the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, was mortgaged to the Humboldt National bank, of this city. This mortgage was foreclosed, and the Eden tract was sold to satisfy the mortgage and bid in by the bank June 14, 1920. June 25 the bank sold the interest it had acquired to P. F. Rosaia, of Seattle. The Cottage Gardens Nurseries has until June 14, 1921, to redeem this, and all right, title and interest in the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eden tract, held by Mr. Rosaia will then expire.

"On the Eden tract there are now growing in excess of half a million dollars' worth of various nursery products, including 250,000 azaleas, 500,000 tuberous begonias, 100,000 rhododendrons and various conifers, broad-leaved evergreens and araucarias. In all there are about eighty-six acres, chiefly of products that cannot be replaced in the United States. The nursery and the plants are in perfect condition; in fact, they were never in better shape.

"The money to redeem the Eden tract has been arranged for, and in case the company should fail to redeem it for any reason, there are several judgment creditors who have the right to and will redeem the property."

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Funeral work keeps up well and the cooler weather has improved business generally, so much so that at the end of last week there was an actual shortage of flowers in almost all lines, especially in shipping stock.

Roses are coming in a little more plentifully and the flowers from the young stock, though short, are good and will improve from now on. Asters are scarce and will soon be over, with the exception of those coming from a few late-planted plots. There has not often been a season when these flowers have cleaned up so well as this year. African marigolds are useful for shipping. Dahlias are still among the items in better supply. Indoor carnations are beginning to come in again, but are on the small and scarce side as yet.

Various Notes.

F. R. Hills is out with a fine new delivery truck. He says that he has the finest stock of ferns this season which he has had in the whole course of his business.

The H. N. Gage Co. reports an excellent demand for everything. The daffodil bulbs which they are digging this season are especially fine. The sandy soil at El Monte, enriched with cow manure, seems to be the ideal compost for bulbs.

C. J. Groen, of Montebello, reports a good clean-up on everything and looks forward to a big season. In order to be close to his business, W. Clark, who is now with Mr. Groen, is building a residence for himself at the nursery.

Walter Armacost has disappeared into the wilds for a time, his son and a friend from Imperial accompanying him. Two days' burro trail from the nearest point of civilization are their hunting grounds. Mr. Williamson, store manager for Walter Armacost & Co., says that some days there is difficulty in filling orders, owing to scarcity of good shipping stock.

F. Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., is suffering from the effects of a twisted ankle.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Flowers, particularly of the more costly grades, are not too plentiful in the market just at present. There are some good roses, but scarcely enough to supply the local demand. The present crop of asters is on its last legs. Delphiniums, while still much used for ornamental baskets and decorative purposes, are coming to the end of their season. Carnations are still scarce. Chrysanthemums are coming in and, within two weeks, according to all indications, the fall crop will be coming well to the fore in the local market.

A few early violets are appearing here and there, but they are small. Violets will not be ready for shipment east till the middle of October. Dahlias are good at present, both as to quantity and quality.

Various Notes.

Much significance is attached by growers and jobbers to the refrigerator car service, which began September 1. A number of chrysanthemums are undoubtedly being shipped by the first car, but J. A. Axell, who was largely instrumental in causing the service to be reëstablished, expresses regret that the mums are not in their full glory as the first car leaves. Undoubtedly the second car will see a great gain in the magnitude of the chrysanthemum shipments.

The big dahlia show of the year is to be held at the Palace hotel, September 2 to 4. It is being given by the Dahlia Association of California, the well-known organization of which the president is James Davis; the treasurer, Frank D. Pelicano, and the secretary, Frank Burn. The firm of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. will make a large display and an excellent exhibition is anticipated.

Announcement has just been made of a wedding which will take place at the church of St. Vincent De Paul, in this city, between Michael Rossi and Miss Traversaro. The bridegroom-elect, familiarly known in florists' circles as Mike Rossi, is the son of N. Rossi, of the firm of G. Rossi & Co., of Oakland, Berkeley, Fresno and Reno, Nev. The bride is a San Francisco girl, of a well-known family.

G. F. Otto, of San Diego, accompanied by his son and daughter, is stopping here for a few days en route from New York. Mr. Otto and his family have been touring the country.

Inside stock is scarce, according to the E. W. McLellan Co. This includes roses and asters. Chrysanthemums are coming in a little more freely and the stock is good. Gardenias are scarce. This firm expects plenty of violets for shipment by October 15 to 20.

J. A. Axell states that he is handling many roses, but he has not nearly enough to supply the local demand. Sunday, August 22, Mr. Axell inspected the farms of the chrysanthemum growers thoroughly and found good, healthy stock in a highly promising condition for a harvest of mums. "There is a twenty-five per cent increase over last year," declared Mr. Axell, "and the season is earlier this year than it was last year."

"Roses, carnations, asters; in fact, all important flowers are scarce in the San Francisco market at the present time," declared C. Kooyman, of the C. Kooyman Co. He added, "If growers do not wake up and grow more stock, flowers will become extremely scarce. My opinion is that there is room for more growers, for more stock is certainly needed."

Domoto Bros. continue to have a fine showing of lilies.

The United Flower & Supply Co. stated that its chrysanthemums, all of which are grown under cheesecloth, are unusually early this season. This firm had a nice stock of large-sized mums last week. In one day 400 dozen were brought in from the nurseries of the company and were all snapped up by the local market.

Enomoto & Co. were preparing to make a considerable shipment of chrysanthemums by the first refrigerator car, September 1. The early varieties which they will ship mostly are Monrovia and Chrysolora. They are also preparing to send a large number of October Frost, which they consider an excellent early shipping variety. Without waiting for the refrigerator car, the firm has been sending early chrysan-

RANUNCULUS
IMPROVED GIANT HYBRIDS

A splendid strain of Ranunculus for florists' use brought to perfection after many years of careful selection, producing over 75 per cent double and semi-double flowers in the most pleasing colors; showing stems from 18 to 30 inches long; an excellent cut flower and a good keeper, also highly desirable for bedding. We have grown this variety several seasons, for the cut-flower market, and consider it one of our most profitable crops. Our books show that flowers from this strain brought $4.00 per 100 on the Los Angeles market.

themums as far east as Salt Lake City with satisfactory results.

The store of the Misses Hannon, on Sutter street, has taken considerable part in the decorations for the Safety First exhibition, now being held in the Municipal auditorium. This exhibit is being held in conjunction with the third annual congress of the National Traffic Officers' Association.

Julius Eppstein's store, in the St. Francis hotel, is making a specialty of baskets at present. Claude Remagan has been especially engaged to arrange the baskets. Patrons of the hotel and their friends are keeping Mr. Remagan busy.

Labor is so scarce, especially in agricultural and horticultural work, that labor-saving machines are a matter of especial interest to growers. Several nurserymen have gone to the Hillsborough Nurseries, at Burlingame, to experiment in an open field with a tractor. Among them are W. A. Reubold, assistant manager of the California Seed Co., and H. Hayashi, of the Beresford Nurseries. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

A plentiful supply of summer offerings has served to leave prices unchanged. The recent arrivals have included the later varieties of dahlias, goldenrod and zinnias, while local growers announced that their deliveries of water lilies would be lighter. In the point of volume of arrivals, asters are the big thing in this market at the present time. Gladioli are second to asters in volume of receipts and make a nice impression. One grower is sending in some purple Helen gladioli, which are enough of a novelty to clean up entirely, while the better known Schwaben, Rosella, Alice and Goliath move well. The trade has been fortunate this year in the wide variety of colors offered by local growers.

Roses are still the leader in cut flowers, with a number of newer offerings attracting buyers' attention. Rosita, Butterfly, Dunlop and Victory fall in this classification. Ophelia leads the standard varieties again, with Russell, Irish Elegance and Columbia plentiful. Cecile Brunner has been a little off color in most recent deliveries. There will be a fair crop of sweet peas from the Centralia and Chehalis growers this season, according to late advices.

Snapdragons are in shorter supply and late deliveries have been mainly of the yellow varieties. Carnations are still short of trade requirements in keeping qualities. "I believe that both the growers and the florists will benefit if they plan their crops so that carnations are out of the market at least a month each year," said the manager of one of Seattle's largest retail stores. "We must now sell a second-grade carnation in competition with a first-grade white aster, and I feel certain that all of us would profit if the grower threw out his old carnations early in July and did not bring in new stock until at least the middle of September. The consumer would then get past the idea of considering the carnation a cheap year-round blossom."

Various Notes.

Potted offerings are largely ferns and asters at this time, with just enough calceolarias and geraniums to warrant commercial mention. Ferns have apparently met with a revival of interest.

Advices report a continued ice shortage in Spokane, which, however, has as yet failed to materially affect the florists of that city.

Charles E. Cole, of McCoy's, and Mrs. Sandahl, of the Orpheum Floral

Co., returned from their vacations recently. Mr. Cole and his family were in the Olympic mountains and he reports some fine sport.

George Antenen, of the Seattle Floral Co., has been delivering some fine Lilium auratum, and McCoy's made this flower the subject of a special window display. Statice and Golden Glow were used with this lily in tall baskets.

Edward Ueberrhein, of the Roseries Co., Medicine Hat, Alberta, Can., and Mrs. Ueberrhein were coast visitors recently. They were the guests of Dr. Moore on a trip through the surrounding section and over the Hollywood Gardens and farm.

Douglas Wallace has accepted a position with Rosaia Bros., taking charge of the bookkeeping force and succeeding Walter Carlson. This firm has been showing some fine Rosita and Butterfly roses and is still getting many orchids from its greenhouses.

Herbert A. Clausen, of the American Flower Shop, Denver, was a visitor recently.

Jack Sahlia has purchased Mr. Felly's location, near Thomas, and is expending a considerable sum on the installation of greenhouse equipment. He will grow a general line.

The Orpheum Floral Co. recently attracted attention with a display in its windows of thirty-three of the more popular commercial varieties of dahlias, which are to be shown on the local market this year.

Miss Anna J. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., returned recently from a trip into eastern Washington, where she looked over her orchard property at Leavenworth.

David Lenchner, connected with Felix Rosaia before his call to the service, is now a member of the Kenney's Home of Flowers staff. Mrs. Kenney is again on duty, as her daughter has sufficiently recovered from her recent operation.

Robert Newcomb, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., called on the trade recently.

Some fine late calceolarias and potted asters have been shown lately by the Woodlawn Flower Shop. Harry C. Crouch reports a generally good business, with the average-sized funeral orders especially heavy. H. M.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Some fine asters are to be had and are finding a ready sale. Gladioli are arriving at their best. Sweet peas are still plentiful, but have not been at any time this season what they should have been. Roses are coming in again, although not of first-class quality. Carnations are entirely off the market, but a fine stock in most of the greenhouses promises to give a good supply later. Lilies, snapdragons, phlox and delphiniums are other available cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Mrs. A. Reim is well on the way to recovery and is now out of the hospital.

H. A. Clausen, of the American Flower Shop, Denver, Colo., was a recent visitor on his way to the coast.

S. Yonkin, of the Hoyt Bros. Co., has returned from his vacation, which was spent at Priest lake. The firm has a wonderful display of gladioli of the newer varieties, which it is growing extensively.

H. Hill is on his vacation. He will visit most of the larger towns throughout Montana.

C. Kipp, of the Spokane Florist Co., has returned from his vacation.

J. Kendle, of Eugene's Flower Shop, has resigned his position there and accepted a position with A. J. Burt.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

There has been an unusual demand for flowers for the last two weeks. During the six or seven days prior to the Horr wedding there were two reception dinners each day, and there was a strong call for decorations, which were carried out with sweet peas, cornflowers, snapdragons and gladioli.

Funeral work has been heavy and stock has been worked up closely. Gladioli are now at their best and the quality of the blooms is good this year. Sweet peas are especially good this year and they are now being cut with 12-inch and 14-inch stems with four flowers to a stem. Roses are plentiful and of good quality. Rubrum lilies are mostly being used for decoration. The local cut of asters is about to come in and they promise to be of good stock. Carnations are scarce and poor.

Various Notes.

The wedding of Miss E. S. Horr was one of the most fashionable of the midsummer weddings. It was held in St. Paul's church. The chancery was transformed into a leafy bower with tall poplar trees and cibotium ferns. The altar was banked with Easter lilies. Poplar trees were used throughout the church with striking effect. The bride carried a bouquet of Easter lilies with a shower of white satin baby ribbon. The maid of honor carried a colonial bouquet of Ophelia, Russell and Columbia roses, with a pink satin shower. Six bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of rubrum lilies and three shades of pink sweet peas tied with brown tulle. The Duluth Floral Co. made the wedding bouquets and John Nilof, of Minneapolis, had charge of the decorating.

The Quality Flower Shop reports a busy time with funeral work.

William Japp, of the Lester Park Greenhouses, has returned from his vacation.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

There continues to be an abundance of stock, which is retailing at a low figure and has the effect of keeping the stores a little busier than they otherwise would be. The low price is an inducement for the public to buy, and the retailer makes at least a small return to help pay summer expenses.

Of course, there is a certain demand for wedding decorations, though these at present are small. Funeral designs and sprays are asked for occasionally. Business continued good until the middle of August. Since then there has been a falling off. This is only temporary, for the people will begin to return to the city, and early in September the rush will start again.

Various Notes.

Harry Brandt has been calling on the trade.

S. Dahlgren has returned from a motor trip through the eastern states.

Toronto florists are wishing Edward Gale, of Dunlop's, every success as he leaves to take the management of the John Connon Co. store, at Hamilton. Mr. Gale came to Dunlop's seven years ago from the John Connon Co. and has been making up designs for Dunlop's during that period. Now he returns to Hamilton as manager of the store in which he served his apprenticeship. Mr. Gale was a member of the executive committee of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club and an active worker.

At the John Connon Co. store, at Hamilton, W. E. Groves stated that business has been good and is growing. This is an attractive store with a wide tiled window. The basket lighting effects in the store are a feature. Recently Frank B. Smith resigned to go into business for himself. Edward Gale will take up the duties of manager September 6.

The Arcade Florist is planning many improvements, which include raising the roof two feet, moving the east wall five feet and building it of glass to permit a full view of the store from that side; the opening of the basement for trade and the tiling of both the ground and basement floors. The window is a wide tiled one with two fountains.

Frank B. Smith, Ltd., has just been incorporated, with a capital of $40,000, and has opened an attractive store at 33 King street, west. Mr. Smith has two deep-set windows, the walls are covered with mirrors and the woodwork and furniture are finished in ivory. He held an excellent opening, Saturday, August 21. He joined the F. T. D. and has purchased a fine new truck for delivery purposes.

The annual meeting of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club will be held September 13.

The opening meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association will be held at the new rooms, 22 College street, Tuesday, September 21.

The new $1,000,000 Pantaget theater opened Saturday evening, August 28. The flowers were supplied by J. J. Higgins. Among them were a horseshoe

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

Cut stock at the various wholesale markets continues plentiful and little improvement in business is noticeable among the retailers. The weather was delightfully cool last week and marked improvement in the quality of stock is seen.

September 1, with the return of society folk and the opening of the schools, should start the fall season with a hum; this renewal of brisk business has been eagerly looked for by the retailers and the wholesalers will again handle the reserve stock with some certainty of fair returns.

Among the arrivals last week were large consignments of roses of extra quality, the leaders being Premier, Russell and Columbia. Large quantities of asters are arriving daily in all colors and grades and the first grades demand a fair price, but shorts are in bulk at quite low prices in large lots.

Gladiolus spikes are not so plentiful as they were the week previous and the choice ones demand a better price all through. Few carnations arrived last week, but a big crop was expected by the middle of this week.

Especially fine blooms in dahlias are beginning to arrive daily and clean out fairly well. Great quantities of these flowers are expected before the chrysanthemum arrives. In chrysanthemums, both white and yellow Smith's Advance are showing flower and another week will see them in the market. The local mum growers are looking forward to a big supply in all varieties as the season advances.

Among the other stock seen daily are single tuberose stalks, larkspur, hydrangeas and Easter lilies. Some good valley can be obtained almost daily now.

Everything in greens is in demand and the supply is adequate.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its installation meeting September 9. The trustees have as yet not made known where the meeting will be held.

Cut Off the Longs To Make Them Longer

Texas used to raise cattle with great long horns, that made the cows about as wild as they looked.

Some one figured out, that if they wanted to make their pocketbooks longer, they must make their cows' horns shorter.

Today, Texas raises short horns only. Less horns and more beef.

Every business has its long horns, that not only play the very hob with the paying short horns; but don't pay themselves.

Might mention a few long horned things; but you know what they are well enough.

If you will call around next time you are in New York, will gladly tell you how we dehorned one of our longest long horns.

It will help you get more F. T. D. business.

Notices will be sent to all members by the secretary. President Hummert and President-elect Rowe are making strong efforts to obtain the largest attendance ever.

Mrs. M. Eggeling and her daughter have returned from their summer trip to California and are ready for the opening of the fall and winter season.

August 28 marked the thirty-first anniversary of the death of Henry Shaw, founder of the Missouri Botanical Garden. A wreath of orchids was placed in the mausoleum in the garden, where rest the remains of this grand old man.

Miss Julia Armstrong, at the head of M. S. Newman, Florist, has been spending the summer at Green Mountain Falls, Colo., and expects to return home by September 5.

The St. Louis Seed Co. is receiving its fall bulbs and the busy season is already here. A. H. Hummert, vice-president, has returned from the S. A. F. convention and speaks in the highest terms of the reception tendered the St. Louis party by the Cleveland florists.

After September 12 all the wholesale markets will again keep open all day Saturday. There is talk of all closing Sundays. C. A. Kuehn is the only one among the wholesalers who closes his place of business Sundays.

clude the big greenhouse range. The public welfare committee is in favor of the purchase and it will be for the board of aldermen at its meeting this week to pass on the offer.

The officers of the Retail Florists' Association expect to make another attempt to hold a meeting of the association during the fall and winter months. It is up to the retailers to support the movement. Treasurer Andrew Hoffmann says that there is quite a snug sum in the treasury to begin with.

The Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., at Clayton, expects to cut extra fine dahlias this season and began to cut quite heavily last week. Joe Hauser's St. Louis, a fine red, is about ready for a big cut.

partment, returned August 27 from a five weeks' trip in northern Wisconsin. The trip was made by automobile. Both look the picture of health.

The county growers are kept busy planting bulbous stock, labeling cannas and looking after the mum plants. Of these they say that the production among the local growers will be larger than ever this season. Carnation plants, too, are in fine shape.

Geo. H. Angermueller, president of the Geo. H. Angermueller Co., who has been troubled with his eyesight the last year, reports great improvement of late.

The wholesale house of the Windler Floral Co. was closed all day August 24 in honor of the wedding day of the president of the firm, F. A. Windler, whose marriage to Miss Frances Kaleta took place on that day. The trade placarded the place with all kinds of signs; a large floral spray was hung at the door with a ribbon bearing the words, "Yes, he's married," which attracted a great deal of attention.

BAR HARBOR, ME.

At John H. Stalford's, of the Malvern Greenhouses, a large business is done with the numerous wealthy summer cottagers, not only in cut flowers and plants, but also greenhouse fruits, and many men are employed on landscape work. Just at present Mr. Stalford has a large road construction contract near the Canadian border. In the greenhouses were noted fine Campanula pyramidalis eight to nine feet high. Lilium auratum and L. speciosum of equal height, fuchsias, tuberous begonias, gloxinias and other summer-blooming plants. Houses of fine melons were noted, mostly Sutton's varieties, and an excellent house of Hambro and Muscat of Alexandria grapes. The latter sell readily at $4 per pound here, and Black Hambro will be dropped to make room for more Muscats. In frames large quantities of gloxinias and tuberous begonias were planted out to produce bulbs. Treated thus, they make wonderful growth. Outdoors such flowers as sweet peas eight feet high, gladioli, salpiglossis, Shirley poppies, mallows, candytuft, annual larkspurs, phloxes, aconitums, sweet sultans and other perennials and annuals were blooming lustily and of a quality impossible on the mainland. A large store is maintained on the principal business street and the window displays of flowers named above are remarkably fine.

The Mount Desert Nurseries, of which Clarence E. Daw is the courteous and efficient manager, has a large area planted with ornamental trees and shrubs, vines, perennials and annuals. There also is a considerable range of greenhouses for the culture of flowering plants, tomatoes, melons, gardenias, etc. Herbaceous perennials are the special feature and the collection is a large one. Aconitums and astilbes of the Arendsii type are seen here and make luxuriant growth in great variety. Evergreens cover a large area and nearly the whole nursery has the Skinner system installed on it. The scarcity of labor and other causes have made it hard to keep the nurseries as prim as in prewar times. A nice store is maintained in Bar Harbor near that of J. H. Stalford and here large hydrangeas, fuchsias, campanulas and lilies are effectively utilized to produce a garden effect near the sidewalk.

Among the many attractive gardens belonging to the summer residents, that of Mrs. John S. Kennedy is perhaps the best. William T. Burton has been superintendent here for many years. There are a number of greenhouses and everything in them is of the highest quality. Houses of splendid grapes, figs, peaches and nectarines were noted. Several houses of superb English melons, mostly Sutton varieties, carried wonderful crops. One house of tuberous begonias was as fine as I had ever seen, the Blackmore and Langdon named sorts being remarkable. Balloon-trained and umbrella-shaped specimens of Allamanda Hendersonii would be hard to beat, and achimenes and gesnerias were fine. Gloriosa superba planted out in deep boxes and trained up the sides of the houses carried a wealth of flowers. Mr. Burton said that G. Rothschildiana was all right for spring blooming, but worthless in summer. Francoa ramosa is another valued summer pot plant here. The Italian garden here is a most delightful one. The walks are all of grass and the lawns here are of a verdancy rarely seen in America; thanks to cool nights and frequent showers and night dews, to say nothing of the fact that they run right down to the ocean. Beds of pentstemons and snapdragons were of grand quality. Aconitums and delphiniums are eight to nine feet high. Shasta daisies, physostegias, phloxes, Clematis Jackmanii, swainsonas, fuch-

The Market.

Stock last week was plentiful. Gladioli are particularly plentiful and are sold at a sacrifice. There is an abundance of asters, which are also sold cheaply. Excellent zinnias are on the market and they are becoming more popular than ever. Summer pompons are in good shape and sell well. A few early yellow chrysanthemums are on hand.

Carnations are not so plentiful; most of those received are outdoor-grown. Roses have been in good demand. Sweet peas are not so good, nor is the supply large. Calendulas, bachelor's buttons, coreopsis, gaillardias, scabiosas and cosmos are all plentiful and sell at low figures. Potted plants are not plentiful, but there is a steady demand for palms and ferns.

Oversupply of first-quality stock was again the state of the market last week, but outside of gladioli there was not a great deal of surplus. was not of much use for anything. This was especially true of asters; it was fine stock, but as soon as it had been in the stores a short time, it became useless. The same could be said of gladioli, but there were so many of these that it was not so noticeable.

Roses are quite scarce. Most of the crops have been cut back and most of the new stock is not allowed to bloom, although stock has been so short that some of the growers have let their new stock bloom, claiming that it does not make much difference whether you pinch the bud or leave it a few days longer until it opens.

There is plenty of miscellaneous stock of all kinds to be had for this season. Greens can be had in any quantities desired. The only thing that is really scarce is orchids and, of course, not many of these are required, but when they must be had, it is just a case of taking one or two wherever you can get them.

There is not a complaint of dull business anywhere, considering that it is summer time. Everyone is doing a good, steady business—yet one does not have to think back so far to remember when some of the stores found it more profitable to close during July and August.

A New Club Member.

At the last meeting of the Baltimore Florists' Club the name of William F. Buschardt was proposed for membership. As the secretary read his application, then his name, then his occupation, which was given as supply man, a query went around the room as to who he was.

Established 1894 — Members F. T. D.

Then the man who proposed him explained that he was the man who had invented the little wire tie, the time-saving device for florists in staking and tying up plants. The reason I speak of this is the fact that we old florists, who were born and raised in the business, have just gone all of our lives using twine and a knife and never noticed this opportunity. Mr. Buschardt is now one of our members.

A Young Man's Vision.

Robert L. Graham has been a member of the F. T. D. for about a year. This firm has been getting a fair share of the orders that find their way to this city, but it has a young man in its force who has been making a study of this feature of the business. I refer to Robert L. Graham, Jr. Recently he told me that the possibilities in this branch of the business were something wonderful. He remarked that there was not another industry that he knew of which had the same opportunity as the florists. His argument is that they have the entire

Various Notes.

Charles Fox & Son, of Annapolis boulevard, have been sending to the S. S. Pennock Co. as fine a line of asters as has ever been seen on this market. These men have been making a summer specialty of asters for some time and their crop gets better each season. The Anne Arundel county soil seems to be just the thing for asters.

and are fine in quality. They are about as good as the indoor-grown product and have been moving briskly. It is surprising what a quantity can be moved at one time. Gladioli are poor in quality, as the first crop is nearly exhausted and the later one has not put in an appearance.

Roses are coming in better than heretofore and miniature roses have begun to arrive in good quality.

August, as usual, is the dullest month of the year and business has been quite poor, it being impossible to move all the stock now coming into the market. The better grade of stock still brings fair figures, but the poorer grades have to be jobbed off at almost any price obtainable.

There is still a strong call for white roses and valley. There seem to be more weddings at this time this year than ever before.

There is still a large supply of all kinds of garden flowers, which for the most part are moving slowly.

Various Notes.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE strike of longshoremen in New York in sympathy with the Irish cause is directed only against British lines and should not interfere with prompt arrival of bulb shipments.

ACCORDING to Consul F. A. Henry, Teneriffe, Canary islands, the exports of this season's crop of onion seed are practically finished and amount to 58,000 pounds, valued at $87,000.

AT the Wisconsin state fair at Milwaukee this week J. K. Rugowski, of Manitowoc, made a splendid showing of blooms of his fancy asters. He won the sweepstakes on this flower, taking prizes for the biggest display and for the finest blooms in all colors.

FOR the seedsmen who have paper coming at market price date of shipment it will be interesting, if not good, news that prices, which advanced sharply in August, are due for another boost in September. "The higher they go, the harder they fall," but not quite yet.

W. W. BARNARD and Ralph B. Howe have returned to Chicago from their recent vacation trips. Mr. Barnard came on without stopping for the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland, but Mr. Howe was there and enjoyed it greatly. The store of the W. W. Barnard Co. has recently been featuring in its main show windows baskets of newly arrived tulip, hyacinth and narcissus bulbs.

AXEL SETTERBERG, formerly general manager of the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, has associated himself with H. V. Swenson & Co., Chicago publicity people, in charge of their department of advertising service for banks. As Mr. Setterberg is a stockholder in three Chicago banks and director in one, as well as having dealt with banks rather extensively in recent years, he might claim moderate acquaintance with the bankers' view of publicity. He intends to continue an interest he holds in the seed business.

ONION sets this year, says Peter Hollenbach, Chicago, are of good size and well ripened; in fact, this season's harvest is larger and better than any previous crop in the last seven years. He estimates that this year's crop averages five and three-quarters bushels to the pound planted, as against about three bushels to the pound last year. Charles Hollenbach, who returned August 17 from his vacation trip to the Canadian Rockies, thinks that the carry-over of seeds this year will be quite sufficient to make up for decreased acreage.

ABOUT FRENCH BULBS.

George Tegelaar, who recently returned from France, confirms the reports that although the crop of French bulbs this season was fairly good, it was impossible for most firms to fill all orders in full, as the crop turned out to be short of expectations.

The bulbs this year shipped from France are up to the pre-war standard, he says. The crops of Lilium candidum and Grand Soleil d'Or were short of the demand and it seems that the supply of these two varieties is diminishing. A good many growers in France failed to deliver the full quantities they had contracted for, especially on the large-sized Paper Whites. Consequently, a good many florists will have to be satisfied with the smaller grade of bulbs if they wish to secure the full quantity of bulbs they had ordered.

Mr. Tegelaar is of the opinion that these small bulbs will prove satisfactory this year, as they were nicely graded and should produce good flowering results, as the weather in France was favorable at the time these bulbs matured. The transportation conditions in the southern part of France were unsatisfactory, so that most firms were compelled to forward their shipments by auto truck to Marseilles, as almost no railroad cars were available and consequently railroad transportation could not be relied upon. Practically all the goods were forwarded by truck, which naturally was more expensive.

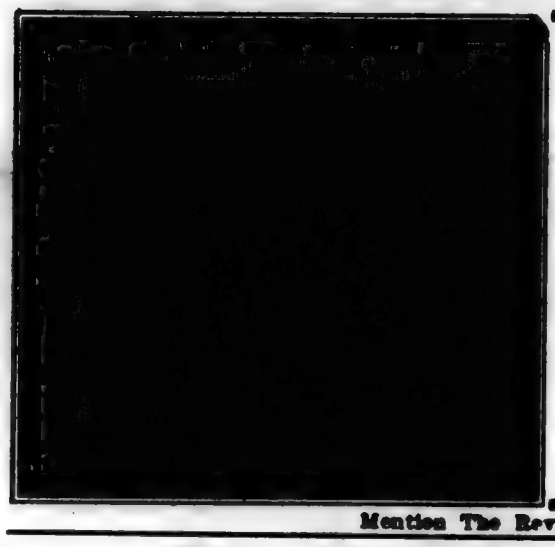
be common stock. In addition to increasing the capital stock, the petition asks that the purposes of the corporation be amended to permit the firm to handle hay, feed, fertilizer and insecticides; to manufacture feed, fertilizer and insecticides; to purchase and sell all kinds of flowers, shrubbery and vegetable plants, and to establish, maintain and operate greenhouses and nurseries.

The firm has recently purchased a handsome building site directly opposite the Union station at Harrisonburg, one block from the public square. The lot fronts fifty-five feet on West Market street and has a railroad trackage of 205 feet. Contractors are now busy erecting a large building, which is to be 167 feet long, fifty-five feet wide and four stories high. The most modern store fixtures and cleaning machinery will be installed.



At a recent meeting the following officers and directors were elected: President, S. L. Hoover, a director in the National bank; vice-president, S. S. Shaver, a retired miller; secretary, E. H. Wetsel, and treasurer and general manager, A. W. Wetsel. These gentlemen, with H. C. Warden, a director in the Bank of Clark County, will constitute the board of directors. Only the Wetsel brothers will be actively engaged in the business, but Mr. Hoover as president will be in close contact with it.

The W. A. Simpson Co., of Baltimore, Md., is no longer connected in any way with this firm.

DUTCH BULB CARGOES BIGGER.

When bulbs predominate in a ship's cargo, as they did in that of the H. Luckenbach, which, following the Rotterdam by two days, arrived at New York August 23 from Rotterdam, one naturally expects such a cargo to set some sort of a record, as being the bulb boat of the season. The 5,388 cases which came on the H. Luckenbach are much fewer, however, than the 15,000 which came on the Cunard steamer, Norman Monarch, September 22, 1919, or the record cargo of 22,000 cases which the Khiva brought in the fall of 1918. The H. Luckenbach's bulb cargo, however, was more than twice as large as the aggregate of the shipments brought by the five preceding steamers carrying Dutch bulbs this season.

The 3,043 cases which the Rotterdam brought August 21, together with the H. Luckenbach's 5,388, raise the season's total to date up to 10,822 cases.

CENTRAL WEST CROP REPORT.

Both field corn and sweet corn seed crops have the best prospects, according to the September crop report recently issued by the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb. In cucumber, muskmelon, squash and pumpkin seed and garden beans, the acreage was either originally under normal or has been decreased through various unfortunate causes. In the case of muskmelons and watermelons the high price obtainable for the shipping article has induced some growers to ship rather than grow for seed. The report is as follows:

Nebraska has been favored with one of the best field corn crops in its history and the crop for seed is equal to any yet produced. The ears of corn promise to be fully matured, with plump and heavy kernels; the sample will be bright and of high germination. Acreage is less than normal.

The report for field corn holds true regarding sweet corn. Prospects were never better for a yield of bright, plump sweet corn. For sugar content this year's crop is, we think, the best in years. The acreage is possibly under normal.

The acreage for cucumber seed was normal at planting time, but repeated hails in the seed districts of Colorado have reduced the acreage thirty-five per cent and the yields forty per cent. Many crops were so badly damaged and set back that it is questionable whether they will ripen. There have been many failures and, with the labor scarcity, some crops may not be harvested. Higher prices will be the rule, as so much hand work enters into the production of cucumber and other seed of this class. Europe doubtless will be in the market for large quantities, if the exchange rate becomes more favorable. Arkansas valley crops are two weeks late. Early frost will mean damage.

The muskmelon acreage is small and there have been many losses from bugs, aphis and hail. It will be a short crop, in our opinion. More hand work is required in producing muskmelon seed than with cucumbers; this means slow contracting with farmers and more losses because of the labor scarcity. The high price of shipping muskmelons is also a temptation to the seed growers to ship melons instead of seeding them.

A large acreage was planted for watermelon, but it has been materially reduced by various causes. Shipping melons bring such high prices that the product of many fields has been shipped instead of seeded. The higher cost of fertilizers had added to the expense of growing watermelons. In our opinion there will be many failures and short deliveries.

Inspection of Nebraska winter squash shows the crops to be excellent, with a decreased acreage. Yields promise to be large and stocks splendid. Winter sorts in other districts are fair to good. Summer squash and pumpkin in Nebraska are good and promise fair yields. Other districts report prospects good. Early frosts will mean much damage.

The acreage of garden beans is insignificant in comparison with that of previous years and crops are from fair to good. Good weather will increase yields.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE surplus is somewhat larger than expected in some lines of nursery stock.

THE National Association of Gardeners will hold its annual convention in St. Louis September 14 to 16.

NEWS of the death of John Fraser, Sr., head of the Fraser Nursery, at Huntsville, Ala., appears in the obituary column this week.

NEXT week will be held the annual gathering of the American Association of Park Superintendents, at Louisville, Ky., September 9 to 11.

THE Beloit Nurseries, of Beloit, Wis., have been incorporated, with capital stock to the amount of $75,000. The incorporators are A. E. Brown, W. V. Moffit and Jennie Belle Moffit.

A PARTY made up of W. B. Cole, T. R. Norman, T. B. West and A. N. Champion, of Painesville, O., motored to Clyde, O., to attend the convention of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association August 23.

RESTRICTIONS of the corn borer quarantine were extended August 23 to include the towns of Bridgewater, East Bridgewater, Wareham, Whitman, Canton, Dedham, Needham, Maynard and Westford, in Massachusetts, and Broadalbin and Glen, New York.

THE Page Tree Service Co., Omaha, Neb., recently purchased nine acres of land near the West Dodge road for $10,000. There C. E. Page, president of the company, plans to establish a park open to the public and to develop it as a landscape nursery, under what he calls an "order-your-garden-complete" system. He suggests that, as furniture stores tend more and more to be arranged in rooms and suites of rooms, so nurseries which seek to furnish material for landscape gardens should be, at least in part, arranged in gardens.

ALLEGING damage to nursery stock and to its irrigation system through the caving of a well pit dug for the plaintiffs by the defendant, the Dallas H. Gray Co., of Marysville, Cal., has filed a complaint in the Superior court to recover $40,000 damages. The complaint says the defendant entered into a contract with the plaintiff to dig a pit in which to place an electric pumping plant to furnish water for the irrigation of nursery stock on a small acreage of land. The pit caved, damaging the pump and the irrigation system, which resulted in the loss of the entire stock of young trees and plants in the nursery of the plaintiffs.

THE Stuart Orchard Co., Stuart, Va., is planning to establish a nursery, in addition to its orchard and fruit preserving business.

THE thirty-fourth annual meeting of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents will be held at Hamilton, Ont., September 7 to 10.

A LARGE number of nurserymen were attracted to Geneva, N. Y., this week by the annual meeting there of the New York State Nurserymen's Association.

THE continued ascension of the cost of paper is causing some nurserymen to spend money to revise mailing lists in order to save more on the printers' bill.

THE McClurg-Laird Nurseries Co., of Sebring, Fla., has been incorporated, with a capitalization of $50,000. The incorporators are J. G. McClurg, B. L. Laird and R. F. Eustis.

THE Anschutz Floral Co., Atlanta, Ga., has been incorporated with a capitalization of $6,000 to establish a nursery. The incorporators are George Sofianos and Mrs. Lulu Anschutz.

PROPAGATING FRUIT STOCKS.

There are some striking, not to say startling, facts concerning the fruit industry. These facts have their counterparts in the nursery industry, and in that they have even greater significance than they do in the fruit industry. We boast of our apple industry, the most important by far of all fruits. It is nationwide, almost, in its production. We are proud of our peach industry, as well we may be. It is second only to the apple in acreage and value. Our pear industry

View of the Armour Recreation Camp at Round Lake, Illinois. Note the large number of splendid trees. Many of these trees were saved for future generations by the skill of Davey Tree Experts

J. M. La Pointe, superintendent for the Armour Recreation Camp, Round Lake, Illinois

The tribute of J. M. La Pointe to Davey Tree Surgery

THE DAVEY TREE EXPERT CO., Inc., KENT, OHIO.

Gentlemen: Last fall we employed the Davey Tree Experts to treat and prune the trees located on the grounds surrounding our Girls' Recreation Camp at Round Lake, Ill.

Now that the trees are in full bloom it is very apparent that the results of this treatment are going to be satisfactory.

In addition to doing very high-class work, your experts proved themselves to be very steady, courteous and obliging in every respect.

Believing the work of preserving trees to be commendable, we wish you success in this undertaking.

Yours very truly,
ARMOUR AND COMPANY
J. M. La Pointe, Supt. of Grounds

The saving of priceless trees is a matter of first importance on every estate. Davey Tree Surgery is a fulfillment of the maximum expectations of those who love and value trees. A careful examination of your trees will be made by appointment.

brings a goodly measure of satisfaction to us. Our plum, prune, cherry, orange, lemon and grapefruit interests are without comparison; there is nothing like them anywhere else in the world. And yet, our apple, peach, pear, cherry and citrus industries are all developed from plant species not native to the United States.

We have many native plums, but the quantity of native fruit placed on the market is small. Our commercial plums are largely developed from European and oriental species, while our most important prunes are themselves introduced varieties, not even American sorts. Our currants, likewise, are of alien parentage. Among the small fruits, however, America has furnished more of the foundation material; strawberries are mostly native, though there may be considerable admixture of foreign blood in them; the same is true of red raspberries; black raspberries, blackberries and dewberries are purely American; the bulk of our gooseberries are American, though we have always grown some English sorts; grapes, outside California, have been developments from our own native species.

But our interest now centers on the tree fruits, principally the apple, pear, cherry and plum. That our great American fruit industry has been so largely a transplanting from foreign sources is not at present of particular concern, for it is a thing now thoroughly American and independent. But during all the years that have come and gone, the fact to me is startling that the means of perpetuating and expanding the fruit industry in our country has been allowed to remain, and still is, so largely foreign to American industry.

If an American nurseryman wants apple seeds for the growing of stocks, he imports them from France; if he wants apple stocks, he has to go to France for probably more than half the number used in America and, what is more, those he gets from France are so much superior to those of domestic production that he is glad to get them even at a material advance in price over stocks of domestic production. In the same way, when a nurseryman wants pear seeds, he goes to France or to the orient for them and he imports seedling stocks from France besides, as he does of St. Julian and Myrobalan plum stocks and Mazzard and Mahaleb cherry stocks. In fact, he finds it so difficult to grow cherry stocks that he is inclined to buy all that he uses in Europe.

We simply have no domestic sources of supply of these fruit tree stock seedlings. It is true that we are independent so far as peach production is concerned, though our source of seed supply needs better safeguarding. Our native plums furnish a partial supply of stocks for use in propagating plum trees, but the total is not large.

To propagators of citrus trees I should admit that we can take care of the citrus industry without aid from foreign shores, though it remains to be proved whether the orient may not contain material for citrus stocks far superior to anything now in use in this country.

YORK, PA.

About 100 members of the Pennsylvania State Horticultural Association and sixty members of the Lancaster County Fruit Growers' Association were entertained at a luncheon by John C. Schmidt, proprietor of Springwood Farms, August 18, before the dedication of the monument marking the site of the origin of the York Imperial apple, propagated here by Jonathan Jessop in 1820. The lieutenant-governor, secretary of agriculture and other state officials gave addresses. In addition to eighty-four acres of bearing orchards, Mr. Schmidt has four commercial greenhouses, devoted to Primula obconica, poinsettias and carnations.

POEHLMANN BROTHERS CO., Morton Grove, Ill.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Bad weather at the beginning of last week made stock a little scarce, but the sunshine towards the end of the week made things somewhat better.

Roses were most scarce, but asters and gladioli made up for the deficiency. Lilies, both Harrisii and rubrum, are arriving in good numbers and are selling well. Some large zinnias arrived last week and, being something new, sold well. Valley seems to be more scarce than any other flower. The retailers are up against it for their wedding work.

Business in general has been exceptionally good for this time of year.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has returned from Maine, where he spent a good vacation, except for the results of the accident he had before he went away. He bruised his leg on his automobile, and while he was away it began to trouble him, causing him to undergo an operation. He is getting along nicely.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving some fine lilies from William Shuman, of the Highlands.

E. G. Gillett is getting some exceptional Premier and Columbia roses from Rolf Zetlitz, of Lima, O.

Raymond Murphy has returned from the S. A. F. convention and from his tour through the east. He reports that business is good in the east.

The recent visitors were C. S. Ford, of Philadelphia; H. S. Price, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, and Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

William Speck has sold his greenhouses to Fred Brueggeman, formerly with P. J. Olinger.

R. A. Kelley is doing some extensive remodeling, evidently expecting a good business for the fall and winter.

A. E. Becker, of the Avondale Floral Co., is enjoying his vacation at Buckeye, near Columbus. G. H. K.

The Market.

Market conditions are poor. Quantities of good stock of all kinds are coming in daily, including pink carnations. Prices are unusual. Any florist who can use a quantity can buy at his own figures. There are good Beauties, lilies, gladioli, long-stemmed asters and carnations. The roses being received are good for this time of the year. Most stock is short, but the market is supplied with sufficient long-stemmed stock to accommodate the demand.

Various Notes.

E. J. McCallum, after attending the Cleveland convention, continued his journey to Detroit, Mich., on a business trip.

T. P. Langhans, secretary of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., his wife and son, Oliver, left for a few weeks' vacation at Atlantic City.

A notice is being distributed by the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., reading, "Night Service Discontinued. Closed Sundays." It is a pleasure to learn that more of our florists are able to follow out this long looked-for plan.

Fred Burki, president of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and his daughter, Roma, arrived in Pittsburgh last week. They expect to spend several months here. H. J. H.

Greenhouse Heating

WATER SEEPING INTO PIT.

We have a great deal of trouble with water seeping into our boiler pit. Frequently a nearby river is higher than the ground is at our place. Would it be safe to have a pit only three feet deep and to use a generator? Would a mercury generator do, or would it be necessary to use a pump appliance? Our houses are 130 feet long. I shall appreciate any information that you may give me. J. W. B.—Miss.

While a much better circulation can be secured if the lowest part of the returns is above the top of the heater, under the conditions outlined you can consider it safe to rely on a system of piping if it can be arranged so that the return pipes are above the return ports in the boiler, provided a mercury generator is used and the flow pipes are carried overhead. It will be helpful if either the returns are of the same number and size as the flow pipes or of practically the same area in cross section. Thus, for a house twenty feet wide, to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in Mississippi, you should use four 2½-inch flows and either four 2½-inch or eight 2-inch returns. While a mercury generator will give good results under the above conditions, in a large range you should secure circulation by means of an electric pump.

PIPING GREENHOUSE.

I am sending you a sketch showing how my range is heated at present and the position of a new greenhouse. Will you please advise me how to pipe the new greenhouse? Sometimes it is 30 degrees below zero here, but as a general rule it is 20 degrees below in winter. The heat required is about 50 degrees. We are planning for three benches and four walks. There are two boilers, connected by a header, tapped for 2-inch and 3-inch pipes. We have enough 2-inch pipe and headers, with one 2-inch inlet and four 2-inch outlets on hand if we could use them. The tops of the boilers are three feet below the returns. Are these boilers, Gurney 917 W, large enough? In the span-roof house the five flows on each side rise from the boiler to the south end of the house, and the five returns run back downhill. Would it improve this arrangement to raise the five flows near the boiler and let the pipe descend all the way? G. E. F.—Can.

The sketch shows the new house to be 24x50 feet, with three feet of concrete and three feet of glass in each of the walls.

To heat the house to 50 degrees, under the severe conditions mentioned, you should use four 2-inch flow pipes and sixteen 2-inch returns. The flow pipes may be on the side plates and purlin posts, and the four coils, each containing four return pipes, could be placed on the walls and under the outside benches. This will utilize the headers and piping now on hand.

While I do not recommend changing the direction of the slope in the flow pipes in the span-roof house, if a good circulation is now secured, it could be improved if the flow pipes were carried

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

"The customer's interest first"—is the basis of the KROESCHELL standard. This principle makes the KROESCHELL Policy the most liberal of all in the Greenhouse Boiler business. The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. It is the KROESCHELL principle to supply only the type of boiler best suited for the conditions. For this reason we always furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

The KROESCHELL has proven its worth in many of the large establishments in this country. It has frequently been selected by the most careful buyers in competition with all other types of boilers. Its efficiency and capacity are completely beyond any other boiler.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth passages.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

Perfect reduction from high to a uniform low pressure is obtained in the Amling range by Fisher Reducing Valves. These valves are dependable and through years of service have added to the reputation established by Fisher Governors.

a little higher and were given a downward slope of one inch in fifteen or twenty feet for the entire distance.

The boilers referred to have two 4-inch flows and two 4-inch returns each. They are rated for 1,500 square feet of radiation each. The total radiation required in the three houses is only 1,500 square feet, and one of the boilers will probably heat them in mild weather. The flow and return ports are of ample capacity for the size of the boiler.

PAINT ON PIPES.

Will you please advise me as to the kind of paint that should be used for painting my steam heating pipes? I have just installed a steam heating system. My previous experience has been with hot water heat and almost any kind of paint will serve on a hot water pipe, as the pipe never becomes hot enough to burn the paint.

Should any precaution be used during the first few nights of firing on account of odors from the paint, or are these odors not injurious to the plants?

H. A. C.—Ala.

For use about greenhouses and especially upon steam heating pipes, care should be taken that no paint containing coal tar is used. Some of the better grades of asphaltum paint may be thinned and used with safety, although it will be safer to make the application several days before the fires are to be started.

The asphaltum paint gives a smooth, glossy surface and, theoretically at least, it does not radiate as much heat as a rough surface. Excellent results have been obtained from a paint prepared from lampblack and linseed oil. This can be used with entire safety and, as it gives a dull finish, it should favor and not hinder radiation. If a moderately thick coating is applied over the entire surface of the pipes, it will be found quite durable even though the pipes are in damp places.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. The Market.

Last week funeral work continued to form the bulk of the summer trade. Some florists would be glad to close for a month during the dullest part of the summer, but of course are unable to do this, as the few regular customers who might need flowers at that time might be driven away if unable to get them when wanted. The present dull period, however, is only what is customary at this season of the year, when large numbers of people are on their vacations and others have flower gardens in their yards.

Various Notes.

The Washington Florist, 577 Broad street, reports that the volume of funeral work during the last few weeks puts his aggregate business for the summer ahead of that of last summer.

The Market.

The cool weather of the last week has had a beneficial influence upon the market, decreasing the supply and increasing the demand. The cool weather and accompanying rains have done much for outdoor stock. Asters are now in their prime. Gladioli are in exceedingly heavy supply. Lilies are bringing $15 per hundred. Roses are in much more moderate supply. Some fine orchids, locally grown, are on the market. Japanese lilies are offered and a few rubrums and giganteums. In outdoor stock, dahlias and zinnias are prominent.

Various Notes.

The new range of the Flick Floral Co., comprising eight greenhouses, is now completely under glass.

Misses Margaret and Catherine Vesey left recently for Curtis, Mich., where they are visiting at the summer home of friends for several weeks.

Out-of-town weddings and funeral work have kept everyone busy at the store of the Blossom Floral Co. recently.

David Vesey, of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, who up to the present time has devoted himself to the practice of law, will take a more active part in the florists' business. Preparations for the fall season are well under way at the greenhouses, renovating and remodeling taking place. Orchids, carnations and roses will be the specialties here this season. Butterfly, Premier, Shawyer and Sunburst will be the principal roses grown.

Miss Katherine Crawford, of John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich., has returned to her home after a week's visit with Mrs. Ruth Blossom.

Some fine Pendleton and Hadley gladioli are noted in the shop of Edgar Wenninghoff. Sales have shown a good increase here during last week.

The Market.

Asters are again arriving in large quantities. They are available in all three colors and sell at from $1 to $4 per hundred. Good ones are not so plentiful, the majority being only fair. Gladioli are not so abundant, as the crop is about gone.

Roses are appearing in better supply. Columbia is the best in the market. Ophelia is beginning to be more conspicuous and is of good quality. A limited number of carnations are coming in, but they are short-stemmed.

Delphiniums of good quality are seen, but in no great numbers. Lilies, both rubrum and Easter, are adequate.

Summer flowers are in profusion. Cosmos and zinnias are unlimited in supply. Buddleias, marigolds, coreopsis, daisies, etc., are numerous.

Dahlias are appearing in better supply, but are not at their height.

Business has been only fair, not rushing. With the coming of the cooler months, however, a better demand is expected.

Various Notes.

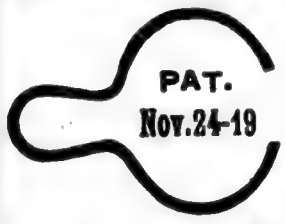
Fred Kiel has returned from his vacation. He said he had a splendid rest, eating, sleeping and fishing.

Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, was here last week calling on the trade.

Merle Morris and Robert Elles, of Bloomington, and J. Edgar Stuart, of Anderson, visited the various greenhouses last week.

E. E. Temperley spent Saturday, August 28, at Lafayette, where he visited the establishments of Herman Roth and F. Dorner & Sons Co. He saw some excellent Columbia roses at the former and promising Rose Marie at the latter. Both places are in good condition for the fall trade. Theodore Dorner expects to be in Indianapolis in October at the F. T. D. meeting.

Herman Junge is ill, suffering from an abscess in his chest.



The Cumberland range of Smith & Young Co. is just coming into a large crop of roses.

The East Washington street range of Bertermann Bros. Co. is well stocked with promising pot plants. There are some splendid pot mums, good begonias and excellent ferns.

George Wiegand's home and garden is a good advertisement for the florists' business. His porch is adorned with elaborate boxes, trees, etc., and to the south of the house is a beautiful garden.

Theodore Kuebler, Jr., has been ill and unable to attend to work. E. E. T.

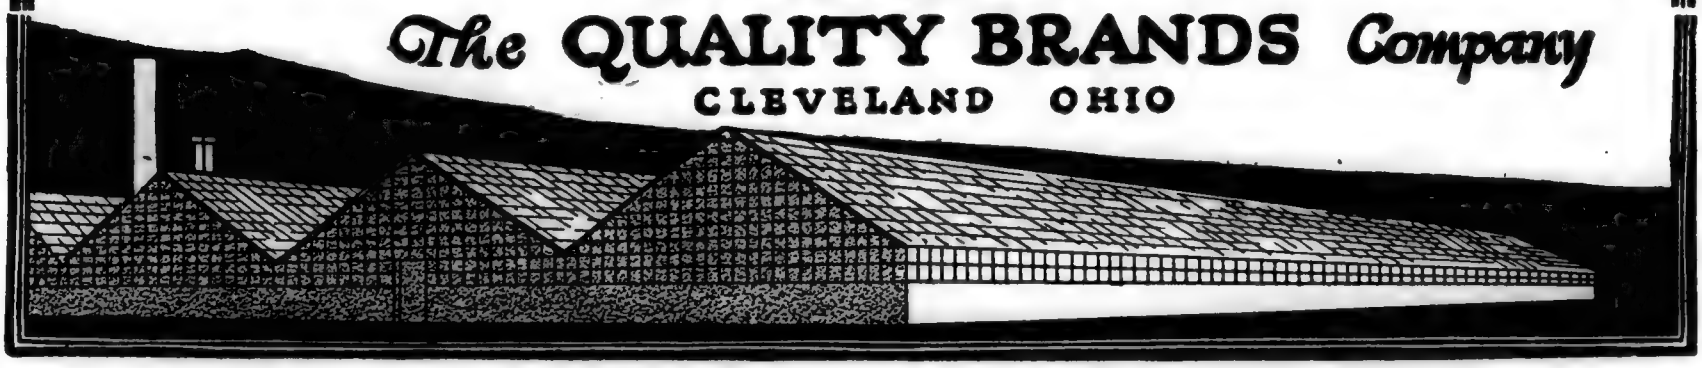
VITAPLASTIC
GLAZING COMPOUND

Some Day We Hope That Your Greenhouses Will Prove This Little Talk

After several barrel tests, the big F. R. Pierson greenhouses, located at Tarrytown, New York, decided to "cover 'em all" with VITAPLASTIC GLAZING COMPOUND.

That was last year.



Well, the "cover 'em all" order went through and we figured we were through for a good many years ourselves, BUT last week another "cover 'em all" order showed up and we started worrying. What's wrong with Vitaplastic?

Then Mr. Pierson told us he had taken over another big range of glass and, of course, wanted Vitaplastic.

If your greenhouses are not absolutely tight, and you contemplate doing any glazing work and saving yourself some greenback money on coal, write us and we will gladly tell you why a Vitaplastic user will say to you, "Cover 'em all" with Vitaplastic.

Our Service Department will be glad to serve you and help you with your paint and glazing problems

Easy-Splice V-Joint on the ridge, showing tongue, groove and rail bolt before placed in position

Easy-Splice V-Joint on the gutter ready to be tightened

Callahan Easy-Splice V-Joint

Patent No. 1335554

One of the exclusive features of Callahan Cut-to-fit Greenhouses is the patented Easy-Splice V-Joint. Its advantages are:

I. Easy to connect
II. Strong connections
III. Joints adjustable to shrinkage
IV. Permanently non-leakable gutters

The tongue (1) fits accurately into the groove (2). This is of special value in the gutters, as it makes them permanently non-leakable. The connections are easily and quickly made. Simply white-lead the ends and draw them together by tightening the knurled nut (4) on the rail bolt (3) with a hammer and spike.

The joints can be tightened at any time to make up for shrinkage. The heavy rail bolt reinforcement and the accurate milling make every Easy-Splice V-Joint almost as strong as if no joint existed.

Plan your Geenhouse now. Our Planning Department is at your service. Tell us your problem.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The flower business has been quiet during the last week, but stock is coming in abundantly, asters and roses being especially plentiful, while fine spikes of gladioli are on hand. There have been a smaller number of funeral orders, as well as less demand for flowers for social purposes.

Various Notes.

Willis S. Pino leaves this week for a two weeks' automobile trip into the White mountains, with his wife, for a vacation.

George Hunt is able to be out again after a serious illness with intestinal indigestion.

Swanson Bros. are making extensive improvements and renovations at their range, on Stenton avenue.

Fred Dietz was in New York last week on business.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, has returned from his annual vacation, looking much improved.

Charles Hunt is overhauling his range of houses, on Burnside street, and will have them heated this winter for the first time in two years.

N. Lemay has been granted a permit for the erection of a greenhouse at 33 Rangeley avenue.

J. Frank Schellinger, of Riverside, has been spending a few days in recreation on Long Island.

Cohen Bros., proprietors of the Lowell Avenue Greenhouses, are making extensive alterations and improvements at their range. W. H. M.

AJAX
Asbestos
Black Glazing Cement

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load same—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

Not Affected by Extreme Heat or Cold

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

FREE OFFER

To facilitate the application of our product we furnish the following apparatus free of charge:

With Each Barrel
2 Bulbers
1 Gun for filling bulbers

With Each Half-Barrel
1 Bulber
1 Gun for filling bulber

Lower Cost than White Putty

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

Greenhouse Builders

It's Hardly Fair To Figure Greenhouse Possessing In Dollars and Cents

You don't figure the cost of a piano that way; or a choice rug; or any of the real, worth-while, joy-giving things of life.

Things like that, you say to yourself: "It's not so much a question of affording it as it is whether I can afford not to afford it."

When you look into the matter a bit further and find out how out of all proportion to the cost is the all-year-round happiness and satisfaction a greenhouse gives to every member of your employer's family, you will sort of chide yourself for not having urged him to buy one long ago.

Glad to talk it over with you.

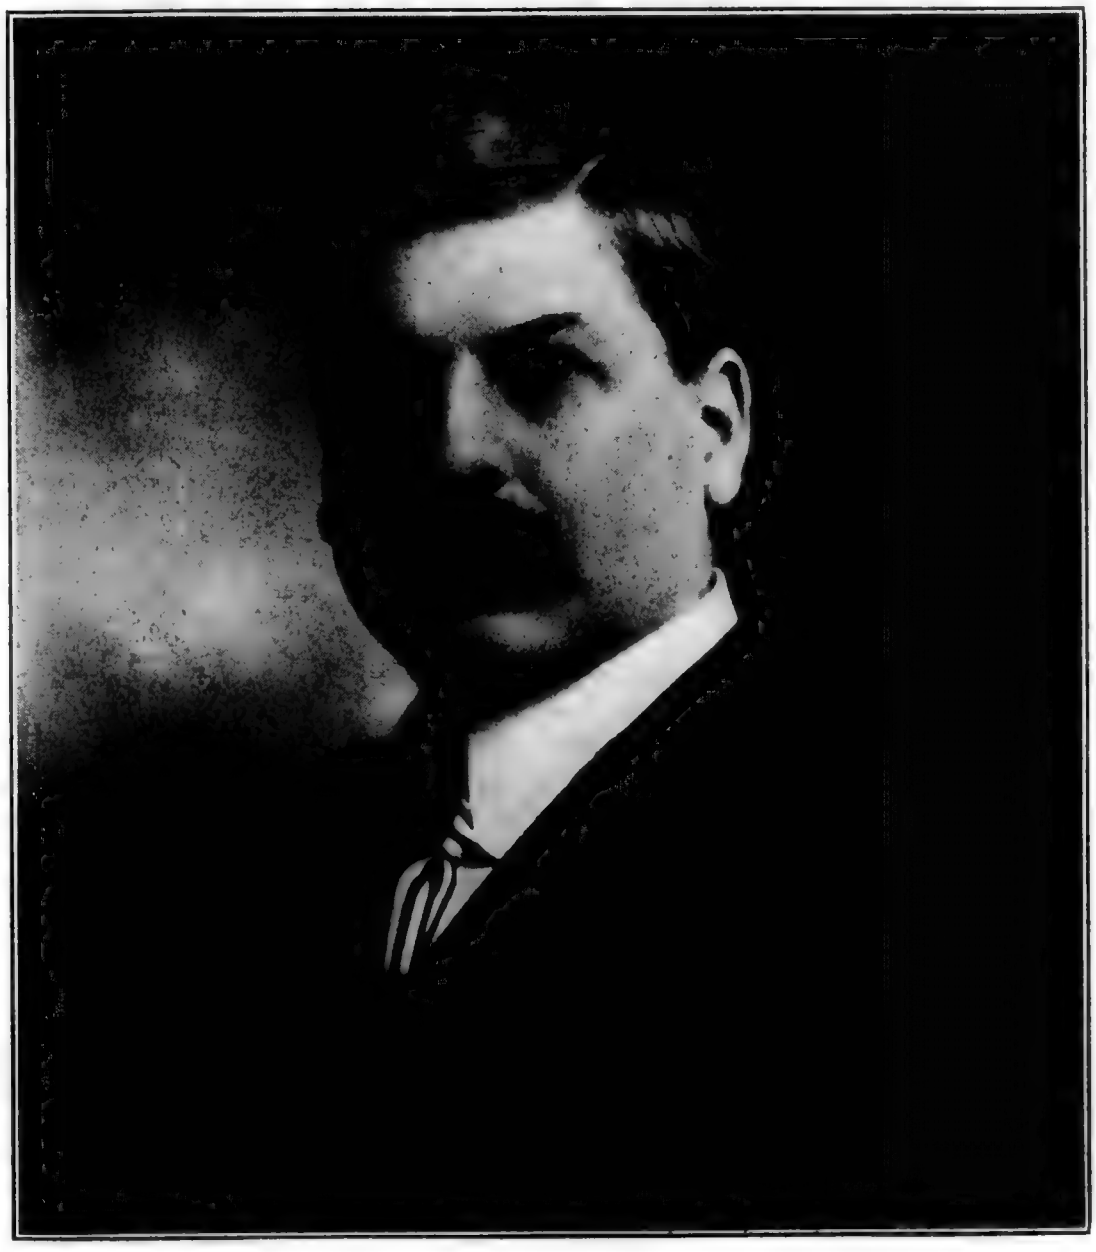
TRAVELS AMONG BRITISH TRADE

Keenly observing as he went, this leader among American growers found much of interest and instruction in his visits among greenhouse establishments across the water, whence he has just returned. To give readers of The Review the benefit of these observations, he has written these notes.

By CHARLES H. TOTTY.

DURING a recent trip to Europe, I had the pleasure of renewing some old acquaintances, and it was particularly with the idea of giving Review readers an idea of horticulture in Great Britain that these notes were planned. The question everyone asks me since my recent return from Europe is, "Are the growers getting back to prewar conditions?" England has been noted for many years as a great horticultural center, and it has been a matter of conjecture as to how far the war has set back the profession as a whole. Unquestionably, the war had a big influence. Many nurseries plowed up one-half to two-thirds of their entire stocks to convert the acreage into food crops, an act rendered necessary by the submarine blockade and the fact that the government demanded the elimination of many things not necessary for the life of the nation. Nursery stock, such as small trees, will not return to normal condition for years. One grower, however, suggested to me that perhaps the effect was good, as much stock was eliminated that should have been burned down or destroyed years ago.



Back to Normal.

Coming back to my own end of the business, the florists' end, it may, I think, be safely stated that conditions are almost normal. A year ago, owing to shortage of production on everything, stock was bringing a greatly enhanced price, but at the present time prices are more nearly approaching prewar figures. I did not have time to see many of the larger growers because my time was limited and I had many things to do in a short while.

One of the best known men in floriculture in England is W. E. Wallace, of Eaton Bray. Mr. Wallace came over here some years ago and picked up the best things he could find in American carnation seedlings and at the present time he grows some 125,000 carnation plants. About half of the varieties are seedlings of his own raising and the other half American kinds, such as May Day, White Enchantress, Delight and Scarlet Glow. His own seedling, Enid, a scarlet-crimson, is everywhere in the market considered the best thing in its color. Romeo, another scarlet-crimson, is also a productive and profitable variety. There is much more call in England for crimson varieties than there is in this country. When Mr. Wallace is in crop with his carnations, he will cut as high as 4,000 or more dozen per day. His flowers are distributed all over England. Before the war he shipped many blooms to the Paris and Brussels markets, but now, of course, the continental trade is all gone. Mr. Wallace, before his visit here in 1912, grew roses considerably, but he has since entirely discarded them in favor of the carnation.

Mr. Wallace, in conversation, showing the foothold horticulture has on the public mind, related the curious fact that during the war, until the revolution in Russia, roses were shipped every week to St. Petersburg by way of Bergen. Trotsky and his present followers, so far as he could learn, have not put in any requisitions for roses, or carnations either, and it looks as though trade with Russia will not soon be resumed.

The week before my visit Mr. Wallace was appointed the local county magistrate and, to use a colloquialism, he is the "big bug" in his own town. He has recently purchased a farm of some 500 acres, on which he has established a milk herd of cows, and he will also try breeding fine horses.

Charles H. Totty.

Debt to America.

Mr. Wallace is generous enough to concede the debt he, in common with other English growers, owes to American carnations. While, as stated before, more than half his place is given over to his own seedlings, still it is to the American blood on which he worked that in a large measure is due his success with seedling carnations.

His packing shed is the most complete and best arranged I have ever seen anywhere. Several novel ideas incorporated in it were entirely his own and we will leave them for Mr. Wallace to describe for himself sometime, if he cares to do so. It is certainly an enviable position to have been attained, as he himself puts it, "by a boy who started to work on a farm at 10 years of age."

Different Methods.

The method of growing carnations used by Mr. Wallace and other English growers is in some respects different from that of our stock propagated in December and January, and when the plants are growing they are stopped much higher than in the American system. The result of this is that when the plants are coming into bloom they are much taller. Consequently freer access of air and light is permitted to the bench. Once the plants are set out in the bench they grow straight along for two or three years and some of the carnations we saw at Mr. Wallace's stood eight feet high from the top of the soil. The climate is much more favorable in Europe for carnation development than it is with us, and this is the cause of such a wonderful growth. In mentioning this, I do not wish to depreciate in the least degree Mr. Wallace's skill as a grower, but it would be impossible to grow plants in the benches here for two years in succession without replacing them. I do not think the British growers get so many flowers as we do in midwinter. Their main crop comes from spring to fall; still their prices at that time are as good as our midwinter prices, as I found carnations were bringing 3 to 5 shillings per dozen for the best stock in the month of July.

Million Mums.

Lowe & Shawyer is another name to conjure with in the cut flower market. In common with Mr. Wallace, Lowe & Shawyer's is a cut flower proposition pure and simple, and as they do not issue any catalogue, they do not care to be burdened with correspondence. But to Americans who are looking for a large cut flower establishment, this will meet their views in many respects. I was largely interested in the Lowe & Shawyer establishment on account of the quantities of mums they grow, which total nearly 1,000,000 plants. Some 300,000 of these were planted out in the open ground and the others in pots. The conditions under which these plants are grown are made possible by the climate. We in the east cannot grow large blooms outdoors and flower them successfully. The hot sun dwarfs their growth and blasts the flowers as they develop. The plants that are to flower outdoors are set into fixed frames and protected when necessary by removable plant-cloth.

Keeping Up.

Mr. Shawyer told me he has six copies of The Review mailed to his office every week, in order that the foremen of the different departments may each have a copy to study conditions as they are in America. I told him I did not know of a single American house that was doing anything of this kind. His staff of foremen comprises some wonderfully clever men in their respective lines. Tom Stevenson, his mum grower, is known all over the world. Teddy Alford is known by the rose men of three continents, and his carnation foreman, whose name has just for the moment slipped my memory, is also as well known in this country as in England. Lowe & Shawyer employ altogether over 500 employees and, giving an idea of the volume of their business before the war, they forced every year 6,500,000 bulbs, which is just one item, for their cut flower trade. Some 130,000 rose plants are grown for cut flowers, and an extensive new range is being completed for the cultivation of carnations. Mr. Shawyer will be recalled by many rose growers as the originator of the rose, Mrs. George Shawyer.

It would take several days to describe Lowe & Shawyer's establishment properly. These notes contain no mention of the large crops of tomatoes, sweet peas, etc., grown in tremendous quantities for the market.

While the large growers ship a good deal of their stock to Covent Garden market, they also watch closely all other cities, such as Birmingham, Liverpool, Newcastle, Glasgow and all manufacturing centers, and see that they are provided for. There is excellent train service and the fact that the country is small renders this method of marketing possible.

Page Properties.

Among several other large growing establishments that I saw, one deserving particular mention is the Page properties, at Hampton—W. H. Thomas, Robert and John Page being more or less affiliated. In any case they are all practical florists. The Page properties as a whole cover 150 acres, much of it being covered with glass. A general line of stock is grown—carnations, lilies, tomatoes, cucumbers, etc. The lily supply is arranged so that a certain number of boxes are placed on the market each morning every day of the year. Here I ran across Jack Page, who works with his father, W. H. Page, and who will be remembered in America from the time he worked for the E. G. Hill Co. and Poehlmann Bros. Co. Jack is a fine fellow and often longs for the brilliant sunshine of America to enable him to bring in his crops. Jack could not take the Chicago sun back with him, but he did take a Chicago bride to brighten up the atmosphere. Mrs. Page, Jr., will be well remembered around Morton Grove, which she is planning to revisit next year. Bobby Page, who was for a little while one of the employees of the Charles H. Totty Co., is now the chief salesman at Covent Garden. Mr. Page acquired considerable American experience while over here. Whether he acquired the gift of "blarney" in America or it just comes natural to him, I do not know, but I do know and could see he is a splendid salesman. The Page brothers numbered five originally. Now the second generation is growing up and almost all of them are working into the business; so it looks as though the name Page will remain in British horticulture for many years to come.

Last year the cut flower men in Great Britain enjoyed a wonderful era of prosperity, due to the fact that production was much below par. This year, with the greatly increased quantity of cut flowers, prices are dropping nearer prewar ones, though there is no reason for any florist in England to be discouraged with the outlook. Labor is not any too plentiful or any too good, but this shortage is beginning to be made up.

Coal Causes Worry.

One thing that seems a source for worry is the coal situation. The British coal miner seems to think he should be the millionaire. He works five days a week and gets a correspondingly better wage than any other man in the country, but by last accounts he is still unsatisfied and going on strike again.

In France, too, the coal situation is one of the great problems. Coal, I was informed, is 500 francs a ton and of poor quality at that, with the prospect every day that the government will ration the florist down to one-half or less of the quantity he needs. All of the old country establishments are suffering from antiquated heating systems, and I think the next ten years is going to see considerable change in that direction. I did not see a single place in either Great Britain or France that was heated by steam. Every house in France had a tiny hot water boiler placed at the end, in which coke was burned.

Albert Truffant, of Versailles, for instance, has an establishment well known to many men of European training, since at one time or another many of the present American growers were employed there. At the present time in Mr. Truffant's establishment is found a copper-pipe, hot water system, installed possibly fifty years ago. With coal at 500 francs a ton, establishments of this character will have to be modernized or else torn down, since the coal problem in Europe, as well as in America, will not get any better and may rapidly grow much worse. This criticism of the heating system, however, is not intended to be taken wrongly; it is uttered in kindness, as one of the many things I saw in Europe from which a grower can learn something about heating plans.

Bond Between.

Wherever I went I was always most cordially welcomed. The deep bond of affection which exists was shown when, in the course of conversation, names came up and we would find we had many friends in common scattered all over the United States and Canada. A horticulturist seems to make friends more easily and hold them longer than do people in almost any other line of business. My whole stay in Europe was most pleasant.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

FOR A LAWN WEDDING.

The Artist's Opportunity.

It is quite easy for the ordinary thoughtless person to move among the finest decorations without realizing the beauty which surrounds him or the care which was required to create those beautiful surroundings. This is particularly true when the person's interest is so absorbed in an event that his eyes seem closed to outward sights not directly connected with the chief point of interest. Yet that beauty, whether noticed or not, has its effect; it contributes powerfully to the joy and impressiveness of the occasion.

Take a wedding, for instance. When a florist has carte blanche for the decorations, he is the stage manager who is to provide the setting for a brief, but momentous, scene. His ingenuity, his resourcefulness, his sense of the fitness of things, his best efforts in the execution of his plan—all will be directed toward the creation of a beautiful, harmonious background for the wedding, a background so designed that the central features are made prominent and the less important parts are duly subordinated.

Outdoor Possibilities.

For an outdoor wedding, flowers, ferns, shrubs, trees, ribbons, stands, baskets and so on are his stage properties; the lawn is his stage; the bridal party and the guests are alike his actors and his audience. Here is an opportunity to do a piece of work which will give him untold personal satisfaction as an artist and will be of great advertising value for his business.

How this opportunity can be well made use of was shown at Pasadena, Cal., in the wedding of E. Crawford May and Miss Margaret Mortenson, when Siebrecht's House of Flowers, of Pasadena, had charge of the decorations. Jacob Mortenson, the father of the bride, is a large lumber dealer and at one time worked for the father of the late Charles Willis Ward.

Aisle and Garden Chapel.

The wedding took place on the lawn west of the Mortenson residence; the lawn is 130x190 feet, with only a large palm, Phœnix canariensis, in the center. Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., of Siebrecht's House of Flowers, placed 260 eucalyptus trees, twenty to fifty feet in height, around the edge of the lawn to form an outdoor chapel, with an improvised altar at the opposite end of the lawn from the residence. At the altar, on a raised platform, as shown clearly in one of the accompanying photographs, a white prie-dieu was placed on an oriental rug underneath a canopy consisting of rose vines, white roses, Easter lilies, sweet peas and Shasta daisies. On each side of the canopy were two large bay trees festooned with white roses, giving the effect of white pyramid rose trees.

The other illustration shows the aisle made by connecting the aisle posts with broad white satin ribbon leading from the residence around the palm up to the altar, the canopy of which appears at the top of the picture. On top of each aisle post was a basket containing white roses, Easter lilies, Shasta daisies and Gladiolus Colvillei The Bride; each basket had also a shower effect of hanging Asparagus Sprengeri festooned with white sweet peas. The base of the phœnix was surrounded by gladioli, Shasta daisies and other flowers. Two large bay trees containing white roses stood at the entrance to the aisle.

On each side of the garden chapel at regular intervals among the eucalyptus trees were placed fifteen bay trees which had been transformed into standard rose trees; these had alternately Columbia and Russell roses. Aside from their own beauty, these berosed bay trees helped by modifying the stiff wall effect of green. Altogether about 3,000 roses were used in the chapel decorations. Potted palms and ferns were also used to advantage.

Unusual Bride's Bouquet.

The residence was beautified in keeping with the decorations of each room. The main stairway was festooned with running Columbia and Russell roses, each newel post having a basket with three or four dozen Russell roses. The bride's bouquet was distinctive. It was in shower form and consisted of lilies of the valley, white cattleyas, forty odontoglossums and gardenias. There were ten streamers from the center of the bouquet and ten from the handle; these were festooned with valley and gardenias, beside a broad sash of white ribbon.

ART AND WINDOW DRESSING.

Clothing an Opportunity.

An odd phrase that—window dressing. It suggests that the window is something naked and waiting to be clothed. And, in fact, the bare glass, with its empty display space behind, is a naked opportunity, waiting for the clothes of character. The display window, like the display manikin or wax figure, needs to be dressed in order to be of use.

Just how it is to be dressed is of the greatest importance, because it generally makes the first impression; it has the best chance to sell the possible customer; it is the store's first opportunity to say its message. Some of the chief department stores in the larger cities have brought window dressing, or trimming, to a high level of skill and ingenuity. But the florist has a peculiar advantage right at the start, in the supreme beauty of his staple commodities. What backgrounds he shall give them and how he shall select and arrange them to get the full value from their color and form are problems worthy of much study. Certain florists have recognized the importance of this study and have employed skilled decorators and window dressers to solve it for them. Their experience gives rise to such suggestions as these from Oscar Tekniepe, decorator for the Mullanphy Florists, Inc., St. Louis, Mo.:

Looking Toward the Altar Set for Wedding in California Garden.

"The fact that the sale of flowers is furthered by a display of some sort or other has always been recognized, but the application of art to window dressing is comparatively new. Many florists just push the flowers into the window without consideration of the appearance they are going to make from the outside.

"Surely the object of window dressing is to attract attention. The number of people who pass your store is largely in excess of those entering it; so it is certain that it will be to your great advantage to have your windows attractive and artistic every day. Most people go upon the streets with a purpose in view, which often may be the purchase of just such goods as you carry. To many such a handsomely decorated window is an irresistible invitation to enter and an inducement to buy.

Tips for the Window Trimmer.

"To secure the best possible results the window trimmer should constantly keep in mind the appropriateness of his display for the public, the class of people passing daily and the need of novelty, change and distinctive touch in his work and of an observance of the rules of art.

"Use the color scheme to the limit. Color is by far the most obvious means for attracting the eye. Have a keynote of color and stick to it. The rainbow is a thing of beauty as it is seen against a background of gray clouds, but do not fancy that rainbow colors are always desirable. Green is the base of all floral work; so use this color as a foundation. In dressing a window the first thing to be planned is the background. A background may harmonize with the display either by blend or by contrast. The harmonious effect of a display is the same as in a painting and should be governed by the same rules.

"In background designs the display man should realize that his work does not consist in reproducing great works of art as the prominent feature, but rather in the arrangement of masses of color, ornamentation and proportioning or introduction of life."

Beach Scene Effective.

To illustrate his suggestions, Mr. Tekniepe sketched out a window design which would attract attention by its unusualness and please by the agreeableness of both the scene and the combination of colors. Against a painted background of a sand dune, a bathing girl is seen disporting herself on the beach. The center portion of the window floor can be built up of lake or sea sand, arranged in a set or unconventional manner and edged with water lilies or sea shells. At the edges of the window may be put a few touches of foliage of a taller sort, such as cat-tails, bulrushes or draped sea weed. Whether the atmosphere shall be that of the sea or the lake will depend on the location of the city in which it is used; however, the stranger the scene to the passers-by, the more it may attract.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Success of Slogan Song.

It was pleasing at the close of last month to receive from the Broadway Music Corporation, New York, a check for $302.20, royalties due us on the song, "Say It with Flowers," composed by Albert Von Tilzer and sold to the public. Over 30,000 copies were put out, and we can only imagine the amount of publicity we have received and are still receiving as the song is rendered. We must not forget, too, the large number of occasions when this song has been featured, sometimes with special stage settings and prominent artists, in theaters, music halls and cabarets throughout the country. Additional publicity has also been gained through the distribution of the song as a phonograph record, the Columbia Graphophone Co. having, we understand, sold many thousands of records, all of which, it is fair to believe, are in constant use.

View from the Altar down Bride's Aisle at Garden Wedding.

Another important addition to our fund is the sum of $1,000 subscribed at the convention of the Texas State Florists' Association, at Fort Worth July 20 to 22. This is an example of effective organization work. The subscription, of course, although made up of individual subscriptions, is outside of the individual subscriptions from Texas already reported.

Interest Increasing.

The members of our publicity committee feel greatly encouraged over an increased interest in their work which is becoming apparent. If every florist in the country would but give proper thought to the campaign, the necessary funds to carry out the committee's plans would soon be forthcoming. They have accomplished wonders with the amount of money made available for them. S. R. Latshaw, a noted publicity expert, recognized this in the address he made before the Cleveland convention of the society. He said: "You have a wonderful slogan, one of the best, probably, in all of the various forms of advertising. With the amount of money that has been put at the disposal of your committee, I say to you from twenty years of experience, during which time probably more than $100,000,000 of advertising has passed through my hands, that I know of no case when advertising has been done so successfully for so trifling a sum as has been expended up to the present by your society. You have in your catch line, 'Say It with Flowers,' a very valuable asset, because it conveys such a big idea in such a simple fashion. You have made a magnificent start—you have a real opportunity; there is no question as to the feasibility and profit of educating an entire nation, by national advertising, to the enormously increased use of your commodity."

Can we get away from this "surface-scratching" procedure and secure the full benefits that will undoubtedly follow a prime effort? We can if the florists will think enough of their own interests to back them up with their subscriptions to the campaign fund. Such a little support from each one is required that it need occasion no hardship. Let us hear from you.

BIG ROCHESTER SHOW

ROCHESTER FLOWER SHOW.

Exceeds Old Records.

The Rochester exposition and flower show opened Monday, September 6, when large crowds attended. This exposition during the last few years has considerably grown in size and prominence, and the flower show has been an important feature. This year Chairman Charles H. Vick is confident that it is the greatest in the history of the exposition. Frank Mahoney and George Cramer have been in charge of the overhead decorations, which required fifty cases of southern smilax in building 3, given over this year for this purpose.

The hall is tastefully decorated with numerous arbor-vitæs around the walls, with smilax suspended from the ceiling. Various beds of asters, gladioli, zinnias, begonias, etc., are laid out in various shapes and sizes. Pedestals, covered with arbor-vitæ, with a rock foundation, contain huge vases of highly colored gladioli, which form a pleasing effect. Suspended from the ceiling are a number of wire hanging baskets filled with prepared grasses, etc., in a combination of colors.

Rochester, the Flower City, is this week showing the thousands of visitors who are attending the exposition that it surely deserves its name.

Excellent Exhibits.

The Rochester Rose Society made an interesting exhibit of roses. Among them were splendid specimens of Hoosier Beauty, the Killarneys, Frau Karl Druschki, Sunburst, Ophelia and Fireflame.

Charles W. Curtis, of Irondequoit, N. Y., made a splendid showing of Boston ferns, and begonias full of blossom. These were attractively arranged, together with splendid specimens of gladioli, African marigolds, Asperula odorata, zinnias and the Rochester strain of asters. Each day was shown a floral spray of gladiolus.

H. E. Wilson made a good exhibit of palms, Boston and Whitmanii ferns, dracænas, crotons, boxes of potted plants, with an excellent arrangement of gladioli, buddleias, asters, roses, etc. A large floral horseshoe was the center of attraction here.

George T. Boucher's exhibit occupied considerable space and was well laid out. Reaching the tips of the southern smilax draped from the ceiling were large palms, cibotiums, dracænas, polypodiums and a fine showing of ferns. Large vases of roses, gladioli and asters were also seen. In the early part of the week a fine wedding bouquet and corsages added to the display.

Schum Bros., of Clifford avenue, showed a collection of gladioli, of about thirty-five kinds, and about fifteen kinds of dahlias. These were of excellent quality. A large bed of gladioli surrounded with a border of ferns was also well laid out.

F. Schlegel's Sons showed an excellent bed of Daybreak asters and two large concrete urns filled with the same variety.

Vick's Splendid Showing.

J. A. Weibens, George Case, F. W. Price and J. T. Osborn were in charge of the splendid exhibit made by James Vick's Sons. In the general display were beautiful annuals, hardy annuals and a large quantity of perennials. Excellent beds of asters, including Heart of France and the new Peerless Yellow, were quite conspicuous. Included in this display was a fine exhibit of Dutch bulbs.

Arthur M. Newborn had a wonderful display of prepared flowers and grasses, splendidly arrayed. A large basket of these containing twenty-six different grasses was a wonderful creation. Baskets made from natural gourds, in natural finish and colored, were attractively arranged.

The park exhibit, with that of Charles W. Curtis, was at the end of the hall in a room connected with the main hall. Ferns, palms, crotons, dracænas and a pleasing collection of schizanthus and begonias, well arranged with an edging of marble rock and green moss, brought considerable favorable comment from the thousands of visitors.

New Dahlias and Gladioli.

Hart & Vick, Inc., filled considerable space with their collection of annuals and perennials, including a splendid line of new gladioli. This firm is now showing the Cottam dahlias and a splendid variety was seen here. Excellent Dutch bulbs were on show. This firm was also responsible for several well arranged beds of royal and branching asters, zinnias, gladioli, etc., which were edged with asparagus and marble rock.

Alexander S. Lothian, landscape gardener, featured some special groupings of evergreens and shrubs at each side of the entrance.

N. A. Hallauer, of Ontario, N. Y., showed an excellent collection of gladioli with long spikes and well colored. His varieties included some of the new kinds as well as the standard sorts.

L. J. Bryant & Son, of Newark, N. J., showed a good variety of dahlias and gladioli.

George Cramer had a splendid collection of moth mullen, grasses, teasels, sedgegrass, datura pods, fancy docks and fern spores, all prepared and colored most artistically.

Jacob Thomann & Sons staged a beautiful exhibit of baskets of gladioli, which included Rochester White, and a good quantity of asters and other perennials. Ferns and palms made an excellent background. H. J. H.

Princeton, Ky.—Thomas L. Metcalfe, of Hopkinsville, has purchased the John E. Rackebrandt establishment. Mr. Rackebrandt will remain with the business until December 1, when Mr. Metcalfe will take active charge and make many improvements. The purchase of this range gives Mr. Metcalfe seven different establishments, all of which are up-to-date and well patronized.

WISCONSANS MEET

WISCONSIN FLORISTS MEET.

Interesting Topics Discussed.

The second annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association was held September 3, in the Association of Commerce rooms, Milwaukee. The business meeting opened at 1:30 p. m. with President J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, in the chair. After the reports of the officers and the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, discussion on various subjects took place.

Sunday closing was taken up and the members present all voted in favor of it. A resolution was adopted petitioning the state fair board for larger quarters in which to hold the horticultural display next year. Uniform trade discounts and a universal trade flower code were also discussed. Secretary Cranefield, of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society, spoke at length on the Wisconsin State Florists' Association affiliating with the state horticultural society for mutual benefit.

Election of Officers.

C. C. Pollworth placed in nomination for president, Richard Haentze, of Fond du Lac, who was elected unanimously. Fred Holton was elected vice-president; Henry Welke, secretary; W. C. Zimmermann, treasurer, and George Vatter, of Marinette, director for three years.

Although the attendance was below expectations, it was, nevertheless, a spirited meeting. About thirty-five members were present at the afternoon session. Shortage of help was the principal reason for so many being absent.

Enjoyable Banquet.

In the evening at 7 p. m. a banquet was given. About sixty-five members and ladies were present. W. C. Zimmermann was toastmaster. C. C. Pollworth welcomed the members and also made a plea for more coöperation, greater activities and a 100 per cent membership. Fred Rentschler, of Madison, who at the afternoon session invited the members to hold a summer meeting at Madison, was called upon and he especially urged members to bring the ladies. Richard Haentze, president-elect, also spoke, promising an active administration with the coöperation of the members.

Richard Lietz, the Fond du Lac Avenue florist, furnished a quartette, whose singing was excellent. He himself has a fine bass voice. They were recalled repeatedly during the evening.

The principal speaker was the Rev. W. T. Dorward. This gentleman, although a minister, is a master in the art of after-dinner speaking. He spoke for an hour and one could have readily listened to him considerably longer. His wit and humor kept the crowd in a joyous mood and his subject, "The Master Key," made a big hit.

Most of the visitors stayed over Saturday, visiting the state fair and the florists' establishments. P.

JAPANESE BEETLE SPREADING.

Notice has been given by the Federal Horticultural Board of a hearing September 10, at 10 a. m., on the extension of the quarantine against the Japanese beetle. Following a hearing that attracted much attention, a quarantine was laid April 1, 1920, against several townships in southwestern New Jersey. Included were the townships of Delran, Chester, Cinnaminson, Palmyra, Mount Laurel and Riverside and the borough of Riverton, in the county of Burlington, and the townships of Pensauken and Delaware and the borough of Merchantville, in the county of Camden, N. J. Now it is proposed to quarantine the entire states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey. It is stated, however, that in case this is done, restrictions will be limited to shipments from the areas actually infested.

The notice issued by the board reads as follows:

The Secretary of Agriculture has information that a dangerous insect, namely, the Japanese beetle (Popillia japonica Newm.), not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States and which has been known to occur in restricted portions of New Jersey for several years, occurs also in southeastern Pennsylvania.

It appears necessary, therefore, to consider the advisability of quarantining the states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania in accordance with the plant quarantine act of August 20, 1912 (37 Stat., 315), as amended by the act of Congress approved March 4, 1917 (39 Stat., 1134, 1165), and to place such restrictions on the movement from those states of (1) farm, garden and orchard products of all kinds, including fresh or perishable crops, such as green corn, tomatoes, beans, peas, cantaloupes, watermelons, grapes, raspberries, blackberries, cherries, peaches, apples and all other fresh fruits and vegetables; (2) grain and forage crops of all kinds; (3) nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock, and all other plants, including bulbs and cut flowers; and (4) soil, compost and manure other than fresh manure, as shall be deemed necessary to prevent the spread through such products of the Japanese beetle into other states.

If it is found advisable to quarantine the entire states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the restrictions imposed by such quarantine on the movement of the materials listed above will be limited substantially to the areas actually determined as infested by the Japanese beetle.

Notice is therefore hereby given that a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., room 11, Federal Horticultural Board, at 10 o'clock a. m., September 10, 1920, in order that any person interested in the proposed quarantine may appear and be heard either in person or by attorney.

D. C. SHIPPING REGULATIONS.

Upon the recommendation of the Federal Horticultural Board, E. T. Meredith, secretary of agriculture, issued August 26 various regulations governing the movement of plants and plant products into and out of the District of Columbia; these regulations became effective September 1. Seeds, except those addressed to the Department of Agriculture and those affected by some particular regulations, are admitted without restriction. Plants and plant products which are admitted and are not addressed to the Department of Agriculture must comply with the following requirements: A certificate of inspection, signed by a state inspector, must accompany each package, indicating that the nursery from which it came has been inspected within the previous twelve months; the package must be marked with the word "plants" and the name and address of both consignor and consignee, and its delivery to the consignee is dependent upon authorization by an inspector of the Federal Horticultural Board. All plants and plant products addressed to the Department of Agriculture must be delivered at the inspection house of the Federal Horticultural Board.

The regulations also repeat the embargoes already established against certain kinds of shipments from New England, New York and parts of New Jersey by Quarantine No. 26, affecting five-leaved pine and black currant plants, and by the gipsy moth and brown-tailed moth quarantine, the Japanese beetle quarantine and the European corn borer quarantine.

The regulations affecting the exportation of plants and plant products from the District of Columbia have to do with inspection and certification.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The market last week was in much better shape than it has been for some time. Aside from gladioli, everyone who has good stock to offer is getting a fair return for it. It looks now as though there will not be much of a late crop, the growing conditions having been so favorable this summer that it has been a difficult matter to time crops; some that were figured for the middle of September are now over. Asters are more normal and some fine ones are now on the market. As with gladioli, it would seem that everyone went in this year for a better quality of stock, but the season was too favorable, they all came in about the same time and the market was oversupplied. Roses have picked up wonderfully well; white varieties are still on the short side, but they are much better than they have been for some time. On the best grades of stock the prices hold good and more might be handled if they could be had. Some dahlias are to be seen, but not enough at this writing to talk about. There is the usual supply of miscellaneous outdoor stock; sometimes this sells well, but it is an uncertain proposition.

Advertising Campaign.

The advertising committee has been rather quiet for the last two months, but the members have not been asleep by any means. Joseph S. Merritt and the rest of the committee have been working up plans for a most active campaign during the coming winter; they have a number of new stunts all ready to spring. Their object is to make "Say It with Flowers" a household word in this city. I have heard of several who were not in on this campaign on the percentage plan, but are now ready to come in; they are big enough and broad enough to acknowledge their error and say that it is only square dealing for a man to pay for his share of the campaign on the basis of the amount of business he does. The committee is going ahead this winter with a live campaign; the members want everyone to be a part of the Associated Florists. Most of the Baltimore florists are now members.

Various Notes.

Charles E. Smith & Co. are now well established in their new location at Charles street and North avenue. This location has become a flower center. Within a square of this corner there are now four good, progressive florists—the Parkway Flower Shop, J. A. Ritter & Sons, the Chateau Flower Shop and Charles E. Smith & Co. This is one of the busiest neighborhoods in the city.

William F. Ekas is putting in some hard work with the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. The entire building is being renovated from cellar to roof and the offices on the first floor are being moved to give the cut flower department more room. Mr. Ekas' object is to have the entire first floor without any obstructions for the handling of cut flowers. Mr. Ekas is of the opinion that stock is not going to be much more plentiful this season than it was last. Tate.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

Business last week was good and all kinds of stock moved fast. The week was a quite busy one with weddings and funerals. Stock is plentiful, with outdoor flowers quite abundant. Asters are exceptionally fine and good gladioli are being cut. Roses are plentiful and good. Carnations are nil. Easter lilies and rubrums are also selling well.

Various Notes.

The largest event of last week was the Marr wedding. It was a home wedding and took place in the hall, where an altar was arranged with southern smilax, Easter lilies and cathedral candles. The mantelpiece was decorated with gladioli, sweet peas, rubrum lilies and asters, with a shower effect. On the dinner table was a large centerpiece of Columbia roses and pink candles and small vases of blue cornflowers. The bride's bouquet was composed of white sweet peas and the bridesmaids' of various shades of pink sweet peas. The Duluth Floral Co. had charge of the decorations and made the bouquets. J. E. S.

DO YOU GROW THEM?

GROWING CINERARIAS.

An Expert Tells How.

This beautiful race of flowers has been more improved within a comparatively short space of time than any other I can call to mind. The long, pointed petal of flimsy texture and questionable color, the flat disk and straggling habit of this tribe are no longer its general characteristics. On the contrary, they may now be recognized by their symmetrical proportions and round, broad, smooth petals. Many have blooms of velvet-like texture and consistency, varying in tints and intensity through all the shades of blue, crimson, purple and white, tipped with every color in the rainbow, with beautifully raised disks, splendidly proportioned, forming elegant specimens both in habit and luxuriance of foliage.

The science of floriculture may well be proud of its achievements in contemplating the effects of its practice in connection with the now magnificent cineraria. I have traveled over nearly all of Europe within the last three years with a view to studying and perfecting certain plants, among them the cineraria, and, therefore, have no hesitation in giving the results of my experience.

I am fully assured that no one will regret taking in hand a race of plants so rich and varied in their properties as the subject of this paper, nor can any disappointment occur, as the least care in following the plain directions given below will insure perfect success and with it unmeasured gratification to everyone who delights in floral beauty.

Sowing the Seed.

Cinerarias fertilize with little trouble and seed abundantly, especially in southern California, where they are grown under laths throughout the winter. Thus they receive plenty of air and judicious watering. When the seed is ripe it is gathered by hand and kept dry for a short time. It is then cleaned and shipped to commercial growers.

Cineraria seed should be sown in finely sifted and rather sandy leaf-mold. They will sprout in about three weeks. When they have two well formed leaves and two more just beginning to show themselves, you may judge it a fitting time to prick them out into small pots. A greenhouse is the best receptacle for them and, if the collection is destined to be large, one appropriated exclusively to their use is most desirable. It is requisite that the shelves be as near the glass as possible, it being essential that the young plants be not far removed from it. After a short time make preparation for repotting them. The compost suitable for this operation should consist of thoroughly decomposed leaf-mold and one-eighth part of coarse bone meal.

Wait until they have rooted well in the compost with which you have supplied them. As soon as you ascertain this to be positively the case, repot the plants, taking out the crocks without otherwise disturbing them.

Enriching Compost.

As the plants increase in size, the compost may be enriched with advantage. This may be done by mixing rather more than half of the old soil with a similar quantity of leaf-mold for some varieties and for others three parts of leaf-mold to one of soil.

About November the large or specimen plants should be in a cool situation in the greenhouse (and they will do well most seasons in frames), where they must remain all winter, receiving all the light, air and sun the weather permits.

Toward the latter part of February place the plants at a greater distance from the glass. In order to secure a continued supply of blooms, it is well to retard the flowering of a few varieties. This may be accomplished by potting the plants, before the flower stalks begin to rise, into pots larger by an inch or an inch and a half than would under ordinary circumstances be required. Good-sized specimens will continue in bloom two months or more.

In the new semi-dwarf prize hybrids the diversity of color is one of the principal attractions. If taste and judgment are shown in this respect, I will venture to say no cultivator of the cineraria will regret the trifling outlay either of trouble or expense which offers such abundant and gratifying returns.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The demand for stock showed a fair increase last week. Weather conditions are much better and all members of the trade report an advance in the number of sales for the week. Gladioli, asters, marigolds, dahlias and Easter lilies compose most of the stock at present. Some particularly fine ferns were on the market and they all cleaned up well.

Various Notes.

Thomas Kirk, of the Oehmler Floral Co., has returned after spending a pleasant week-end in Philadelphia.

George Comley is spending his vacation in Canada with his mother.

The executive committee of the national capital chrysanthemum show held an important meeting August 30 at Leo Niessen's store. A general committee was appointed and several other important matters were discussed in connection with the annual convention of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the national capital chrysanthemum show, to be held November 10 to 14. Z. D. Blackistone presided at the meeting in the absence of F. H. Kramer, chairman of the show committee.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

At Wacker Bros., Washington, Pa., it is noticed that carnations are in tiptop shape. White Wonder is still the premier white, with White Enchantress a companion; Enchantress Supreme and Aviator complete the list. Chrysanthemums look promising. Business is reported as excellent.

• • • •

B. F. Engle, Rochester, Pa., is well pleased with returns shown from the store in operation since Easter. Although but a short distance from the greenhouses, it is prominently located and, as our genial confrere observed, "to be in the swim nowadays, even after forty years of paddling along, one must put out the strongest stroke." Miss Engle has charge and she attended the convention to learn the newest metropolitan ideas in store arrangement and management. Mrs. E. H. Carey, of New Brighton, Pa., accompanied her. Mr. Carey is the proprietor of the Carey Flower Shop, to which has been added the store recently conducted by J. S. Hennon & Sons, of Wampum, Pa., at Beaver Falls, Pa.

• • • •

The store of F. M. Fitzgerald, at Beaver, Pa., contains some fine baskets, which sell at $15 to $20 each. J. Irwin Dowdell, the designer as well as a grower, says, "Who would have thought baskets would become so popular for funeral purposes as they have? One special reason is that the flowers can be kept fresh for some time, as the large baskets usually have containers filled with water." The two Fitzgerald boys, Joseph and John, are back from the convention.

• • • •

A. Krut, of Butler, Pa., is the proud possessor of a loving cup presented for the best window display, in a recent decorating competition. "True, the cup is empty," observes Mr. Krut, "but it filled us with satisfaction to feel we had beaten professional window dressers. Our patrons for miles around phoned us to keep the window undisturbed until they had seen it. The Review showed a picture of it and our appreciation was expressed at the time. It was a fine piece of publicity and—shall we say it?—trade has been tiptop ever since. More power to the elbow grease! We have had material for two houses lying here for two years, awaiting the necessary labor to erect them."

• • • •

Amalgamation of the vegetable growers in the immediate vicinity of Grand Rapids, under the title of the Grand Rapids Growers' Association, of which H. J. Cheney is manager, has been accomplished and it promises to be an important organization.

• • • •

The sunken garden at the approach to the establishment of Freyling & Mendels, Grand Rapids, Mich., has been greatly admired. It has been, also, the medium through which many orders for landscape work have been received. A fine showing of carnations and chrysanthemums in the houses was noted.

• • • •

Thomas Jones, for many years with the A. J. Brown Seed Co., will have charge of the seed department of G. Van Bochove & Bro., Kalamazoo, Mich. The store has been remodeled and is in fine shape for the fall business. It is well supplied from the greenhouses, which are in the charge of John Van Bochove, who mentioned regret at his inability to attend the Cleveland convention, owing chiefly to the arrival of a tractor, which he was anxious to test before handing it over to an assistant.

• • • •

The Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis., is receiving a choice grade of Columbia roses from the range at Deer Park. H. V. Hunkel is taking a vacation, which will include a tour of Yellowstone park. G. H. Hunkel, having both places under supervision, is a busy man.

• • • •

Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., was too busy with funeral work to take an active part in the annual state fair, in which floriculture is usually well represented.

• • • •

The C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, reports business beginning well. C. C. Pollworth brought back a good batch of orders from the Cleveland convention. He is now enjoying a brief vacation.

F. Rentschler, of Madison, Wis., returned from the convention with some new ideas, which he intends to inject into the business this next season.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The coming of September, with cooler nights and materially reduced receipts of flowers, has ended the period of glut and low, unprofitable prices which has ruled for some days. Commencing September 4, the market took on a decided brace. Perhaps the cool, comfortable weather and the return of an army of vacationists may have helped to turn the tide, but whatever the cause, it proved most welcome. Gladioli, which have ruled the roost, so to speak, for some time, are rapidly petering out; spikes are now of small size, produced on late plantings of second-sized bulbs. Prices have advanced to $6 and $12 per hundred. Asters are not so good in quality as they were and many show weather stains. Select flowers bring as high as $6 to $8 per hundred. A few carnations of the new crop are coming in; they are small and short-stemmed, but realize $2 to $4 per hundred. Most of the hybrid tea roses coming in are of the shorter or 6-inch to 9-inch lengths and these are not at all abundant at $6 to $8 per hundred.

Lilium longiflorum holds at $15 and speciosum at $8 to $10. Valley is scarce and dear. Cattleyas are practically nil and any offered command $24 per dozen. Some dahlias come in, but they are not popular market flowers here. Cosmos, everlastings in variety, bachelor's buttons, scabiosas, buddleias and late herbaceous perennials are seen in small lots. A slightly improved call for asparagus is noted.

Various Notes.

The annual show of children's garden products was held at Horticultural hall September 4 and 5 and filled the various halls. The quality of the exhibits was excellent and competition was as keen as ever. Cut flowers, such as gladioli, dahlias, asters and even sweet peas, were shown more largely than in former years. Crowds of teachers, children and the general public visited the show, attesting its strong popularity.

A number of local florists and gardeners will exhibit at Waltham fair, to be held September 9, 10 and 11. Excellent prizes are offered for cut flowers and plants, and the members of the committee in charge of this section, E. A. Peirce, Frank Edgar and Henry Stewart, hope to make this department alone worth the price of admission. The management hopes with fine weather to secure an attendance of 150,000, which will be doing fairly well for a first effort.

Henry Penn returned from his vacation September 2. His brother, William, celebrated his forty-second birthday September 7. I noted in one of the large show windows some fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums, well shown up by a mass of the deep red Gladiolus Mrs. Watt. Some fine gloxinias in bloom were noted in another window.

Fred E. Palmer returned September 8 from a sight-seeing and mountaineering trip to Bar Harbor, Me., which he enjoyed immensely.

Julius Heurlin, of the Blue Hill Nurseries, had his touring car smashed by a heavy truck in Brockton September 3, but fortunately escaped himself with a severe shaking up.

Meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will resume at Horticultural hall September 21.

John K. M. L. Farquhar sailed from Havre for America September 4, after a pleasant business trip in Europe.

John Eisemann, the Beacon Florist, has had a most satisfactory summer business and his number of satisfied customers is a steadily growing one.

Patrick Welch is expected back from Old Orchard Beach, Me., this week. Meantime Ed keeps things humming at the store.

Government inspectors visit the cut flower markets and retail stores one or more times daily. No shipments of cut flowers or designs can be sent outside a certain prescribed area without inspection if said shipments contain asters, cosmos, chrysanthemums, zinnias, gladioli, dahlias or hollyhocks. This embargo inflicts considerable hardship on dahlia and gladiolus specialists in the corn borer belt, who annually make large displays at the many country fairs held.

The Boston Floral Supply & Snyder Co. reports an excellent fall demand starting up for both cut flowers and floral supplies and looks for an active winter's business.

The coal situation is much less encouraging. Arrivals are far below normal of both anthracite and bituminous, and many growers so far have no fuel at all in their cellars. Some have already received a full winter's supply, but they are the exception.

At Galvin's Park street store some beautiful window displays of gladioli have been featured of late. Practically all the staff here have returned from their vacations. The combined forces from the two Boston stores enjoyed grand weather for their fishing trip September 5 and report some noble fish landed and immense ones "just missed."

A few rather unusual plants noted in Boston stores last week included dipladenias, gesnerias, allamandas and Lasiandra macrantha, formerly known as Pleroma elegans. There is a decided paucity of flowering plants in pots now, and some lilies and Campanula pyramidalis would prove effective in the large show windows.

The quarantine being enforced in this section against the corn borer inflicts many annoyances and considerable loss on local growers. Shipments of sweet corn are entirely banned from infested areas and no string beans, spinach, celery, tomatoes, gladioli, dahlias, cosmos and other flowers can go by express unless subjected to a rigid inspection at express offices. On the public highways bold signs read thus: "No sweet corn must pass this line," and pleasure

The steadily increasing size of The Review, both in number of pages and in circulation, makes it imperative that advertising copy be obtained farther in advance of publication date. In order that forms may be held open as late as possible, advertisers are urged to send instructions (to start or change) to reach Chicago Thursday, Friday or Saturday, whenever possible. Monday is the last day on which instructions regarding display advertisements can be received for the issue of that week.

cars are often stopped and searched. The enforcement of this quarantine and the inspection of growing crops gives profitable employment to numerous young college and high school youths, who perform their duties in a quite leisurely fashion. The corn borer dangers are much exaggerated; it is a slow-moving pest and its damage has as yet been comparatively trifling.

BERTERMANN BUSY FOR F. T. D.

From now until October 12 and 13, when the F. T. D. has its convention in Indianapolis, Ind., there are going to be some quite busy men in that city. If Irwin Bertermann is not the busiest of them all, it will be because his work as grand chairman of the various committees appointed by the Indiana State Florists' Association to make the convention arrangements has been so well organized in advance that he can afford to rest fairly easy. But he is too active a worker for the trade and particularly for the F. T. D. to be much at leisure during preparations for such a convention. Born forty years ago in Indianapolis, he has been for the last half of that period a member of the Bertermann Bros. Co., in the city of his birth. The importance and the variety of his activities in the organized life of the trade are shown by the offices which he has held. He was treasurer of the first national flower show, at Chicago; in 1915 he was chairman of the S. A. F. national publicity committee; he was the first secretary of the F. T. D., was its president in 1915 and at the last convention was elected vice-president.

Under his general chairmanship, the following committees are perfecting the plans for the Indianapolis convention of the F. T. D.:

Show committee: A. F. J. Baur, chairman; Fred Dorner, John Hartje and Thomas Hepler.
Finance committee: Joseph Hill, chairman; Len Elder, George Blackman, W. W. Coles, Fred Kiel and Oscar Carlstedt.
Entertainment committee: E. E. Temperley, chairman; Oscar Carlstedt, Charles Pahud and Edwin Mourner.
Hotel committee: O. E. Steinkamp, chairman; Irwin Bertermann and Morris Marer.
Show window committee: Arno Nehrling, chairman; Albert Pochelon, of Detroit, and Irwin Bertermann.
Publicity committee: Herman Junge, chairman; Ella Grant Wilson, Clarence Greene, George Wiegand, John Rieman, Bert Hetz, Harry Pahud, Frank Rieman, Fred H. Lemon and Harry Bookedis.
Decoration committee: Homer Wiegand, chairman; Otto Larenz and E. A. Nelson.
Reception committee: E. G. Hill, Nixon Gano, Henry Rieman, Glen E. Moore, Frank Morris, Anders Rasmussen, John Grande, Sr., George Gause, Frank J. Knecht and Charles Barnaby.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The last week in August closed what everyone hopes was the real summer season, wherein retail business is at its low point. For several weeks flower trade has been only a fancy. True, there have all along been funerals and a few functions calling for flowers, but the real basis of the business, the general home demand, has been wanting. Probably, never before have so many New Yorkers left the city in the summer months. Almost every retail florist believes that eighty per cent or more of his customers are summering outside Gotham. The congestion in the baggage departments at the various depots, where the return season has already set in, would seem to bear out this estimate. Accompanying this, Saturday, September 4, there was a noticeable improvement in the demand for flowers, and all staples cleaned up early.

Roses are in fair supply only; consequently clearances are easily effected. A few days of cool weather have improved the quality of the hybrid teas. American Beauty is light in supply, for which, perhaps, its growers feel thankful, for stock in the better grades arriving could not return the prices brought today if available in even ordinary quantity.

A few carnations from field-grown plants are coming in and move well because they are few. According to reports, benching generally was late this year; consequently, under-glass flowers cannot be looked for until late October at the earliest.

There is a moderate supply of cattleyas, with an equally moderate demand for them. About $1.50 per flower is the selling price for the best, down to 50 cents for culls.

White lilies are plentiful enough for the demand, which is rather light. Speciosum rubrum is arriving in quantity now and moves fairly well at $4 to $6 per hundred. Lilies of the valley are rather scarce and the quality is poor; still, $4 to $15 per hundred sprays is the range of prices.

Gladioli and asters continue to arrive in avalanches. The ash barrel, however, is not getting much, clearances being possible with concessions.

There is still a plethora of miscellaneous flowers, the familiar line now being augmented by strawflowers and tuberoses.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday, September 13, at the club's quarters, in the Engineering Societies' building. It will be a get-together meeting, and somewhat reminiscent of the Cleveland convention.

The Agricultural Society of Queens-Nassau Counties will hold its seventy-eighth annual exhibition at Mineola, September 21 to 25. The floricultural section is, as usual, quite extensive, for both commercial and amateur exhibitors. Henry Weston, of Hempstead, is again the judge in this section.

Ed. Welch, son of Patrick Welch, Boston, was a visitor last week.

J. H. P.

The regular fall exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York will be held November 4 to 7 at the American Museum of Natural History. Schedules are now ready for distribution and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York. The premiums are quite different from those of other years, a number of prizes being offered for fruits and vegetables. Substantial premiums are offered for groups of greenhouse foliage and flowering plants, the first prize including, besides the cash, the society's silver cup, valued at $100.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE glass factories, it is reported, are catching up with orders.

MAKE the roofs tight; it is folly to let escape in winter the costly heat.

COAL is the trade's chief problem, first to get it, then to get together enough money to pay the bill.

W. J. KEIMEL, president of the new National Flower Growers' Association, was born September 7, 1872.

THE retailers like the Schwaben gladiolus for sprays because the blooms are arranged all on one side of the stem.

E. G. HILL will be 73 years of age September 11. And he asserted at Cleveland that he was a long ways from ready to give place to younger fry.

THOSE who contemplate the use of oil for fuel will be interested in the detailed description of how a florist can make his own burner, by William Mosteller, on page 71 of this issue.

TOO large a part of the flower business comes from custom and the sad affairs; florists' coöperative advertising should be so written as to acquaint the public with the uses of flowers for joyous occasions.

THE labor situation is changing. While wages have not come down, except in a few localities, it now is possible to get all the help one needs, though naturally it was not the best help that was released first.

FAILURES in the world of general business in August were twenty-one per cent more numerous than in July and forty-two per cent more numerous than in August a year ago. The florists' trade has been practically free from failures the last two years, but, unless all the signs are wrong, they will begin again quite soon. It is unwise to neglect credits and collections.

SUPPOSE, for instance, we hunt up the birthdays of some of the men who run the larger places near the store and, when the dates draw near, suggest to their employees a little collection for a basket of flowers on "the old man's" desk that morning. Wouldn't he be "tickled pink," and wouldn't they repeat, even without the hunch next year, and wouldn't the custom spread?

EXPERIENCED help will not be adequate in this trade until we have broken in many more apprentices.

THE Want Ad section of The Review has been growing rapidly of late. There are all kinds of offers in it. They are worth watching.

PHOTOGRAPHS that are rolled always are crushed in the mail. Wrap them flat between pasteboard if you would avoid disappointment.

ADVERTISING'S power to create goodwill is not heeded by those who curtail publicity appropriations in time of prosperity. Lean years will follow.

THE Chicago health commissioner, Dr. John Dill Robertson, believes that an influenza epidemic will recur this fall. Statistics show influenza recurs at intervals of thirty years and lasts four successive winters.

CHANGE in attitude on the part of labor is indicated by the anthracite miners' decision to return to work after Labor day, voluntarily ending their own strike without action by their employers or the government.

BUYERS who have not yet paid last season's bills find themselves without standing for next season's purchases. If a florist could not pay as he went along last season, how can he be expected to do better in the future?

THE directors of our trade societies would do well to take heed of the fact that some of their newer activities mean increased overhead and the employment of capital. Not being overly endowed with ready cash, there are pitfalls there.

THE country is full of field-grown carnations, not because more were planted out but because less than the usual percentage have succumbed to the vicissitudes of summer. They are slow sale for no other reason than that few growers have been forced into the market this season by the loss of their own stocks.

BEFORE the war the florists' trade scarcely knew the meaning of business terms; buyers told that sales were so and so glibly agreed and paid not the slightest heed, with the result that they gave our trade a low standing in the business world. During the last five years things have been different; buyers not only had better ability to pay but learned they must be prompt or they could not get the goods a second time. It will be a pity if, as a class, we backslide.

FLORISTS in agricultural districts are looking for more prosperity ahead. Crops are almost all above average. Says the United States Chamber of Commerce in its crop bulletin: "The promise now, and it is almost fulfilled, is for 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn, 800,000,000 bushels of wheat, both winter and spring, and for a cotton yield of about 12,500,000 bales. There will be more oats than last year and more tobacco, which is everywhere good; more potatoes, more rice, about the largest crop on record; more sugar, both cane and beet, and especially a hay crop of such proportions as should have a marked effect in reducing the cost of live stock and of dairy and poultry products."

TREND OF THE TIMES.

Every phase of business has been hit by cancellation of orders, according to an analysis just completed by the United States Chamber of Commerce. The lumber industry has suffered particularly. Other industries listed are paper, machinery, building lines, corsets, baby carriages, chairs, clothing, women's wear, metal trades, scales, furniture, silks, hosiery and underwear.

Last week's review of the general business situation by R. G. Dun & Co. said in part:

"The deadlock between buyers and sellers of merchandise is approaching a stage where a break must come. Merchants are buying sparingly to fill in stocks, expecting material reductions in prices, which wholesalers maintain cannot come until producing and operating costs are substantially lowered. Relations of wholesalers and manufacturers are in a similar state. Meanwhile retail stocks are moving off shelves rapidly. Prices of many staple raw materials are much lower than a few months ago, but the process of readjustment between these articles and the finished goods at retail is slow and is becoming difficult.

"Manufacturers are on an uncomfortably narrow margin of fuel supplies, but are operating as freely as possible. Domestic coal stores are lower than ever before, and this fact, together with the sharp price advances due to higher mine wages and freight charges, is causing some uneasiness. Accelerated railroad service is releasing some credit, but change for the better in money conditions is hardly noticeable, and wholesalers report collections a little slower than last year."

HERE'S WHERE WE DO OUR PART.

I wrote some time ago regarding a man by the name of Arthur A. Allen who has been looking for a position in the west and giving my name as reference or stating that he had worked for Max Schling. At the convention in Cleveland I learned that about a week after I had written regarding this man he called on one of our brother florists, got $70 and disappeared.

A strong notice should be printed in such a way that it will attract the attention of florists, to the effect that they should not engage a man who is not known to the trade in their own city, except when information is first obtained about him. The trade should be protected as much as possible.

Max Schling.

LADIES' S. A. F.

Mrs. Tracy Writes Thanks.

It was a great disappointment to me to leave the convention activities before the sessions closed, and a matter of deep regret that I could not thank the Ladies' Society of American Florists personally for their gracious gift. I am not only proud to possess this beautiful silver bowl as a testimonial of the loyalty and friendship of the members, but proud to possess it through having served them as their president. It is now filled with luscious pears and apples and, in daily use, it will be a constant reminder of years of pleasant association with the Ladies' S. A. F.

With deep appreciation and gratitude and with all good wishes for the future welfare of the association, I am

Most sincerely,
Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy.

OBITUARY

Christian Henry Knost.

After twenty-four years of illness with paralysis, at 5:30 o'clock Saturday evening, August 14, Christian Henry Knost was claimed by death at his home, 1229 Seventeenth street, Portsmouth, O. Mr. Knost suffered a slight stroke of paralysis twenty-four years ago and two weeks ago suffered another stroke that made his condition more serious.

Mr. Knost was born February 27, 1845, at Regisungs-Baten, Germany. He came to this country when 19 years of age. In 1871 he married Miss Elizabeth Ackerman in Cincinnati. Twelve children were born, one daughter having died. The eleven children surviving are six daughters, Mrs. William Meyer, of Cincinnati; Mrs. O. L. Hamm, of Middletown; Mrs. John Reiser, Mrs. Fred Wheeler, Misses Louise and Clementine Knost, of Portsmouth; and five sons, Christian, of Cincinnati; John, Fred, Jacob and Walter, of Portsmouth. A brother, Henry Knost, of Madisonville, O., also survives.

From Cincinnati Mr. and Mrs. Knost moved to the Moore farm at Portsmouth, O., in 1873. From there they moved to Gallia street, in 1889, where he engaged in the florists' business. He had been in business on Seventeenth street for twenty-four years. Mr. Knost was a member of the First Evangelical church for a number of years.

Funeral services were held at the home August 17. The pallbearers were the five sons of the deceased and a son-in-law, Oscar Hamm. Burial was in Greenlawn cemetery.

Herbert Blackman.

Herbert Blackman, the son of Edward Blackman, Evansville, Ind., was found dead in the greenhouses by his father, Friday, September 3, from cerebral hemorrhage. He was 27 years of age and leaves a wife and one child, besides his father and mother and four sisters. His father was ready to leave for Houston, Tex., the following day with his eldest daughter, who was to be married this week.

Mr. Blackman and family have the sympathy of every member of the trade in their great bereavement. Herbert Blackman was a genial young man and well liked by all and his death was a shock to everyone.

The funeral was held September 6 at the residence of his father, on Weinbach avenue. E. L. F.

Simon Bauer.

Simon Bauer, 89 years of age, died at his home, 1243 East Eighty-seventh street, Cleveland, O., Monday, August 23. Mr. Bauer was born in Bavaria in 1831, and went to Cleveland early in life. He engaged in farming and later became a florist and gardener. Five of his six children are living. Funeral services were held Friday, August 27, from St. Thomas Aquinas' church.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

The market is full of an accumulated supply. All stock has been moving slowly. Gladioli and asters have been arriving in heavy supply and have caused a great slump in prices. Gladioli are to be had at $15 per thousand, while asters are bringing only $10 per thousand.

Lilies are available in fair supply and bring only $10 per hundred. Roses from young stock are quite conspicuous and of good quality, but the demand has been slow. Ophelia and Columbia are the most in evidence and are of unusually good quality. Carnations are in larger supply, but as yet the stems are short and the flowers are not up to standard.

Miscellaneous garden stock, such as zinnias, cosmos, delphiniums, cornflowers, marigolds, etc., is abundant. Dahlias are meager and poor, and prospects for more later in the season are none too bright.

The offering of potted plants is limited. Ferns and Chatelaine begonias about complete this list.

Various Notes.

B. F. Hensley, of Knightstown, Ind., has sold his range. E. A. McKirrin is the new manager and it will be operated under the name, Knightstown Greenhouses.

Mrs. Reinkin, formerly with the Pahud Floral Co., is now with the Circle Flower Store.

John Chisholm, formerly with Bertermann Bros. Co., but now living in Alabama, has been paying a visit in this city.

More entries have been made for the floral exhibition of the Indiana state fair than in many previous years. More florists than formerly have entered and they will meet keen competition in the cut flower line with several private growers. A. F. J. Baur is superintendent of the floricultural section.

The Florists' Supply House recently received its first shipment of carnations for the season, from Peter Weiland, of Newcastle. White and dark pink predominated, and although short of stem, the flowers were good. This firm has been receiving rather heavy shipments of statice, which has found a ready market.

Hartje & Elder are cutting carnations. Baur & Steinkamp have also been bringing in a limited number.

John Kilcoyne, formerly with John Rieman, has accepted a position in Georgia. E. E. T.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Business picked up slightly last week, probably due to the early cool weather we have been having, tightening up the supply considerably. Roses, however, are coming in better and are cleaning up every day, especially white ones, as it seems that this market cannot get enough white roses which are good; those shipped in from out of town are not nearly so good as the local ones, the shipped ones being nearly all single Killarneys, which fly open quickly and are not a pure white like the double variety.

Dahlias are just beginning to make their appearance and are quite good. Carnations have not yet appeared and consequently there is still a good call for asters. The Easter lilies are a little off crop at present, but Japanese lilies are arriving in large quantities. There has been a large demand for lily of the valley and, although the price is high and the quality mediocre, it cleans up nicely. Orchids are off crop and there is not much call for them. Gladioli are poor, but there is still a good assortment of miscellaneous flowers, such as marigolds, calendulas, buddleias, physostegias, tritomas and annual larkspurs, which move slowly.

Various Notes.

William Heffernan has severed his connection with the Heights Flower Shop and is expecting to open a store of his own in the near future. Miss Hartley, also formerly connected with this firm, has left and intends to join Mr. Heffernan.

James MacLaughlin's father died at his home in Pennsylvania last week.

Edgar Brown, of the Annex Flower Store, has left for Buffalo and intends to spend part of his vacation in Canada.

William Kruesen, of the Smith & Fetters Co., is having a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Hester Getz has left for Quebec, leaving Miss E. Roe in charge of the store.

F. R. Williams is taking a trip up the lakes.

The wholesale houses carried out their usual policy for holidays, staying open Sunday morning and closing all day Monday, Labor day. W. A. R.

The death of Simon Bauer is noted in this week's obituary column.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The season of 1920-21 has opened, but as yet the only evidence of it is afforded by the calendar, on which we have this week checked off Labor day, the holiday which, next to Fourth of July, stands as nearest zero in the business life of florists. Labor day, however, marks the end of the vacation season, the reopening of schools and city residences closed for the summer. It takes a few days for flower buyers to settle down to the routine of the life that means most use of flowers, but business never fails to increase noticeably and progressively at this time.

The outlook for the next few weeks is uncertain only with relation to the supply. We can count with confidence on a steady increase in the needs for flowers, but we have no means of knowing how long the market will continue to be burdened with the present heavy overload of outdoor flowers. Until we have weather to clear the market of garden flowers there is little prospect of really good prices for greenhouse products.

Business is not, and has not been, bad. It is true that prices are, and have been, low, but a tremendous quantity of stock has been merchandised. The growers are worried by the thought that present returns do not cover the cost of doing business and they are hoping that something soon will happen to give them an even break with the coal men, who at present seem to have everything coming their way.

The principal items of supply at present are roses, gladioli, asters and lilies. Roses are mentioned first, not because they are the most numerous, but because their doings are of greatest importance to greenhouse operators. The supply of roses is large, but it would not be unwieldy were it not for the huge quantities of outdoor flowers in competition. Quality considered, prices never were lower at this date, for most of the roses are excellent. Columbia is averaging particularly poorly. Every mother's son who grows roses for this market appears to have staked his bread and butter on this variety, with the result that today it is the easiest rose to buy and the hardest rose to sell. But there are plenty of Ophelia and Sunburst, too. Russell and Premier clean up first. There are not many red roses and only a few Beauties.

ROSES

AMLING'S Roses are sold on their merits. We distribute them over half the continent—to all the cities between Pittsburgh and Galveston, between Winnipeg and Atlanta. Our customers usually are the most successful florists in their localities, made so, in part at least, by the fact that none of their competitors handles better roses, few as good.

For the season of 1920-21 we have increased our supply and still further improved our facilities for handling them—we believe well-grown roses lose half their retail value if not rightly handled, and we do our part right. When you order 100 Roses of Amling's you get 100 salable Roses.

To give an idea of the gladiolus situation, one grower, not primarily producing bulbs, sent in 28,000 spikes in one day last week. The bulb growers are shipping the flowers in barrels by the wagon load. The best varieties, carefully handled, bring sometimes as much as 6 cents in small lots, but the bulk of the receipts are sold at half or less and the waste is large.

Asters, too, are abundant, but doing a little better. The quality is, in many ways, the best the market has seen in several years.

Giganteum lilies are a problem. To get back the growers' investment, let alone something with which to buy Growers Seeking Stability.

Chimerical as it may seem to many, there are some growers who believe it is possible to stabilize the market by establishing maximum and minimum prices. The discussion of this subject will be a special order for the meeting of the Commercial Cut Flower Growers' Association at the Randolph hotel on the evening of September 16.

The suggestion of fixing maximum prices is, of course, only camouflage; no grower talks of fixing prices except when the market is low and the only real desire for ever stopping an upward swing is on part of the retailers, who aver that it is difficult nowadays for one of them to net ten per cent on his year's sales.

Various Notes.

August was unusually cool, the mean temperature being 2 degrees below last year. There was seventy-two per cent of the possible amount of sunshine, although the rainfall was nearly three times as great as in August, 1919.

A. J. Zech comments that the shipping trade is far stronger than the city business. He says it is interesting to note the way the orders come, first a bunch of them from one district, then a bunch from another, indicating that the flower buyers have not yet settled down for the season, the calls for stock being for some special event.

Edward Meuret has cleaned up and left town. Some time ago he sold his greenhouses at Park Ridge, then the balance of his real estate, his residence, his furniture, even his automobile; the only tie he holds is his stock in the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, as he intends to return some day and reestablish himself in the business. With Mrs. Meuret and their son, James, he has gone to his old home at Cincinnati for a visit. Thence they will go to St. Louis, then Seattle, and later south

August Poehlmann was still in the Presbyterian hospital when this issue of The Review went to press, but sufficiently recovered from the injuries received in the automobile wreck August 21 to be able to play pinochle with his visitors. He has had one or two setbacks (at the game), but the broken bones are knitting nicely.

Misses Olga and Anna Tonner left September 8 for a three weeks' southern trip. They will make two or three stops en route, but will spend most of the time at Baconton, Ga., where the Tonner family has large pecan orchards these young ladies have not yet seen. Miss Lillian Tonner will make her annual trip to Baconton in October.

H. V. Winn has joined the rapidly growing staff of the A. L. Randall Co., as sales promotion man, assisting Sales Manager Galavan.

A meeting of the directors of the Allied Florists' Association, postponed from an earlier date, was held September 8, to plan renewed activities. The coöperative advertising has been virtually suspended for two months, but money has been accumulating for a fall campaign. A few florists have withdrawn, but many more have joined. Nearly everyone feels that the plan already has proved sound and that success depends only on working out certain details of management.

Andrew Chronis says that the downtown stores have had a good summer, the second in the history of the trade in Chicago. The telegraph delivery business is making steady growth, but he says the orders received show a good many florists are thoughtless. In particular, he complains of the small orders, for $1 or $2. No florist should be asked to make a delivery for less than $4 in any big city, he says, because it is impossible to break even on anything smaller.

Visitors.

Among last week's visitors was Miss McGovern, of the Rosery, Winnipeg, Manitoba. Miss McGovern, who is a wide-awake, progressive young person, is a large buyer of cut flowers and supplies in this market. She was on her way home from a swing around the circle, including Yellowstone park, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles and the Grand Canyon.

Harold Joy, who handles the greenhouse end of the business of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, was here last week, looking for glass and other supplies needed for the new range his concern is building.

M. Domoto, of Domoto Bros., large growers and shippers of cut flowers at San Francisco, spent several days here last week. After attending the S. A. F. convention he had gone on to New York and Philadelphia for a look at those markets and spent his time here acquainting himself with the methods in vogue in Chicago.

A flower which has been overlooked for commercial use.

CELOSIA is a commercial flower which has been perfected, and wonderfully grown by Mr. S. Bryson Ayres, at his Sunnyslope Farm. There you will find acres of over a hundred varieties, from a Tiny Red to a Giant Celosia Mum, some of which measure from eight to twelve inches across. The flowers vary in price from $2.00 per 100 to $5.00 per dozen.

May we suggest, for a trial shipment, an assortment for $5.00, $10.00 or $20.00?

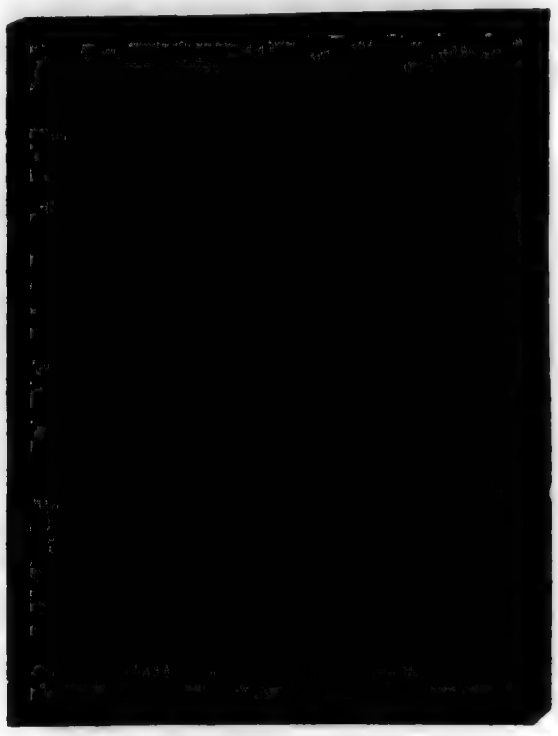
Frat-Ms are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are gold, and color embossed, in the different colors, as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.



The florist is saved keeping such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a Frat-M with paste to chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each one, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

The Market.

The close of August and the opening days of September were uneventful. They were also interesting because of the changing conditions. Cooler nights are having an effect on outdoor flowers. Asters and gladioli are going. Dahlias are coming; so are cosmos. There are good asters and good gladioli in limited numbers. Much of the stock of both varieties is poor. Frequent rains and culture have produced some fine early dahlias. It is too early yet to say more than that the season is rich with promise. The few dahlias that have been marketed have brought excellent prices.

Indoor flowers are slowly reappearing. Carnations have come again. They do not amount to much so early in the season, but they are better than usual at this time. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are to be had regularly. Beauties have strengthened the rose list, while Russell and Columbia come in better lengths. Orchids are so scarce that a few are a prize, while the price is so high that it is given with bated breath.

Club Meeting.

The September meeting of the Philadelphia Florists' Club was held in the Hotel Adelphia Tuesday evening, September 7. It was decided that the club will be represented at the preliminary hearing to be held before the Federal Horticultural Board at Washington September 10 to protest against the proposed extension of the quarantine on account of the Japanese beetle, to cover the entire state of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Exhibits included dahlias from the Dahliadel Nurseries and from Hugo Kind, ferns from Henry I. Faust and decorative plants from William K. Harris.

The nominations for officers were as follows: President, Alfred M. Campbell, Harry S. Betz; vice-president, J. G. Michell, Jr.; secretary, Robert Kift; treasurer, George Craig.

the state of Pennsylvania, and to destroy it. The result of the investigation made so far leads to the belief that frequent light applications of wood ashes and tobacco dust, applied alternately at regular intervals to the soil, will destroy the larvæ of the beetle. The spring months are the proper time for this treatment. Mr. Chambers gives an example of two rose houses in the same place. The soil in one of these houses was treated in this way; the soil in the other was not treated at all. Both houses were replanted this summer. The soil in the house treated as described was almost free from maggots when taken out; the soil in the house that had not been treated was full of maggots when the house was emptied. Arsenate of lead is advised for fighting the beetle during the fall.

Professor C. A. Weigel's address is Doylestown, Pa. He will gladly advise any grower who asks his help in battling with insects.

Myers & Samtman.

While the results are interesting, the places of successful growers between seasons are even more interesting. Myers & Samtman have been hard at work getting their place ready for the coming season ever since Easter. Now it is ready. Everything has been gone over carefully and thoroughly and everything is in readiness. The last thing was the brickwork around the boilers. The bricklayer proved, alas, to be a faithful promiser, so Joseph S. Myers pitched in and did it himself with the firm's own men. Arches and side lining of fire bricks are safe now.

The time, September 1, is most critical in the rose houses. Firing is about to commence. Cool, damp nights have been here for some time. It takes skill of no mean degree to keep the roses healthy, especially those which are bushy and growing freely. American Beauties are the principal crop and the Beauty houses were emptied, cleaned, filled and planted several months ago. Flowers have been cut from the early planted houses for six weeks. The plants are full of young growth, the picture of health.

Columbia and Premier have done so splendidly that they have been greatly increased in number this season. Martin Samtman thinks that both are wonderful producers. Columbia is considered the faster grower, Premier the better producer. One of the large Beauty houses has been given to the Hoosier pair. The Premiers intended for a midwinter crop are especially promising.

The novelty this year on the place is Madame Butterfly. Six thousand strong, it fills one house.

Hilda, their own sport from Maryland, and Sunburst, the last two of the sextette, have been rested, pruned and started into growth. Unlike the Beauties, new stock of these varieties is not benched each year. The whole place is in excellent shape for producing heavily during the coming season.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

The wholesale cut flower market was loaded up every day last week, having plenty of everything in season; in fact, there was more than plenty.

With the return of the summer tourists, the opening of the schools and the planning of fall social events, good business among the retailers is looked for not later than September 15. The leaders claim that funeral work all through the summer has kept them fairly busy, while in other lines business was at a standstill all summer.

The receipts have greatly increased during the week, especially in roses. The market has been overstocked, which shows that the demand has been light. The cool nights have kept the quality up in all varieties of roses. Prices have geen greatly reduced, especially on 1-day-old stock, to make room for fresh consignments.

Carnations are scarce. Asters are plentiful and of really good quality. These seem to have no set price, as the demand is not heavy enough to consume the daily receipts. Gladioli of the extra fancy grades are not overplentiful and are nearing the end of the season's cut; still there are enough for the present demand.

Valley sells moderately well. Lilies have a good call, also single-flowering tuberose stalks.

Chrysanthemums have made their appearance in the Golden Glow variety.

Smith's Advance is looked for this week. Last week saw a large cut of excellent dahlias, of which a big crop is now coming on.

The demand for greens was good all the week and the supply was adequate.

County Growers' Meeting.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its monthly meeting at the home of Trustee A. S. Cerny, in Kirkwood, September 1. The attendance was large. President Martin Ude presided and all officers were present.

The delegates who attended the growers' meeting at Cleveland during the S. A. F. convention reported full details of the meeting. A committee, of which L. Jules Bourdet was made chairman, was appointed to revise the constitution and by-laws of the association to conform with those of the National Flower Growers' Association, as the local organization holds charter No. 2 in the national body, which has ruled that only owners of greenhouses can become members; so some provision must be made for the members who are employees. This matter was left in the hands of the committee, which is to submit a report at the October meeting for discussion.

The trustees reported everything in readiness for the picnic. The coal situation, publicity and the Cleveland convention then came up for a general discussion, in which all took part. Cut stock for the coming season was also considered and the members present all agreed that there would be an excellent crop of everything seasonable during the fall and winter months.

A permanent meeting hall in Kirkwood, where the monthly meetings might be held, was also talked of and the trustees are to report on this at the next meeting, which will take place October 7.

County Growers' Picnic.

The seventh annual picnic of the St. Louis County Growers' Association was held at Upper Creve Coeur lake, Thursday, September 2. The weather was all that could be asked for and the attendance was the largest in recent years. Those present included a large party of city florists and all enjoyed a most pleasant day.

Harry Wagner, George Deutschmann and A. S. Cerny, trustees of the association, had everything fully prepared when the members and their families arrived. President Martin Ude, Secretary Joseph Deutschmann and Treasurer Gus Hartmann assisted them in entertaining the big crowd. President-elect W. A. Rowe, Vice-president-elect W. H. Ossick, Trustee-elect L. Baumann, Treasurer W. C. Smith and Secretary J. J. Beneke, of the St. Louis Florists' Club, and State Vice-president W. J. Pilcher, of the S. A. F., were in attendance and enjoyed the occasion greatly.

All of the six wholesale houses, the St. Louis Florists' Club, the St. Louis Seed Co., the Missouri Pottery Co. and the St. Louis Pottery Co. contributed handsome prizes for the various games, which were in charge of Joseph Hauser, Martin Ude and George Hartmann. There were ten games in all and the first was started promptly at 3 o'clock.

The first on the program was the horseshoe game and the entries were many. For the first time the king of the horseshoe throwers, Joseph Hauser, met his Waterloo. Tom Kirkwood, Jr., was proclaimed the king by winning the first prize and E. Eckleman won the second prize.

The wheelbarrow race for married ladies was a most exciting event. No wheelbarrow could be found; so a baby carriage was pressed into service. Mrs. Sylvester was the winner; Mrs. W. A. Rowe was second, and Mrs. Berner, third.

The boys' race, 12 years and under, was won by Theodore Mory, and E. Meier came in second. The girls' race, 12 years and under, was won by Ermie Meier and Myrtle Decker was second.

The young ladies' ball-throwing contest was another feature which brought out a large number of contestants. Miss Virgie Cerny cleared the field with the longest throw and won the first prize; Miss R. Deutschmann was second and F. Merrit, third.

In the men's novelty race there were twenty-two prizes and an equal number of entries; so everybody won a prize, from a hairpin to a safety. The watermelon-eating contest created much fun and Elmer Smith for the seventh time won the first prize; Otto Abner, a dark horse, came in second.

Drawing for nine prizes by attending growers was won as follows: First, A. S. Cerny; second, Joseph Deutschmann; third, R. Stevens; fourth, H. Wagner; fifth, Otto Abner; sixth, Gus Gross; seventh, A. P. Scheidegger; eighth, William Ecklemann; ninth, George Deutschmann.

The prize dancing contest drew special attention from the younger folks and the judges decided that Mr. and Gardeners Meet.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held its monthly meeting Sunday morning, September 5, in Forest park, at 9:30.

There were no essays for this meeting, which was devoted to the reports of the various committees in charge of the convention of the National Association of Gardeners, to be held in this city beginning September 14. Everything is in readiness for it, as all committees have completed arrangements. The Marquette hotel, on Washington avenue, will be the headquarters and all meetings will be held there.

Secretary Hugo Schaff announced that, according to instructions from the management of the Missouri Botanical Garden, each member in good standing will be invited to attend the Henry Shaw banquet which will take place Wednesday evening, September 15, at the garden.

After an inspection tour through the park in one of the big park busses, the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held the first week in October.

Unquestionably one of the most modern, up-to-date and money-making greenhouse plants in the East. Situated within 5 miles of the city limits of Baltimore, Maryland, whose population is close to three-quarters of a million and growing fast. This plant contains ten houses, about 150,000 square feet of glass; one block of houses planted in 20,000 best commercial roses; one block planted in 35,000 carnations; one house in plumosus. The plant is heated by steam, with 4 boilers in use and 2 in reserve, making 6 in all. The boiler-room is 40x60 ft. About 200 tons of coal on hand and deliveries being made right along. Contains packing shed 40x60 ft., coal shed 24x84 ft., pot and soil shed 24x40 ft. Large garage and cut flower room and cellars; also two auto trucks, one a 2-ton Packard, A-1 condition, and Dodge delivery truck just delivered, never used. Plenty of tools, fittings and material of all kinds, including lumber, glass, 300,000 to 400,000 flower pots ranging from 2 to 4 inches, all in good condition, about 40,000 of these never used. Contains about 25 acres of elegant fertile land, beautifully situated, with abundance of water, with an unfailing supply of good soft water from springs; with double system engines, fully equipped water tank. Two dwellings, one heated by steam; barns, granary, two horses, wagon sheds, about 35 tons of hay, also farming implements. Apple orchard, 150 bearing trees, winter fruit; bank of the very best propagating sand on premises. Baltimore will buy all the flowers that can be grown. Located on good state road; none better anywhere; ideal climate; good schools, churches, mail delivered at door. Cost to replace plant about $250,000; can be purchased at a bargain. Owner has been in business 46 years and has never had glass broken by hail. This is a going concern, and with the present planting for this season's business this should be one of the biggest opportunities ever offered in this line.

As I have this place in charge for sale, all communications must be addressed to the undersigned, who can, undoubtedly, arrange terms to suit the purchaser.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

CATTLEYAS IN CALIFORNIA.

California seems able to provide proper growing conditions for almost any flower, including orchids. The appearance of the orchid, Cattleya gigas, which is shown in the accompanying illustration and which comes from the greenhouses of Wright's Flower Shop, Los Angeles, suggests a distinctly favorable environment.

While terrestrial orchids, like the cypripediums, have no season of rest, the epiphytal kinds, such as cattleyas, have a rest period of varying length, sometimes a quite short one. During this period, however, care should be taken to see that the roots do not become dry; in the American climate it is not necessary to resort to drying in order to attain ripening, as do the European cultivators. The resting period of Cattleya gigas, as one of the Colombian orchids, is short, because of the short rainy and dry seasons of the country from which it comes. Consequently Cattleya gigas, like C. Gaskelliana and C. Harrisoniæ, will produce flowers from the new pseudobulbs as soon as the growth is finished. Cattleya gigas is one of the summer-blooming species, flowering in June and July, with C. aurea and between C. Warneri and C. Gaskelliana.

GROWING THE GODFREY CALLA.

In an article in The Review September 2, 1915, the editor predicted that the Godfrey calla would eventually supersede our old favorite, Calla æthiopica, giving its history from the originator, Godfrey & Sons, England, and the report of the well-known American introducer, E. G. Hill, together with some wholesome advice to growers about its value and proper care. Today the true Godfrey calla, properly grown, is so much superior to æthiopica that the prophetic statement of The Review is rapidly being realized. The demand for Godfrey is keeping ahead of the production, the only disappointment being due to inferior stock or to improper handling.

As the originator stated in the article mentioned, the Godfrey is a cross between Little Gem and æthiopica. A large number of seedlings were raised, from which two were selected, one Godfrey and the other devoniensis. Both bloom much earlier and with greater freedom than the older florists' variety, producing three times as many flowers. The Godfrey is taller and more robust than devoniensis and has a larger flower. Some of the stocks of these two varieties became badly mixed, as the growers in Guernsey and Jersey raised a large number of seedlings, which were sold extensively for the true variety.

E. G. Hill brought the Godfrey to this country about 1908. "It is a beautiful improvement over the old æthiopica in color, texture and general refinement," the E. G. Hill Co. said. "When it is properly benched it gives extra large blooms, but is seen at its best in 6-inch or 8-inch pots, where blooms of medium size are freely borne."

It will be noted that the stems of the Godfrey calla are smaller, though fully as long and as strong as the older type. This enhances the graceful effect of the flower.

When we began to grow Godfrey callas in California, we had to master many costly problems. The investment in stock alone amounted to over $6,000 before the true type had been selected and established on a commercial basis, but we are now able to grow and cure the highest-grade stock possible to produce.

We dig and pack for shipment at about the end of August. When the bulbs reach their destination they should be potted and benched at once; 1-inch or 1¼-inch Godfrey calla bulbs should be potted in 4-inch pots and kept dark until well rooted. Soil rich in humus and retentive of moisture should be used. They are gross feeders and will respond profitably to bone meal and liquid manure and can be brought along to 6-inch pots. Three bulbs in an 8-inch pot make a fine showing. A carnation temperature and a light bench near the glass produce the best blooms.

H. A. Hyde.

Cattleya Gigas.

TO ROOT POINSETTIAS.

What is the best way to root poinsettia cuttings in southern California?

T. J.—Cal.

Quite as much depends upon the preparation of the stock plants and cuttings as upon the method of rooting them. The quickest and best way to work up stock in southern California is to procure last season's stems and cut them in lengths of about eight inches, early in the season. Dip the ends in warm, dry sand and dry them a little; then place closely in flats of sandy soil or on a propagating bench. When growth has reached about two inches, cut the young shoots off and immerse them in water for about fifteen minutes to check bleeding. Insert them in a well prepared sand bed over a moderate bottom heat and shade lightly until they show by picking up and stiffening the foliage that they are rooted. This simple method is all that is required and the young plants must be potted before they make much root, handling them quickly and giving them slight shade until reestablished.

Clean sand that has been lying in the sun for a month is best and it is safest not to use the sand more than once, especially if any fungus appears. The cuttings will continue to produce safe shoots for propagating for several weeks or even months if carefully handled and they can afterwards be potted and will make fairly good plants for basket work.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

With the short supply of asters and gladioli, good shipping stock is scarcer than ever this week and shippers have found great difficulty in filling their orders. Carnations are the only flowers that are up to the demand and these are higher in price than usual at this time of the year. A shortage of roses has again developed and all of these that come in are quickly disposed of. Retailers are able to get most of the stock they need for funeral work, but flowers for high-class trade are hard to get. A few chrysanthemums are in, but they are not yet in good condition for long-distance shipping, though better than usual for so early in the season. Greens are more plentiful than for some time and business in general keeps up well for the season.

Various Notes.

At Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's, funeral work has kept up well; there were two fine palls among the orders in one day recently. Albert Goldenson has just returned from a pleasant week's trip to Catalina and he looks better as a result of the rest.

There is a magnificent show of all kinds of flowers just now at the home place of Howard & Smith, at Montebello. Asters are a leading feature; the large breadths already rogued out for seed-saving make a most attractive display in all colors. The cannas, too, are wonderfully showy now, some splendid new varieties being seen, while large breadths of the pale blue Delphinium Belladonna, aquilegias and other varieties go toward making a most choice and attractive showing.

New-crop roses from the establishment of Roy F. Wilcox are making a strong impression on the market. When they get into their stride, these roses of the new planting will break the record for this place.

WHOLESALE GROWERS

ROBT. G. FRASER & SON, "Busch Gardens," Pasadena, Calif.

H. P. Gerhardt, of Wilmette, Ill., was a visitor last week.

Albert Morris, son of O. M. Morris, of the Morris & Snow Seed Co., has so far regained his health as to be around for a little while at the nursery, but he has had a hard siege and is still far from well.

Mrs. R. W. Patterson, of Taft, has gone out of the flower business, temporarily at least.

The sympathy of the trade is with R. Mesick in the death of his mother, which occurred recently after a long illness.

The H. N. Gage Co. is disposing of an attractive line of ferns.

Guy Parmenter, grower of statice and other everlasting flowers, visited this city last week. He reported a big demand for his class of goods in San Diego.

Frank Warner and W. B. Clarke, sales manager for the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, are on a trip to San Diego.

There is an extra fine display now at the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, on Hill street. This is one of the most attractive stores in the city and Mr. Dostal says they are busy all the time. Mr. Wolters comes in occasionally, and it looks like old times to see him around the store.

H. K. Norcross, formerly of the force of W. Armacost & Co., now represents the A. L. Randall Co. in San Francisco. Ray Daschbach and he have just returned from the Bay city and Mr. Norcross goes back at once, working the valley towns on his way north.

Carl Brose, of the Lichtenberg force, is back after a pleasant month's vacation, most of it spent fishing and deer hunting in the northern part of the state. He and Mrs. Brose and party visited Eureka, Fortuna, Red Bluff and other points, and speak highly of the 40-mile drive through the redwood forests. Mr. Lichtenberg will leave shortly for a business trip to San Francisco.

A beautiful series of gladiolus seedlings comes from C. E. Houdyshell, who has been working with this flower for a good many years. Mr. Houdyshell, it will be recalled, was formerly at Laverne, or Lordsburg as it was called originally, but his scholastic duties keep him now more or less tied to Los Angeles. One of the finest of his seedlings is a moderately tall grower, with well branched spikes and large flowers of a most refined color; the sepals are of a rosy salmon tint, with carmine lips. This is a seedling with G. primulinus as the seed-bearing parent, but it is as large as a good gandavensis and should make an excellent commercial variety. In the way of novelties, there is one that is almost black, several of a pleasing amaranth shade and others with immense individual blooms, but borne a little too far apart for commercial use. It is a most promising line and Mr. Houdyshell is to be congratulated on his success with this popular flower. H. R. Richards.

John Schneider, of Ocean Park Heights, reports that he has sold his rose growing establishment to E. C. Amling, who is propagating a large number of rose plants to be used in planting the houses to be erected on the acreage which is being developed at Sawtelle. It is understood that the growing interests of E. C. RANUNCULUS

A splendid strain of Ranunculus for florists' use brought to perfection after many years of careful selection, producing over 75 per cent double and semi-double flowers in the most pleasing colors; showing stems from 18 to 30 inches long; an excellent cut flower and a good keeper, also highly desirable for bedding. We have grown this variety several seasons, for the cut-flower market, and consider it one of our most profitable crops. Our books show that flowers from this strain brought $4.00 per 100 on the Los Angeles market.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

On all hands chrysanthemums are stated to be coming in well, both as to quality and quantity. Roses are more plentiful than they were a week or two ago and the quality is good. The local market is consuming a good many dahlias, and as other outdoor stock is appearing now in good quantities, there is less run on roses than was the case before chrysanthemums began to appear in such profusion. This being the case, there is no apparent shortage of roses at present. The first chrysanthemums brought high prices, but as September advances and the quantity on the market increases, these early fancy prices will decrease. Carnations are beginning to arrive in better quantities. There are still many gladioli.

Various Notes.

After the first refrigerator car left San Francisco August 31 the schedule was changed, so that it now leaves Friday instead of Tuesday.

Many of the San Francisco florists were working at top speed August 31 packing consignments, chiefly of chrysanthemums, to go by the first refrigerator car, which left that evening.

J. W. Davies, president of the Dahlia Society of California, was show manager of the dahlia exhibition at the Palace hotel September 2 to 4. Some of the prize cups were displayed in the windows of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.

At Burlingame what is said to be the largest orchid-growing nursery in California is rapidly nearing completion. The owners are Major F. Peterson, formerly of the U. S. Army, and J. Haywood. It is stated that they are spending about $50,000 on the greenhouses and grounds. More than 3,000 orchids are already growing in one of the houses.

C. Kooyman reports that new crops of roses and carnations are doing nicely.

The E. W. McLellan Co. shipped a good many chrysanthemums by the refrigerator car, Chrysoloras predominating.

The United Flower & Supply Co. reports the arrival of a good many mums. The first-class grades are still a little high.

M. Domoto, of Domoto Bros., is expected back from the east in about ten days. This firm reports that rubrum lilies are coming in plentifully from its nurseries and are selling excellently. It is also shipping roses as well as chrysanthemums. Asters are nearly all gone.

Enomoto & Co. sent a large shipment of mums east by the refrigerator car. The early crop is coming in quite satisfactorily from the nurseries.

A large number of eastern orders had been booked by J. A. Axell for the first refrigerator car shipment and he was able to fill them all from the early arrivals of chrysanthemums. "The first mums brought a premium, but the market looks easier now," said Mr. Axell.

Oriental pods are being shipped to near and distant points by Joseph's. A table loaded with the brilliant red and green pods seemed to be much appreciated by local customers and it was stated at the store that orders for them are being received from points as far away as England and Australia.

A. F. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, has returned from a two weeks' visit to Los Angeles. This firm recently had a fashionable society wedding, that of Miss Filmer. All the decorations were in pink and blue. September 1 they had the coming-out party of Miss Laura Miller, a society debutante, who had all basket decorations. Wm. Giorgone, of this firm, is running for assemblyman in the North Beach district.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. states that chysanthemums keep up fully their popularity of former years. The somewhat high price asked at the opening of the season seems to have been taken as a matter of course by customers.

Substantial orders for chrysanthemums shipped by the refrigerator car were filled by Fred C. Jaeger & Son.

The Art Floral Co. was kept busy last week, some funerals necessitating considerable decorative work.

Much interest has been taken by local florists in the sudden illness of the nephew and adopted son of F. J. Bertrand, of the flower shop in the Palace hotel. He was seized with appendicitis so suddenly that he had to be rushed to the hospital for an operation August 30. The boy is now pronounced on the way to recovery. Mr. Bertrand has had decorations for some big Palace banquets lately, including that of the Builders' Exchange, at which over 500 guests were present. An interesting event was a dual wedding celebration in the Katz family. The father and mother celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on the day of their son's marriage. The floral decorations were pink for the wedding and gold for the anniversary. Mr. Bertrand arranged, among the flowers, an electric fountain with gold-colored water.

The Market.

There has been somewhat of a shortage on certain lines of stock, but this has not been oppressive to florists, since there was more than enough of other lines to offset this. Rains recently put an end to the shipments of several early summer flowers. Water lilies are about at an end now. There were more water lilies sold this season than ever before, but towards the last of the season stock was so plentiful that no real profit was made.

Outdoor chrysanthemums and some new varieties of dahlias are the latest arrivals. The mums were October Frost. Valiant and Venetia were the most striking of the new dahlias to be shown here. Dahlias from local growers show fine keeping qualities this season. There has been a continued sale of tall baskets in which calendulas, gladioli, asters, dahlias, mums, zinnias and other outdoor flowers have been freely used. Candytuft has been shown in a small way to good effect and flowering thistles are also popular. Gypsophila is still in heavy demand.

The delivery of roses seems to run most heavily to the older varieties, such as Ward, Ophelia and Columbia, with enough Russell, Cecile Brunner, Ulrich Brunner, Butterfly and Irish Elegance to warrant mentioning. Butterfly has sold well when available, since it combines so well with the sweet peas which are being received at present. The latter offering is holding up well, although a little off color. There are plenty of orchids available, and some gardenias, although the latter could increase considerably without affecting the prices. There has been a slow sale for carnations and most dealers report their stocks as composed of short-stemmed new-crop blooms.

Various Notes.

Seattle florists were shocked by the news of the sudden death of Paul Rappio, who has been in this section for the last twenty years. He is survived by a widow, two sons, Joseph and John, and two daughters, Miss Christine Rappio and Mrs. L. Raffo.

Miss Rodd, of the Hollywood Gardens, has returned from her vacation. This firm is receiving some fine Helen gladioli and October Frost mums from its greenhouses. Charles Tabel has been added to the staff. He has until recently been connected with the trade at Kansas City.

Mrs. L. W. McCoy, of McCoy's, has gone to California for an indefinite stay. She will probably spend the winter in southern California. Zinnias, dahlias and rubrum lilies were combined in an effective window display here recently.

H. P. Anderson, of the University Floral Co., has opened his shop on University Way again, after his usual two months' vacation for the entire staff. He says that customers in the university district have learned of this system and that he can see no loss of business when college reopens as the result of such closing.

Rosaia Bros. handled a notable social decoration recently. Two adjoining homes were used for an afternoon tea and the intervening lawn was screened. Maple leaves and gladioli were used on the screens, while, inside, large wicker lamps, with baskets at the base of each filled with gladioli, and hanging baskets of gladioli were used. In all the decoration required more than 4,000 gladioli, as well as palms and other flowers. George Rosaia took his family on a week-end trip to Monte Cristo, in the Cascade mountains.

Henry F. Day, until recently manager of the Orpheum Floral Co., has resigned his position and will leave shortly for San Francisco. After a visit there he will go on to Los Angeles, where he expects again to enter the floral trade.

Harry Crouch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, and a party of friends are at Lake Quinault for several weeks, while Dave Jones has returned from his trip to Lake Crescent and Mora. This firm has been showing some fine potted asters and hydrangeas.

Two trade visitors recently were Hans Niklas, the Portland retailer, and Mr. Herbert, of Rahn & Herbert, also of Portland.

The Denny building, on Second avenue, owned by the Denny estate, was sold last week to the Asia Investment Co., controlled by S. B. Asia, local shoe merchant, for $255,000. The buyer announced that at the end of the two-year leases on the basement and first and second floors, he will move his business to this location. Among the first-floor tenants is the Woodlawn Flower Shop.

Kenney's Home of Flowers reports a good business on potted asters and primroses and on Roosevelt ferns of late. The primroses were of especially fine quality. H. M.

INSECTS ON CYCLAMENS.

What is the cause of cyclamen leaves curling up? There is no aphis on them and they are carefully watered, also sprayed with Nico-fume twice a week. The young leaves curl up completely.
T. J.—Cal.

This looks like a case of thrips or some other insect attacking the tender young leaves and so crippling them in that stage that they cannot develop properly. An insect of the mite family has been quite destructive in some greenhouses of California where cyclamens are grown year after year. The utmost cleanliness at the start and during the whole life of the plant is an absolute necessity in the culture of cyclamens under glass. One might go even further and say that all ragweed and other trash growing around the houses or lots should be ruthlessly destroyed, for thrips and other harmful insects always swarm in them when green and enter the greenhouses when the weeds are drying up, about midsummer or before. Careful watering in the young stages is too often neglected, the man with the hose treating all alike daily, instead of watching the weather and the condition of the plants. Roots constantly wet cannot properly perform their functions and in consequence the leaves do not develop properly, the cup-like formation furnishing a hiding-place and shelter for insects which are always present in the dry atmosphere outdoors.
